Rally in Eighth Is Nipped; Nationals Blanked After Second Frame.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, July 22. Bucky Harris' Tigers, by beating the Athletics, paved the way for the Nationals to cut the champions' first-place lead to only three games today, but Johnson's men were unable to take advantage of the opportunity, losing their third straight to the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1.

Dick Coffman, a Washington discard, had the pleasure of administering the defeat at the expense of "Sad Sam" Jones, former Brownie. For the second time in as many days the Nats had the better of the hitting argument, 9 to 7, but Coffman always had a little something in reserve, while his mates fielded flashily behind him. And the Nats are still four games out of first place.

Browns Bunch Hits.

The Browns, on the other hand, were able to knick Jones' offerings at more opportune times, packing five of their safeties in their two scoring frames. After Jones had disappeared to make way for a pinch hitter, Bobby Burke turned in two hitless innings.

Rice, Judge and Cronin carried the bulk of the Washington punch, each being credited with two safeties, with Badgro being the only Brownie to hit safely more than once. Both of his blows, one of the scratchiest variety, drove in runs. Each team turned in two double plays, one by the natives killing the Nats' final threat of the game in the eighth after both Judge and Cronin had singled with one out.

Coffman Steadies.

Coffman was not particularly puzzling in the first three frames, during which the Nationals knicked his offerings for five hits, scored once and had him in trouble in two frames, but the young flinger then settled down and held the Nats in check while his mates were piling up their 3-to-1 lead off Jones' slants before the fifth frame was reached.

A walk and Rice's single were wasted by the Nationals in the first, while Myer's single and Bluege's triple gave them a one-run lead in the second. With none gone, it looked as though his mates could get Bluege home, but he died at the hot corner watching two of his mates roll out and the other fan.

Rice opened the third with a single and Judge followed suit, but neither of these blows were put to good use because Rice was killed trying to carry on to third on Judge's clout. Then Coffman settled down and granted no more hits until the sixth.

Jones, too, found himself in hot water in the second, a walk and Fer-

Says: On the whole we have done well to ratify the naval treaty. It is a most encouraging symptom of internal sanity. No doubt our admirals can find some objections to it. But so do the admirals of Britain and Japan. It takes at least two to make a trade. Reason, therefore, requires mutual concessions. We may well find satisfaction in the increased friendly feeling that will come from the concessions we have made.

It is regrettable that we could not secure real reduction. We have consented to a great world naval building program. Substantial parity with the British has been achieved and the needs of the brave nation of Japan, standing in a corner of the world all alone, have been conceded. Parity is more or less a fiction. After measuring the tonnage, speed and guns the officers and crews remain—they make the strength of the fleet.

But the great thing is the agreement to stop competition in the building of all classes of ships. To any fairly reasonable treaty doing that, we can well afford to give our approval. Hereafter no nation can discover in the building of the United States, Britain and Japan any menace to their peace and safety. That is real progress.

NAVY BOARD PLANS BILLION FOR BOATS

Consideration of Detailed Six-Year Program Under Treaty Launched.

TWO ISSUES AT STAKE

(Associated Press.)

Consideration of a detailed six-year program under which nearly a billion dollars may be spent on the United States Navy under the London treaty ratified yesterday was begun yesterday by the Navy general board.

General phases of treaty restrictions have been under discussion for several months, but yesterday's undertaking was the beginning of work upon the concrete construction program.

Whether the board would recommend building up to the maximum tonnage allowed under the treaty had not been decided. Some members of the board, and other officials of the Navy, have said such a construction program would place the country in an unfavorable position at the next limitations conference since the United States would have no unbuilt ships with which to negotiate.

Another controverted question the board deliberated over was whether it should recommend the construction of as many 16 6-inch gun cruisers, the maximum that could be built under the treaty, or whether the development of this type of ship should be limited to afford the maximum number of 8-inch gun vessels committed.

The Navy now has in operation and under construction 10 of the 6-inch gun type, and 13 8-inch gun cruisers. The building of two more of the latter has been delayed by the President until ratification of the treaty, while one other of the same class may be completed in each of the years 1936, 1937 and 1938, bringing the total strength to 18.

This portion of the treaty was most severely criticized by members of the general board as giving the United States ships it did not need and limiting the type of vessel necessary for satisfactory naval defense. Five additional 8-inch-gun ships which already had been authorized by Congress were eliminated from the United States fleet strength by the London negotiations. The general board advised the President before the conference that it considered 21 of the

LONDON NAVAL PACT IS SIGNED BY HOOVER

Act Should Dismiss Notion of Imperialism in U. S., He Declares.

LEADERS AT CEREMONY

(Associated Press.)

In the historic east room of the White House President Hoover yesterday signed the London Naval Treaty.

Ratification by Great Britain and Japan and the depositing of all three signatures in London remain to be accomplished to bring into full effect the covenant limiting for the first time all categories of fighting vessels for the three great naval powers.

Earlier in the day, the Chief Executive had said in a statement that the treaty, which was ratified Monday by the Senate, will "secure the full defense of the United States" and will lay "the foundation upon which further constructive reduction in world arms may be accomplished in the future."

"With the ratification by the other governments," Mr. Hoover said, "the treaty will translate an emotion deep in the hearts of millions of men and women into a practical fact of government and international relations. • • • We should by this act of willingness to join with others in limiting armament, have dismissed from the mind of the world any notion that the United States entertains ideas of aggression, imperial power or exploitation of foreign nations."

Four of the American delegates to the London conference, Vice President Curtis and two members of the Senate foreign relations committee stood at the elbow of the Chief Executive as he affixed his signature to the treaty which had its beginning less than a year ago in a conference between himself and Prime Minister MacDonald at the Presidential camp in Virginia.

Flanking Mr. Hoover on the right and left stood Secretary Stimson and Secretary Adams, both delegates to the conference. About him were grouped the Vice President, Senators Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, and Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, two other delegates to the conference; Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee, and Sena-

HUSTON QUITS TOWN WITHOUT STATEMENT

Chairman Quarters Besieged in Vain for Word on Retirement.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

It was inevitable, with the Senate gone, that anxious political eyes should turn toward Chairman Huston, of the Republican national committee, yesterday, but the gentleman was nowhere to be found.

At the so-called show-down meeting of the committee officials several days ago Mr. Huston stopped the attack with a statement that he would have something to say when the Senate left town, the inference being that he would resign at that time.

His headquarters in the Barr Building responded to all inquiries yesterday with the explanation that he was out of the city and that it was not known when he would return. It was pointed out, too, that he did not promise at the recent meeting to make known his position within any certain time after the Senate quit.

Goodrich Sees President.

Former Gov. Goodrich of Indiana, who has been quite active in the anti-Huston fight, gave many the impression that he had acted as a go-between for the White House and Mr. Huston when the controversy was at its height, conferred lengthily with the President yesterday. He said, however, that the conference had been on general conditions. They must have covered a wide scope, if it was.

Doubt was expressed in the anti-Huston camp over the reports that before he retired Huston intended to call a full meeting of the national committee and insist upon pointing out his attackers and their alleged motives. It was insisted in this quarter more hopefully than convincingly that the chairman would retire gracefully.

Huston's friends are now passing out the story that the power interests are after him, that they met here last October and inaugurated a carefully laid program against him.

Precipitation of .6 Inch Brings Some Relief From Drought.

Scores of Deaths Reported in East, but Showers Snap Spell.

Four persons were prostrated here yesterday as the temperature climbed to the 100-mark for the fourth successive day before dropping 26 degrees in two hours as the result of thundershowers. The mercury stood at the 80 mark last night, and Weather Bureau officials said that today would be fair and cooler, due to cool currents of air from Canada and Michigan.

Dan Strickland, 26, of Florida, who said that "the heat down that way never bothered him a bit," collapsed yesterday when he went to work at Arlington Memorial Bridge. He had come here to take the job at the bridge, and yesterday was his first day at work.

Mrs. Joseph Medler, 70, collapsed at her home at 1124 F street northeast and was taken to Casualty Hospital by the police rescue squad.

Feels Heat "Terribly."

Stephen Kelly, 38, colored, of 610 M street northwest, collapsed at North Capitol and I streets yesterday morning. He told physicians at Casualty Hospital that he "had walked a long way and felt the heat terribly."

Mrs. Margaret Scott, 36 years old, colored, of 1109 Seventh street northwest, was treated at Freedman's Hospital after she fainted as a result of the heat at Eighth street and Florida avenue.

The temperature climbed up to 100 degrees at 12:30 o'clock, but from that time it began to slump sharply until it reached 74 degrees at 3:45, when it recovered slightly to 78, where it remained about stationary. It will be "fair and cooler" today, however, the Weather Bureau says.

40 BODIES RECOVERED

Coblenz, Germany, July 22 (A.P.).—Tragedy came swiftly tonight to end this city's gay celebration of the evacuation of the Rhineland by foreign troops, in which President Von Hindenburg today was the central figure.

While fireworks were flashing from the historic castle of Ehrenbreistein across the Rhine River, a pontoon bridge across the Moselle gave way under a crowd of about 80 persons, precipitating them all into the water.

Only seven had been rescued by midnight. The bodies of 40 were recovered from the water, which was about 20 feet deep. Dredging operations were immediately undertaken by torchlight.

When the Associated Press correspondent arrived at the entrance to the bridge, situated near the famous "Deutsches Eck," junction of the Rhine and the Moselle, the bodies of 28 adults and of 2 children were stretched out on the grass bank.

Coblenz was thrown into consternation by the news of the disaster. The bridge was a frail structure, not available for heavy traffic. Thousands of persons had tramped across it on their way back from the banks of the Rhine. When it gave way, the 80 persons were watching the dying flare of the illuminations at the castle.

Thousands of persons had tramped across the pontoon bridge, which leads to a place known as "Security Harbor." Suddenly it collapsed under the strain of the unusual traffic. All those crossing were thrown into the water.

Many were killed by falling timbers, and others were swept away in the black, swirling water and drowned before help could reach them.

In the darkness, which had been intermittently illuminated by the

RECALL OF DETROIT'S MAYOR IS CONCEDED

Bowles Trails by More Than 26,081 Votes in Fight to Keep Office.

BALLOT SETS RECORD

Detroit, July 22 (A.P.).—Recall of Mayor Charles Bowles in today's election was conceded at 10:25 o'clock tonight by John Gillespie, commissioner of public works and manager of the mayor's campaign.

With 750 out of 852 precincts reported, the count stood: 98,667 for the recall and 72,586 against. The majority for the recall was 26,081.

As the result of today's election, the first recall in the city's history, the mayor becomes a candidate for the office at another election to be held within 30 days.

This election will be the third in which Bowles has campaigned for the office in nine months. He was elected last November by a majority of approximately 8,500 after a campaign in which he was supported by the anti-Saloon League and similar organizations as a "reform candidate."

Today's election was the first in the history of the city, or of any municipality of its population class, in which a mayor was subjected to a recall fight.

The campaign on the recall was the briefest ever held here, starting two weeks ago when the state Supreme Court declined to consider charges by the mayor and his supporters that the names on petitions asking for the election were fraudulent.

The recall proponents made charges that the mayor had "tolerated lawlessness;" that he had impaired by dismissal of faithful public servants, and that Gillespie is a "lobbyist and politician" and unfit for the office he holds. They also attacked the administration of the municipally owned Detroit Street Railway under Bowles, particularly his dismissal of Frank Couzens, son

To further undermine the tottering alibi of Herbert M. Campbell, authorities will today question his wife, Mrs. Ruth Callahan Campbell, who protests that her husband was at home on the night of the murder of Mary E. Baker.

The murder gun will today be sent to Chicago for inspection by Maj. Calvin Goddard, internationally known ballistics expert. Inspector William S. Shelby, Lieut. Edward J. Kelly and Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth have implicit confidence in the identification made by Dr. Wilmer Souder, of the Bureau of Standards, but they want to make doubly certain that Campbell's gun is the one which fired the shots into the girl.

Mrs. Campbell has been prostrated since she received the news of her husband's imprisonment on the murder charge. Sheriff Howard B. Fields, of Arlington County, wishes to extend every courtesy to her, but will likely bring her before the inquisitors today. In addition to his wife, the two children of Campbell will also be interviewed.

Alibi Held False.

Maj. Goddard will minutely examine the weapon. Although all weapons are machine made, Inspector Shelby pointed out, all are reamed so that each gun has different crevices and bullets fired from one gun will bear different traces from those fired from another weapon made on the same machine.

Further inroads on Barrere's alibi were made by Lieut. Kelly and Mr. Gloth yesterday afternoon. Campbell asserted that he was at home at 6 o'clock that night, peeling potatoes for his wife. Although Lieut. Kelly did not reveal the manner in which this part of the alibi was shattered, he announced that his alibi until 7 o'clock on the night of April 11 had proved false.

When the case had progressed this far, Lieut. Kelly and Mr. Gloth decided to try to fracture the story further. Campbell said on Monday night that at 7 o'clock, April 11, he took his son to a Boy Scout meeting in this city and went home at 8 o'clock. Lieut. Kelly and Mr. Gloth intend to check the scoutmaster to see if a meeting was held that night.

C. H. Smith Named Counsel.

Arkansas police will be asked to cooperate in checking another version of the suspect's alibi for that night. After leaving the boy he said he visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, of that State, who were then stopping at a home on Hamilton street near Sixth street northwest. He then went home, he said, arriving at 9:30 o'clock.

"Millionnaire Hobo" Dies From Starvation

J. E. How Succumbs in Staunton Hotel; Pneumonia Superinduced by Lack of Food, Doctors Hold; Body Coming to Capital.

Staunton, Va., July 22 (A.P.).—James Eads How, "millionaire hobo," died in a Staunton hospital today of penumonia, "evidently superinduced by starvation," physicians said.

How was 56 years old and a member of one of the wealthiest families of St. Louis, where he was born. His grandfather was the distinguished engineer, James Eads, who built the bridge over the Mississippi River at St. Louis.

The body was sent tonight to Washington, where it will be met by a brother, Louis How. In accordance with How's wishes, it will be cremated.

How arrived in Staunton last Friday in a weak and enfeebled condition and registered in a hotel. For several days he appeared in the lobby, but was in the dining room only a few times. Hotel employes said he ate very little and told them he was a vegetarian because of stomach trouble.

He was found to be ill Monday and was removed to the hospital today.

Born in society, How elected to spend most of his years in the companionship of hoboes, and at nearly all hobo conventions it was How who filled the position of chairman.

How's attending physician this afternoon communicated with Jesse McDonald, St. Louis representative of the "millionaire hobo," who directed that the body be sent to Washington.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 22 (A.P.). Four truck loads of fancy liquors, valued at more than $100,000, was captured here today.

Woman Abandoned 33 Babies, Charge

Hospital Head in Montreal Paid to Get Adoptions, Say Police.

Montreal, Que., July 22 (A.P.).—Facing a charge of abandoning babies in her care, Mrs. H. Dorion, matron of a private hospital, was held today on $500 bail, for preliminary hearing July 24.

Police declared they had evidence that in 33 abandonment cases the matron had received $50 for her efforts in getting foster parents to adopt the children. Twenty babies were abandoned in Three Rivers, Que., and others in St. Hyacinthe, Ste. Genevive and Granby, police said.

Nurses of the private hospital were taken to Ste. Genevive and Granby and, according to the chief of police, identified the babies as ones which had been intrusted to the institution for adoption. The method of getting rid of the children, police said, was to take them from Montreal in motor cars and leave them on doorsteps.

Second Time in History of State Four Go to Deaths at Same Time.

Trenton, N. J., July 22 (A.P.).—Frank McBrien, notorious gangster, known as the "Jersey Kid," and three of his companions were electrocuted tonight for the murder of George B. Lee, paymaster of the Public Service Coordinated Transport of New Jersey. The last man was pronounced dead at at 8:38 p. m.

Victor Giampietro, who had hoped until the last for a reprieve, was the first to go. McBrien, Joseph Malanga and Joseph Rado followed quickly and all were dead within 26 minutes. It was the second time in the history of New Jersey that four persons were executed at one time.

ginia attorney, was engaged yesterday by the wife and relatives of the accused man.

Campbell was brought into Mr. Gloth's office at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No sooner had the door been closed than the murdered girl's clothing and the pair of gloves, and other articles found in the trap sewer, were placed before him.

Accused Appears Downcast.

"Why did you identify those gloves as similar to a pair owned by you?" asked Lieut. Kelly.

"I wanted to get into this case," Campbell answered.

For more than an hour and a half he was harassed with questions, the net result being the discrepancy in his alibi for the night of the crime. Mr. Smith, his attorney, arrived at the courthouse at 3:30 o'clock. He conferred with Inspector Shelby, Lieut. Kelly, Mr. Gloth and Sheriff Fields in the courtroom.

Campbell was then brought to the group. He was dressed in blue trousers and a blue shirt with white stripes. All his certainty of the guilt of Barrere, as expressed on Monday, was lost. He walked with his eyes to the ground and did not acknowledge greeting of newspapermen to whom he had previously expounded his reasons for his belief that Barrere was guilty.

Shelby Pleads for Truth.

Mr. Smith then took his client to a remote corner of the courtroom, where they conversed in whispers for a few minutes. Mr. Smith was told by Inspector Shelby: "For God's sake tell him to tell the truth; he is lying to us. He's in an awful predicament, and it will serve him best if he comes clean with us."

Mr. Smith, after a consultation with his client, said:

"The authorities and I are in perfect accord in this investigation."

Asked if he had information to prove the innocence of his client, he replied, "I have positive information that he is innocent."

"Have you information which will incriminate any one else?" was the next question.

"I am a defense attorney not a prosecuting attorney," he answered.

Not to Seek Release.

"No move will be made for the release of the real estate man at this time, his counsel advised newspapermen. Authorities may question the man at any time without his presence, he said.

"Mr. Campbell is in no worse a predicament than any one else might be who possesses the flare for publicity that he does," Mr. Smith said.

It was recalled that Campbell was reluctant to talk with newspapermen and declined to have his picture taken on several occasions. When the murder gun was turned over to authorities in the latter part of May, the incident was held secret for more than a month.

Barrere and Gloth Meet.

Inspector Shelby and Lieut. Kelly believe that if the man had a craze for publicity he would have let the incident become public matter. When the story of the recovery of the gun was published it did not come from Campbell. On another occasion newspapermen quizzed Campbell for more than two hours before he confirmed the story of the gun's recovery.

Campbell was taken from Mr. Gloth's room at 4:15 o'clock. He was then lodged in a compartment with other prisoners in the jail.

Hermann H. Barrere was then brought to the courthouse. Barrere, garrulous and as jaunty as ever, dashed up the stairs and into Mr. Gloth's office.

"Hello, Hermann," said Mr. Gloth.

"Hello, Billy, how are you?" said the self-confessed "sheik" to the Commonwealth's attorney.

Barrere Out of Picture.

Mr. Gloth then talked with Barrere and upon emerging from the room said: "Barrere is definitely out of the picture. We believe Campbell is the guilty man."

Barrere then dashed into the office of Sheriff Fields, where he gathered a bundle of newspapers to read. "Are the girls bothering you since you went to jail," he was asked. "Hell, yes. I got two letters from Buddy today." "Buddy" is Mrs. Marion M. Jarrell, the 47-year-old Philadelphia widow who accompanied him on his trip to Canada.

"Those —— beans in jail are awful," Barrere complained, whereupon newspapermen took up a collection, which netted him $2 for food.

Barrere said that Campbell apologized to him for getting him "into this mess;" but promised to "square things" for him.

Calls Experience Fun.

"So I told him that that was all right, 'look at all the fun we're having.'"

When Barrere was being led downstairs he turned to Lieut. Kelly and said: "Be sure to look out for my interests, won't you, Mr. Kelly."

Wife Visits Campbell.

Earlier in the day Campbell's wife had been allowed to see him for a few minutes. She was nervous, but definite in her protestations of his innocence. Campbell's whole family, including his aged father, believe that he is innocent. His brother, Frank Campbell, said that he might be "foolish," but not a murderer.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields and a deputy sheriff were the only persons with the wife and brother of the accused man when they saw Campbell. They met in the tiny waiting room of the jail, and Mrs. Campbell talked to reporters while she waited for her husband to be brought out to her.

The woman, who brought her husband fresh clothes and towels, dashed from her car into the jail to elude photographers. When she came out she was rapidly driven away by Frank Campbell. She talked to her husband for about ten minutes.

Voices Faith in Innocence.

Mrs. Campbell then authorized the following statement, which was given by Frank Campbell. The statement said: "From my personal knowledge of my husband's whereabouts on the night of the murder of Mary Baker, I am satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt of his innocence and will stand by him." The brother said that after spending a night checking up on the accused man's actions, he could prove the innocence of Herbert.

It was learned yesterday that Campbell, on May 11, had made an agreement with Barrere's relatives to shield Barrere if he should turn up. Campbell expressed an opinion that the painter had a good alibi, but that he might "not tell the right story." If Barrere should appear at his brother's home in Richmond, the brother was to notify Campbell, who would meet him in Fredericksburg.

It was at this time, on May 11, that Campbell said he moved the gun from his home to the office. He had said earlier that he feared Barrere would appear at the meeting and offer violence, though at the meeting in his office he agreed to see Barrere if he should appear. Several weeks later, when Campbell offered evidence damaging to Barrere, the man's brother, Leon Barrere, decided that he would give to the police any information he might get about Herman's whereabouts.

Lieut. Kelly and Mr. Gloth then left for Alexandria to check out a few minor details of Barrere's alibi, which already has been called ironclad.

It was revealed for the first time last night that the collapse of Campbell's alibi came after a campaign had been waged against him for six weeks. All the while he was given the impression that he was aiding the police, Inspector Shelby revealed.

Every day for the past six weeks the suspect has been visited almost every day by an officer. Lieut. Kelly decided to attempt to wear the man down by this psychological method. Sometimes an Arlington County officer would visit him. At other times a Washington detective would stop at his home or the office.

The only time the case was discussed was when Campbell opened the topic. By this method, they found rifts in his alibi. Always, Inspector Shelby said, the nature of Campbell's evidence was incriminatory of Barrere.

Detectives deluded Campbell into believing that he was doing "wonderful" fork for them.

"Wart Man" Fictitious.

Campbell was arrested Monday night when his alibi broke down after hours of questioning. He learned for the first time that police knew that he had parked with a woman near the spot where Mary Baker's body was found on the afternoon of the murder.

In addition to the fact that Campbell parked near the murder scene, and that the gun had never been out of his possession, last night's grilling developed other things damaging to the real estate man. It was learned that, on his way from the home of the woman with whom he had been driving, he passed the corner where three witnesses saw a woman being beaten in Mary Baker's car. It developed that the "man with the wart on his nose," who, Campbell said, had reminded him that he owned a .32-caliber gun, was only a figment of the accused man's imagination.

In spite of the breakdown of his alibi, Campbell maintained that he was innocent of the crime, and that he had never known Mary Baker. He was unable to explain how it was that she was supposedly slain by a gun which was in his possession.

Barrere Jaunty as Ever.

Campbell told his interrogators that the greatest thrill in his life was in working with them on the case. He has always had a fondness for dectective work, and was a special officer of Arlington County about three years ago.

He said that he had only invented the mysterious man with the blemished face to give a little excitement to those investigating the case, and to bring himself into the center of things.

Barrere still maintains the jaunty mood which has marked his captivity. Mr. Gloth said yesterday that Barrere had organized a "kangaroo court" in the general cell of the jail where he is incarcerated. Other prisoners are tried for such trivial offenses as expectorating on the floor. Barrere acts as judge and there are attorneys and clerks.

Mr. Gloth announced early yesterday morning that George E. Garrett, former county surveyor, would be questioned concerning the case. Mr. Gloth, at the time of the murder, asked Mr. Garrett to take careful note and measurements of the locations of various items of the evidence, which was done.

MAN IN GREEN HAT GIVEN PRISON TERM

Notorious Reputed Purveyor of Rum to Senators Is Sentenced.

CAUGHT BY CITY POLICE

George Lawrence Cassidy, the "man in the green hat," reputed to be a congressional bootlegger, was sentenced yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court to spend one year and nine months in jail.

Cassidy was convicted last week on testimony of Washington policemen that they had nabbed him while attempting to make a delivery at the Senate Office Building. The alleged bootlegger was charged with transportation and possession.

Sentence was imposed by Justice Jesse C. Adkins before whom the man was tried and convicted.

Cassidy sought to evade a trial by pleading that he had been illegally searched and that the liquor he possessed had been illegally seized.

Cassidy, according to the evidence adduced at the trial, was in the act of delivering liquor at the Senate Office Building when he was arrested by Washington police.

Kidnaped, Held Prisoner With Trio, Girl Asserts

New Jersey Police Seek House Where Ruth Kunell Alleges She Was Detained With Three Other Young Women After Capture by Youths.

West Collingwood, N. J., July 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—State police at Berlin today instituted a search for the lonely farmhouse where Ruth Kunell, 14-year-old girl, says she was held captive for 24 hours by men who kidnaped her as she was walking home late Sunday night. The girl, who returned home early today in a semihysterical condition, told of being seized by three youths, drugged and transported to a remote house where three other girls were held captive. She was taken from the place by her captors and dumped out of an automobile on the Black Horse pike, not far from her home.

According to the story she told police, Ruth was nearing home late Sunday night when three youths leaped out of the bushes and overpowered her. One placed a cloth over her mouth and they dragged her a quarter mile across the fields to the Black Horse pike, where they bundled her into an automobile. A lipstick and a bit of Ruth's clothing were found at that spot by Haddon police before Ruth's return, and they reported the place showed evidence of a struggle.

Her captors forced her to drink something which made her unconscious, Ruth said, and when she recovered the men were surrounding her in a field. Their car bore Pennsylvania license plates and they transferred her to another car similarly tagged and took her to the house, where she found the other three captives.

GANDHI INTERVIEW TODAY STIRS INDIA

Two Congress Envoys Say Meeting in Prison May Last Long Time.

LITTLE OPTIMISM HELD

Bombay, India, July 22 (A.P.).—All India tonight awaited with interest the outcome of a private interview which will take place in the Veroda Jail at Poona tomorrow between two envoys of the congress and Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the campaign of civil disobedience against British rule.

The two Hindu statesmen arrived in Poona tonight from Bombay, according to advices, and were prepared to see the "Holy One" in his prison quarters without the attendance of any other persons. It was predicted that the interview might occupy a long time.

Before their departure from Bombay the leader of the two, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, said he had no idea how long the conversation with the Nationalist leader would last. He agreed with his companion, Mr. Jayakar, that it might take half an hour or two days when questioned by interviewers.

End of Resistance Doms.

After seeing the Mahatma, Sapru and Jayakar planned to go to Allahabad to interview similarly Pandit Motalil Nahru and Pandit Jawaharlal Nahru. Their object si to obtain views regarding an entire cessation of the civil resistance program.

From Allahabad the pair will return to Simla, there to meet Viceroy Lord Irwin.

No great optimism was felt in any quarter tonight regarding the outcome of the Gandhi interview. The general feeling among observers of the progress of the congress movement was that at any rate no harm would be done and in the present straits and straw must be clutched at that would seem to help India and her people out of their predicatment.

12 Hurt in Prison Attack.

Moslems meeting at Lucknow today adopted resolutions of gratitude for the effect they held the Simon report had had in cementing India in unity. Although regarding the civil disobedience program as unconstitutional the conference decided for massed action and that responsibility for forcing the down-trodden people to take suchc a method must be laid at the Government's door. The meeting was the largest ever held here by Moslems.

Advices from Ahmadabad said twelve persons had been injured by police sticks when a mob attacked the prison to demand release of a Moslem arrested as a thief.

Police today arrested the editor of Liberty, Nationalist newspaper at Calcutta, and issued a warrant for the editor of the newspaper Advance.

Roosevelt Doubts New York Inquiry

Little Possibility of Extra Session for Purpose, He Intimates.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—There is little possibility of calling a special session of the State legislature to investigate the alleged corrupt administration of New York City affairs, it was intimated by Gov. Roosevelt upon his arrival here, the last stop of the State inspection tour, this evening.

Originally the conference between the governor and Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies and Senator John Knight at Arcade this afternoon was to deal entirely with the question, but as the governor already had stated his position, it was barely mentioned in passing, Mr. Roosevelt said.

The discussion, he added, largely was confined to appointments for State commissions.

CONTRACTOR SLAIN; HELD GANG VICTIM

Ontario Police Hold Theory Victim May Have Fallen in Trap for Another.

BODY IS FOUND IN AUTO

Port Credit, Ontario, July 22 (A.P.).—Provincial police tonight were seeking a solution to the slaying of Philip G. Rumbold, 57, wealthy Tonawanda, N. Y., contractor, whose bruised and beaten body was found here early this morning in his blood-stained automobile. A rope was twisted about his neck and his head had been beaten in with a hammer.

Police are attempting to link the murder with activities of bootlegging racketeers who have been threatening roadhouse proprietors in this vicinity. They believe that Rumbold, driving along the road late at night, might have run into a trap intended for some one else.

They expressed the belief that Rumbold was captured by racketeers, who, even when they discovered their mistake, killed their prisoner for fear he might have learned too much about them.

Rumbold had been dead about two hours when his body was found by a laborer on his way to work. Police believe he was killed elsewhere and the car with the body driven just inside the village limits and parked.

A hammer and an iron bar the killers had used to twist the rope about his neck were found in the automobile.

Rumbold's wallet had been rifled. Customs officials disclosed that Rumbold, who left his home in Tonawanda assertedly on a fishing trip to Barrie, Ontario, had crossed the lower bridge at Niagara Falls about 2 p. m. They gave him a permit to remain in Canada 60 days.

Orlando Rumbold, the slain man's son, arrived here this afternoon. He said his father had about $300 in his wallet when he left home.

Egyptians Survey Results of Riots

Six Die, 237 Are Wounded and 1,000 Arrested in Political Outbreak.

Cairo, Egypt, July 22 (A.P.).—Three large Egyptian cities, including the capital, today surveyed ruefully the consequences of yesterday's political rioting. Troops and police were on the alert to guard against possible outbreaks, but all was quiet.

Six persons were killed yesterday, and of 237 wounded 7 were expected to die. The arrests in Cairo alone ran up above 1,000.

In fighting here between the police and Nationalists, who were venting their rage over cancellation of an announced protest session of Parliament, 4 persons were killed and 100 wounded. Forty-one of the latter were treated for bullet wounds. At Port Said 2 were killed and 28 wounded in the ranks of the Nationalists. Forty-seven policemen were injured. At Suez the casualties were equal on both sides, 21 demonstrators and the same number of police being hurt. It was officially denied that the city had been seized by the rioters.

Woman Is Slain; Man Confesses

Son-in-Law Tells of Hope to Obtain Property by Fatal Shooting.

Millen, Ga., July 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Calmira Johnson is dead of gunshot wounds and her son-in-law, Early Warren, is in prison today, after confessing he killed her in hope of obtaining her property.

Beverly Kent, owner of a nearby plantation, for whom Warren worked, was named as an accomplice and also arrested.

Last night as the Johnson family was grouped around the supper table a gun was fired outside the house and a shot tore through a window, killing Mrs. Johnson instantly. Her son, Grover, was wounded slightly.

Warren was arrested forthwith, but he did not confess until today. He told authorities Kent promised him a lifetime job and a sum of money for the slaying.

Harrisburg Newspapers Will Support Pinchot

Harrisburg, Pa., July 22 (A.P.).—The Harrisburg newspapers controlled by Vance McCormick former national chairman of the Democratic party, the Patriot and the Evening News, announce they will support Gifford Pinchot for Governor of Pennsylvania in the November election.

Editorially the newspapers state that they will not support the program of the Democratic leadership and the Democratic gubernatorial candidate—John M. Hemphill—because of the party's stand for repeal of the State liquor enforcement act. They point out that they refused to support Alfred E. Smith for President because of his position on prohibition.

$250,000 SUIT BEGUN BY CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Herald and Examiner Cited for Article Based on Lingle Case.

JURY HEARS REPORTER

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—The precipe of a suit for $250,000 damages was filed in court today by Robert M. Lee, city editor of the Chicago Tribune, against the Illinois Publishing and Printing Company, publishers of The Chicago Herald and Examiner. The suit is based upon an article in connection with the Lingle murder investigation, published in today's issue of the defendant paper.

Francis X. Busch, attorney who prepared the suit, announced after filing the precipe that his client would demand a trial by jury, and made the following statement:

"I have advised Mr. Lee that, in my opinion, the article appearing in today's Herald and Examiner is libellous. The implication is obvious that Mr. Lee knew of and countenanced the alleged criminal activities of Jake Lingle.

"Mr. Lee unqualifiedly brands these insinuations as false and has directed the institution of this suit so as to put the authors of this article upon their proof."

Jury Hears Reporter.

The grand jury listened for nearly three hours today to a St. Louis crime reporter's account of his investigations of alleged racketeering on the part of his Chicago brothers in the profession.

When Harry T. Brundidge emerged from the jury chamber after telling his story all lips were sealed.

Brundidge reiterated that he would not repeat his testimony even to his own newspaper, although Frank W. Taylor, jr., managing editor of the St. Louis Star was in the jury room part of the time with Brundidge. State's Attorney John A. Swanson and his assistant, William A. Rittenhouse, who participated in the grand jury hearing, said they were forbidden by law to make public any of the proceedings and the jury foreman said it had been agreed that nothing should be made public.

Another Gang Killing.

Whether any Chicago newspaper men will be subpenaed as a result of the testimony today was not indicated, and Mr. Swanson has already said he has no evidence to present in connection with the murder of Lingle. Brundidge was called because of a series of articles in which he wrote that reporters other than Lingle were involved in gangland affairs here.

The latest gangland execution, that of Peter Inserra last night, apparently had gone the way of the rest today—an unsolved homicide. "Ashcan Pete's" saloon had been closed for a month and during that time, police said, he was understood to have formed some alliance with the Aiello-Moran liquor syndicate, charged by some with the slaying of Lingle.

Inserra was shot six times through the body and head. Police, unable to find any witness to the killing, blamed enemies of the Moran gang.

MAIL PILOT'S DEATH LAID TO FOG AND RAIN

FIRST FATALITY ON LINE

Huron, Ohio, July 22 (A.P.).—Fog, rain and darkness were blamed tonight by air mail pilots for the death of William Frederick Martin, 26, who crashed on a farm near here today while flying the air mail from Cleveland to Bay City, Mich.

Martin's death was the first fatal accident on that mail route, which has been in operation two years. He was employed by the Thompson Aeronautical Corporation.

George Beatty, on whose farm the accident occurred, said he heard the crash about 4:30 a. m., but did not realize what it was until he found the wreckage an hour later. The plane's nose was buried 2½ feet in the ground. The wings were twisted double and wrapped over the top of the cockpit so tightly that it was necessary to use automobiles to pull them apart to release Martin's body.

Martin died of a broken neck, probably instantly. Before his death he had dumped the plane's gasoline supply to keep the plane from catching fire. His act saved the mail aboard from destruction.

Martin's wife and daughter were in Fresno, Calif., at the time of the accident. His home was in Pontiac, Mich.

Convicted Woman Seeks New Trial

Elzina Howells Says Court Erred; Appropriated Nurses' Money.

Elzina Howells, 48-year-old spinster, who was convicted recently in District Supreme Court on 16 counts of an indictment charging embezzlement and larceny after trust, yesterday filed a motion for a new trial.

The woman, who is alleged to have converted to her own use $5,700 entrusted to her by Miss Irene Biggs and Miss Lilian Girard, nurses, residing at the Toronto Apartments, faces a maximum sentence of 160 years in the penitentiary.

Through her attorney, Paul J. Sedgwick, the woman alleges that her case was prejudiced before the jury when the court permitted the introduction of testimony showing that she had sent the nurses to Europe on a worthless check with the intent in mind to leave them stranded on foreign soil. It also is alleged that Justice Jesse C. Adkins, who presided at the trial, erred in permitting the jury to return a verdict of guilty on all sixteen counts, which were equally divided between larceny after trust and embezzlement. Claim is made that the two charges are repugnant and that the jury should have been permitted to state whether it believed larceny after trust or embezzlement was involved.

TWO RESCUES NEAR IN CHINA WAR ZONE

British Deny That Remaining 38 Missionaries Have Been Released.

VIRGINIANS UNDER FIRE

London, July 22 (A.P.).—The release of two British women missionaries, who, with 38 American and British missionaries, have been stranded for weeks in the Chinese war zone, is expected momentarily by the Church Missionary Society. The society, however, denied that all 40 missionaries had been reached by a party of rescuers.

As far as the society is aware, none of the missionaries has actually been released yet, though reports were current here today that American and British consuls had reached them with a rescue party 100 miles up the Min River.

Officials Leave Foochow.

Advices from Peiping, China, on July 18 said that John J. Muccio, acting American consul at Foochow, had left Foochow on Friday with his British colleague to attempt to rescue the missionaries, who are isolated in an area controlled by Lung Sing-Ping, leader of rebel troops who had been threatening Foochow.

Shanghai, July 22 (A.P.).—The fate of four American missionaries, three of them women, trapped in the rebel-held city of Pochow during the recent bombardment by Nationalist forces, occupied the attention of United States consular authorities today.

The missionaires, Miss Olive Riddell, Dr. Mary King, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Strother, of the Southern Baptist Mission with headquarters at Richmond, Va., were caught in Pochow when rebellious northerners occupied it prior to the recent outbreak of civil war.

Two months ago Nationalists beseiged the city with a small force, expecting the rebels to surrender because of a food shortage. When the northerners failed to capitulate Nationalists began an artillery bombardment.

Believe Quartet Safe.

Richmond, Va., July 22 (A.P.).—Officals of the Southern Baptist Mission Board headquarters expressed the belief that the four American missionaries in Pochow, China, during the bombardment of that city have not been harmed. They stated that the board almost certainly would have been advised by other missionaries if any harm had come to the Americans.

Miss Olive Riddell, one of the missionaries, is from Dumbarton, Va. She was appointed by the Baptist board of 1929. Dr. Mary King, another of the four, is a native of Tennessee and has been serving as a missionary since 1908. G. W. Strother is a native of Louisiana, and his wife a native of Omaha, Nebr. They were appointed in 1925.

FAMILY BIRTHMARK ON BAMBERGER BABY

Evidence Tends to Disprove Theory That Children Were Mixed.

FINGERPRINTS ARE TAKEN

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—Evidence tending to disprove the theory that babies born to Mrs. Charles Bamberger and Mrs. William Watkins at Englewood Hospital June 30 may have been transposed by attaches, was disclosed at the identification inquiry today.

Members of the scientific group, after examining principals in the mixup, found that the baby given to the Bambergers has a birthmark on its heel similar to such a marking on Mr. Bamberger's heel. Two other children of the Bamberger family were found to be identically marked.

A number of nurses, experienced in the care of infants, called in to look at the youngsters, expressed confidence the babies are in their rightful homes. They pointed to a marked facial resemblance between Mrs. Watkins and the baby she now has and to a similarity in body and facial formations between Mr. Bamberger and the other child.

Finger-prints of the subjects and the four parents were taken today by Dr. Perninand Wetzek, of Vienna, world famous criminologist.

Dr. Wetzek was confident that a study of the finger-prints would establish without a doubt the identities of the babies. He said the balls of theh finger tips of a mother and her child are similar, this having been proved in the examination of 120 sets of twins.

NAVY BOARD PLANS BUILDING PROGRAM

8-inch-gun vessels the smallest number necessary for a satisfactory fleet.

The board estimates $989,460,000 must be spent from 1931 to 1936 to give the United States the maximum allowed strength. Since no destroyers have been completed since 1922, and their maximum effective age is sixteen years, the largest single item would be for this type naval vessel.

Only 3 existing destroyers would be effective until 1938, 29 until 1937, 73 until 1936, the year the treaty expires, and 179 would become obsolete before that time. To restore the destroyer strength to the alloted 150,000 tons would cost $418,500,000.

The board estimates the cost of other types of vessels as: Eight-inch cruisers, $212,500,000; 6-inch cruisers, $143,206,000; submarines, $120,241,000, and aircraft carriers, $95,013,000. These figures do not include approximately $30,000,000 Congress has been asked to appropriate for the modernization of three battleships.

UNVEILING OF SHRINE IS SET FOR TONIGHT

Ceremonies at St. Aloysius Will Open Triduum in Honor of St. Anne.

RELIC TO BE FEATURE

Ceremonies of establishing a permanent shrine in honor of St. Anne, mother of the Virgin Mary, will mark the beginning of a triduum to St. Anne in St. Aloysius' Church, North Capitol and I streets, at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The ceremonies will include the unveiling of a new marble statue of St. Anne.

The Rev. James M. Cotter, S. J., Jesuit preacher, will deliver a sermon each night of the triduum, which will close on Friday, the eve of the saint's feast day.

An authentic relic of St. Anne will be presented at the altar rail for the personal veneration of each person attending the exercises.

Members of the Catholic Church have profound faith in the intercessory powers of St. Anne and thousands from all parts of the world go annually to her shrine at Beaupre, in Canada, for the observance of her feast day, when numerous cures and remarkable answers to prayers are said to occur.

Special devotion to St. Anne is to be a permanent feature in St. Aloysius' Church with the establishment of the shrine, according to an announcement of the Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick, S. J., rector of the church.

Great Fire in Hamburg Shipyards Is Checked

Hamburg, Germany, July 22 (A.P.).—Eight fire brigades and five fire boats tonight checked a great fire that started in the Vulcan shipyards and destroyed a big storehouse. Ferry service across the Elbe River was suspended while the firebeats went into action.

A large mass of valuable finished steel and iron parts used in shipbuilding was destroyed. The blaze started after the shipyards had closed for the night. The extent of the damage and the cause have not been determined.

HAMER TAKES LEAD IN AIRPLANE DERBY

Speeds From New York to Cincinnati Without Stop to Displace Gehlbach.

LITTLE ROCK HOP TODAY

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 22 (A.P.).—Herman Hamer, Chicago, late today went into the lead in elapsed time in the $36,500 all-American derby, displacing Lee Gehlbach, of Little Rock, Ark., by winning the Roosevelt Field-Lunken airport leg of the flight around the United States.

Hamer, trailing Gehlbach by 23 minutes when the planes took off from New York this morning, piloted his E. M. Laird plane to a nonstop flight here, while his Little Rock rival was forced to stop for gasoline at Uniontown, Pa. As a result, Hamer now has an advantage of 13 minutes and 49 seconds in elapsed time over Gehlbach.

The planes stopped here overnight and will leave tomorrow at one minute intervals for Little Rock. Gehlbach said he hoped to be the first to reach his home city and regain the time he lost today.

Fight Rain and Storms.

The pilots all reported flying through strong west winds and rainstorms. Hamer said he flew alongside Gehlbach in eastern Pennsylvania, but later lost sight of him during a storm.

Detroit was the derby starting point. The plane took off there yesterday morning and jumped to Buffalo and flew to New York in the afternoon. The route will take them to Little Rock, Houston, San Angelo, Tex.; Douglas, Ariz.; Ogden, Utah; Lincoln, Nebr.; Chicago, and back to Detroit.

Hamer's time for the New York-Cincinnati leg was 5 hours, 1 minute, 46 seconds. Gehlbach required 5 hours, 39 minutes, 25 seconds.

130-Mile Average.

Third to complete the Cincinnati leg was Lowell R. Bayles, of Springfield, Mass. He landed 12 minutes after Gehlbach and held fourth position in elapsed time.

Hamer's total elapsed flying time since leaving Detroit was 8 hours, 13 minutes, 9 seconds; Gehlbach, 8 hours, 26 minutes, 58 seconds; S. T. Stanton, of Wichita, 9 hours, 13 minutes, 50 seconds; Bayles, 9 hours, 17 minutes, 28 seconds.

A 50-mile head wind cut down the contestants' time from 195 miles an hour to 130 miles an hour. Hamer's official average speed was 131.643 miles an hour; Gehlbach, 128.155; Stanton, 117.219; Bayles, 116.219.

Stanton landed fourth here. Others finished as follows:

Robert T. Quinby, of Moline, Ill.; J. R. Wedel, of New Orleans; Charles W. Meyers, of Cleveland; William A. Cahill, of Cleveland.

Air Race to Start at Brownsville.

Brownsville, Tex., July 22 (A.P.).—Designation of Brownsville as the starting point for the class B national air derby August 20 was accepted today by the city. About twenty planes with displacement of 500 cubic inches or less are expected to race to Chicago.

burg road and South Dakota avenue, taking with it the high-tension electric wires which are strung at that point. No one was injured and the only damage was that caused by snapping of the wires.

Two other trees also were blown down, one at Tenth and E streets northwest and one at Massachusetts avenue, near Fourteenth street northwest. No one was injured, but traffic was blocked temporarily until the debris was removed.

Heat Locks Bridge Span.

Heat yesterday morning locked the lift span of the Anacostia Bridge, causing suspension of river traffic for several hours until the bridge could be lifted. Expansion of the metal in the span took up the gap of several inches provided by the engineers for just such an emergency. No damage other than delay was caused.

Most Government departments were closed again yesterday afternoon because of the heat, and F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the Treasury Department, first to close, reported that "a good number" of stenographers in his department had fainted before noon.

Offices of the District Government shut down at 1 o'clock, except for employes in the tax assessor's office, who remained at their desk to receive personal tax returns, and some few others, including the Public Utilities Commission.

The rain did not do much to alleviate the water shortage in the metropolitan areas of Prince Georges and Montgomery counties, already partly relieved yesterday morning by completion of a water connection with the District supply at Chevy Chase Circle.

One Day's Supply Available.

Robert B. Morse, chief engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, stated, however, that there probably was enough water available to supply household requirements "provided consumers cooperate." There are 5,000,000 gallons, or exactly one day's supply, now available, and the inflow to the reservoir now is only 2,000,000 gallons daily, he pointed out.

(Associated Press.)

Suffering heavy casualties from rainstorms, which swept over most of the East yesterday, the armies of heat, humidity and drought took up a valiant last stand in Virginia and thereabouts after a campaign of several days that have brought suffering to nearly every part of the country.

Slowly losing out in the other heat sectors, where rain and cool breezes brought the temperatures down to normal summer averages, the torrid sun continued to beat down upon the valleys of Virginia, sending the mercury soaring above 100 for the fourth consecutive day, a temperature of 102.8 at Richmond was the hottest July day on record.

Scores of Deaths Reported.

Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut, where remnants of the wave continued to linger as the sun rose yesterday, got promised relief later in the day.

The rain was especially welcome to towns in western Maryland and Pennsylvania where the menace of water shortage and forest fires added to the discomfort.

Scores of deaths attributed directly to the heat had been chalked up in these regions in the last four days. In New York and its metropolitan area alone at least 39 fatalities occurred. Two more were reported yesterday in Virginia and four in Maryland.

Besides Virginia, other arid and humid spots were reported, but the plight of the Old Dominion State was the most pronounced.

Hope Held for Crops.

Farm crops were described yesterday by Department of Agricultural economists as far from being ruined, although they have been damaged by the drought that has spread from the Rockies to the Atlantic.

The drought's chief danger now, they said, lay in the possibility of its continuing into the critical growing stage of three great staples—spring wheat, corn and cotton.

Spring wheat was believed to have been saved from serious deterioration by an inch of rain that fell in Canada and the American Northwest just when the grain was beginning to head short and the kernels shrivel. The damage has not been entirely alleviated and additional rains are needed.

"Mercy Killer," 79, Adjudged Insane

Man Who Slew Daughter Sent to Hospital for Indefinite Period.

Walton, N. Y., July 22 (A.P.).—Declared insane by a commission of alienists who examined him yesterday, Andrew Beers, 79-year-old "mercy killer" was committed to the State hospital at Binghamton today for an indefinite period by County Judge Andrew J. McNaught.

Beers killed his mentally-blighted daughter, Frances, 27, because, as he voluntarily told police, he could not bear to see her suffer in illness and feared she might fall into unkind hands after his death. After unsuccessful use of poison in her food, he drove an ice pick into her head, using a wrench as a hammer. He then gave himself up.

Because his devotion to his daughter was well known here, most townspeople accepted his statement as absolutely true and his neighbors engaged counsel for him.

fireworks across the river, people could be heard splashing about and crying for help. Rescuers immediately launched boats, but many of the victims could not be found.

The city was thrown into consternation by the news of the disaster, which occurred shortly after 10:30 p. m. Up to midnight only seven persons had been saved. All the rest were missing or dead.

President von Hindenburg was informed of the disaster. It appears doubtful whether he will continue his program of visits in the Rhineland. He was scheduled to go on to Treves and Aix-la-Chapelle.

25 Boy Scouts Visit Capital.

Twenty-five Boy Scouts from Brockton, Mass., arrived in Washington yesterday for a week's visit during a southern tour. While in the city they expect to give President Hoover a medal. Forrest Newsom, Scout commissioner, is in charge.

CAPITAL EDITOR

ELEANOR MEDILL PATTERSON.

ELEANOR PATTERSON NEW HERALD EDITOR

Member of Chicago Family to Direct Newspaper Under Hearst Lease, Report.

IS PROMINENT IN FIELD

The title of editor-in-chief of the Washington Herald will be assumed today by a woman—Eleanor Medill Patterson, in whose veins runs the blood of three generations of outstanding journalists.

Mrs. Patterson, a prominent big-game hunter, horsewoman and social leader, is the granddaughter of Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune, and a first cousin of the late Senator Medill McCormick, whose widow now seeks his seat, and of Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune. Also she is the sister of Joseph Medill Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News and the Liberty Magazine.

It is understood that Mrs. Patterson has leased the Washington Herald from William Randolph Hearst. Negotiations to this end, it was reported, have been under way for several weeks.

A formal announcement by the Washington Herald yesterday said:

"For a long time, she (Mrs. Patterson), endeavored to purchase the Washington Herald, of which she now becomes the editor, but Hearst newspapers are not for sale.

"Mrs. Patterson will work as editor of the Herald under a regular Hearst newspaper contract."

Mrs. Patterson, who was formerly the Countess Gizycka, and who subsequently married the well-known lawyer, Elmer Schlesinger, decided, upon the death of the latter, to resume her maiden name, which is the same as that of her mother.

The task which Mrs. Patterson takes over today will not be entirely strange to her. She has long been within the scent of printer's ink, having done not only newspaper work, but having written a number of books and articles as well.

Mrs. Patterson and her family have long been known in Washington. For a time—while the White House was being repaired—her mansion at Dupont Circle was the home of President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge. It was there that they received Col. Charles Lindbergh upon his return from Paris.

FOUR LIVES TAKEN BY JERSEY CHAIR

ber, 1928, by robbers who fired through his cage and escaped with approximately $4,000.

The four condemned men all smoked as they entered the death chamber. McBrien puffed a fat cigar, smiled and shouted a cheery "O. K., boys," as Malanga and Rado said good-by.

Rado was the only one of the four who spoke as the electrodes were adjusted. He mumbled, protesting almost incoherently that he was innocent.

The crime for which they were executed caused a great stir throughout the State. Persistent detective work led to the arrest in Lackawanna, N. Y., of Andrew Selesia, Louis Malanga and Victor Giampetro. The latter two confessed the robbery but denied the shooting. They also said they took part in half a dozen other robberies.

After they were questioned a Nation-wide search was begun for Joseph Rado, Frank Oriando and McBrien. Rado was arrested in a raid at Vineland, N. J., but McBrien escaped the police net that time. A short time later he and Orlando held up a haberdashery in Chicago. Orlando trailed and was shot to death by a policeman, but again McBrien escaped.

Rado, Giampetro and Malanga were placed on trial, with Rado aiding the State. The illness of a juror caused a mistrial and Selesia, who had merely secured the bus driver's uniform which one of the robbers wore during the crime, was given an eight-month term.

Meanwhile McBrien was living in a "hideout" apartment in the Bronx with a Philadelphia woman alleged to be his wife. In December, 1929, a squad of New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia police burst through the door, dodged a volley of shots and arrested McBrien. On his arm they saw a tattooed legend: "Death Before Dishonor"

He was placed on trial with the others and convicted. All appeals failed.

Boy, 14, Maid's Slayer, Faces Murder Indictment

Morristown, N. J., July 22 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—Harry Woolsey, 14 years old, of Ridgewood, the overgrown, eccentric boy who is charged with having stabbed to death a maid employed by his parents, was indicted today on a charge of murder by the Morris County grand jury after an hour's deliberation.

The defendant is expected to plead insanity. Prosecutor Meslar, who presented the case to the grand jury, said today he would not ask the supreme penalty. The boy is alleged to have stabbed the maid, Miss Anna Miller, 20, because he "hated girls like cats" and wanted to "try out my new knife." He is charged he killed her while they were out walking on Green Pond Mountain, and tossed her body off the cliff.

Nine Drown as Boat Capsizes.

Sebastopol, U. S. S. R., July 22 (A. P.).—Nine persons were drowned today by the capsizing of a small excursion boat. The remaining 32 passengers were rescued.

122,957,000 TOTAL POPULATION LIKELY

Forecast Based on Increase Rate of States Where Census Is Complete.

BUREAU'S FIGURES CITED

(Associated Press.)

A total of about 122,957,000 people—just a few thousands under 123,000,000—probably will be shown as the population of the United States for 1930, when the final count is announced here by W. M. Steuart, director of the census.

The 1920 population was 105,710,620. Should final figures bear out the calculation, the country would show a growth of around 17,246,000 people in the ten years.

This approximate total figure has been calculated by the Associated Press on the basis of actual preliminary returns from 40 States and the District of Columbia. In these States, census supervisors have reported a total of 100,807,723 people, as against 86,667,858 ten years ago, an increase of 14,139,845, or 16.31 per cent. For the decade of 1910-20 the rate of growth was 14.9 per cent.

Approximation of Increase.

The growth of these States, comprising almost 81 per cent of the population ten years ago, forms a close approximation of the rate of growth of the Nation. On that rate, the entire country's population would be 122,957,307.

Census Bureau officials have made their own estimate of the country's population as of April 1, but refuse to divulge their figures. Their population estimating machine, which ticks off the increase in the number of people as calculated by experts from immigration statistics, births and deaths, placed the number of people in the United States on April 1 at midnight at 122,597,000.

Reports still have to come from seven States, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi and Idaho. The estimated population of those States as of January 1 this year aggregates 21,644,618. That added to the 40 other States brings an aggregate of 122,452,341 as the country's population.

Partial Result of Census.

The preliminary unofficial totals of population of the various States, as compiled from returns of supervisors through the country by the Associated Press, with the percentage of increase and the ranks of the States in 1920, follow:

Six Go on Trial In Negro's Death

Atlanta Men Are Accused of Slaying Youth for Alleged Insult.

Atlanta, Ga., July 22 (A.P.).—Six white men were called for trial in Fulton County Superior Court here today on a charge of killing Dennis Hubert, a Negro college student, who they claimed had insulted a white woman. The slaying has brought public condemnation from the Atlanta Christian Council, the Methodist ministers of Atlanta and the leading civic workers.

Soon after Hubert was killed his father's home was burned and a meeting of Negroes, called to make plans for aiding the authorities in prosecution of the slayers, was broken up with tear gas bombs which were said to have been thrown by white men.

Since then a citizens' committee, including a number of white people, has been organized to raise funds for the relief of the youth's family. Seven men charged with the slaying, Aubrey Sikes, T. F. Martin, J. G. Garvin, Tom Berryman, M. W. Harmon and Roy S. Evans, were called for trial today. The other man, known as "Pat" Wilson, has not been arrested. The court granted a severance of the cases and Martin was placed on trial first.

Kentucky Deputies Wound Man Thrice

Prisoner Tries to "Shoot It Out" When He Is Arrested.

Bowling Green, Ky., July 22 (A. P.).—James E. Wells, 50, was shot and seriously wounded today in an encounter with Sep Carnefix and Roy Moulder, deputy sheriffs, when they sought to arrest him on a warrant from Cleveland, Ohio, charging arson.

The shooting occurred in front of the home of Well's brother, Ephrain Wells, 8 miles west of here. Deputy Moulder said when they arrested Wells he remarked, "Well, they won't give me a fair trial in Cleveland, so I might as well shoot it out with you."

With that, the deputy said, Wells fired twice hiting no one. The deputies said they fired in self-defense. Wells was shot three times. Wells has a wife and two children. He came here from Cleveland two months ago. He was alleged to have set fire to his house in Cleveland.

MacDonald to Get Hearing Tuesday

Bombing Birthday Marks Meeting of Governor and Mooney Witness.

San Francisco, July 22 (A.P.).—The Nation-wide battle of Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings for pardons turned again to the California Supreme Court today, the fourteenth anniversary of the preparedness day bombing which killed ten persons and injured 40 here in 1916.

The court granted a hearing next Tuesday to John MacDonald, Baltimore night watchman, who crossed the continent to recant testimony that helped send Mooney and Billings to prison for life. MacDonald, in an affidavit in Baltimore last week, said identifications he made of Mooney and Billings at their trials were false.

MacDonald's hearing was set about two hours after he appeared before Gov. C. C. Young, to whom was presented the Baltimore affidavit. The governor said the court had assured him of an early hearing and because of this he felt it "inexpedient" to examine MacDonald personally. After listening at some length to Frank P. Walsh, Mooney's attorney, the governor refused Mooney a pardon, explaining he deemed it expedient to refer both the Mooney and Billings cases to the advisory pardon board and the State Supreme Court.

Americans and Germans Sign Film Agreement

Paris, July 22 (A.P.).—American and German motion picture and electrical interests today signed an agreement which settles differences over the use of recording and reproducing patents in the motion picture industry.

The Americans, headed by Will H. Hays, started conferring with German sound film interest in mid-June and reached an agreement July 12 which had to be submitted to the German ministry of the interior. It provided for complete interchangeability of motion pictures, sound recording and reproducing apparatus between the interests involved.

Irish Government Halts Rail Strike

Officials of Free State Bring Employers and Workers Together.

Dublin, July 22 (A.P.).—Through government intervention, a general strike ordered for midnight on the Great Southern Railway Lines, which would have paralyzed rail communication over most of the Irish Free State, was averted late today.

A settlement was reached after conference between the executives of the National Union of Railwaymen and representatives of the Great Southern Railway and the Irish Omnibus Co. Terms include the immediate reinstatement of all dismissed railway employes and recognition by the Omnibus Co. of the Bus Drivers Union affiliated with the National Union of Railwaymen.

The immediate cause of the strike threat had been the refusal of the Omnibus Co. to accept the affiliation between the drivers' and the railwaymen's unions. Six hundred railwaymen refused to handle goods consigned to the Omnibus Co. and walked out. Most were dismissed by the railway company, which is linked with the Omnibus Co.

"Dead" Colonel Held In War Pension Plot

Mexico City, July 22 (A.P.).—Col. Gabriel Vasquez, who, according to war department records, was killed in action in 1916, today was in prison charged with conspiring with his wife to pose as dead for the purpose of collecting a pension. The authorities charge that the "widow" collected about 20,000 pesos, in which Vasquez shared.

The police said they learned the wife thought her husband had been killed and applied for and received a pension. Five years later Vasquez showed up and claimed half of the pension, which, the charge states, he had been receiving from her since.

DEMOCRATS' STAND ON TREATY LAUDED

Shouse Labels Ratification Worthy Achievement During Session.

STANDPATTERS ARE HIT

(Associated Press.)

In the first statement that has been issued by the Democratic National Committee regarding the London naval treaty, JJouett Shouse said yesterday that while the fate of the treaty "at all times was in the hands of the Democrats" they had refused to make a party matter of foreign relations.

The full text of the statement by the chairman of the Democratic national executive committee follows:

"We have had, and will doubtless have more, statements claiming the ratification of the disarmament conference treaty as a great achievement of the Republican party. Recently there was issued by the Republican national committee press bureau a release to which was attached the name of Representative Temple of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee, hailing this treaty as the leading accomplishment of the Hoover administration, with the plain purpose of employing this triumph as ammunition in the coming congressional campaign.

Robinson's Leadership Praised.

"The ratification of the treaty during the special session just closed was due principally to Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority leader in the Senate, whose defense of the London covenant, in the negotiation of which he participated, was not only the best argument in favor of the treaty but one that produced the most definite effect. A not inconsiderable number of the Democratic senators were inclined to urge that consideration of the treaty be put off until after the November elections, but deferred to the view of their leader and by their attendance kept a quorum present and thereby defeated under the machinations of those who sought, under Republican leadership, to compass postponement and ultimate rejection of the treaty.

"During the whole treaty fight there has not been issued from the Democratic national secutive committee one word of opposition or one statement that might have tended to destroy the work of the London conference. There was, of course, the political temptation to give President Hoover a dose of the same medicine that the Republicans measured out to President Wilson when he negotiated a treaty; to defeat this one, and thereby demonstrate the absolute inability of the Hoover administration to function constructively. However, those directing Democratic affairs took the position that foreign relations were not legitimate questions in domestic politics, and only two Democrats voted against ratifying the treaty, as against seven Republicans—all of them but one regular stand-patters.

G. O. P. Attitude Attacked.

"It is a favorite contention of the administration spokesmen in their efforts to deprecate the charges of administration inefficiency to accuse the Democrats of being actuated merely by a desire to embarrass the President and to cause delay. This was notably so during the long period when the tariff was under consideration. It might be pertinent when these charges are repeated, as they will be when the congressmen fighting for reelection are trying to defend the administration and to show that its barrenness of helpful legislation was due to Democratic obstructionists, to recall the history of the treaty just ratified.

"The fate of this treaty at all times was in the hands of the Democrats. They could have made the special session abortive, have added to the pact reservations that would have insured its rejection by the other signatory powers, or finally have brought about its rejection. Instead, they refused to make a party matter of it even though their support gives to the Hoover administration the one achievement it can claim without provoking derisive laughter from the people of the United States."

Man Who Wounded Wife Hangs Self in Jail Cell

Punxsutawney, Pa., July 22 (A.P.).—Eugene Vilelli, 40, who escaped from the Western Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane at Dixmont to shoot his wife for rumored infidelity, hanged himself in a cell in police headquarters here today.

Vilelli shot and wounded his wife and two men companions early yesterday as they drove up to the Vilelli home at Anita, near here, where Vilelli had been awaiting his wife's return since his escape from the asylum Saturday. Letters he had received there from friends had told him of his wife's association with other men. Held in police headquarters here pending arraignment on a charge of felonious shooting, Vilelli hanged himself during the night, using his belt as a noose.

STATE RUM CONTROL IS URGED BY IOWANS

Eighth District opposing modification or repeal.

The platform also assailed the Hawley-Smoot tariff, opposed the State primary election law and a proposed State income tax, and criticized Republican farm relief measures.

The delegates filled out the party's State ticket with the nomination of E. T. Gilman, of Rock Rapids, for superintendent of public institution; F. J. Underwood, of Oskaloosa, for secretary of agriculture, and M. J. Kennelly, of Davenport, for railroad commissioner.

The prohibition plank, approved despite scattering dissent, charged that "the Republican party had failed to devise and put into operation any plan of effective enforcement." It set forth a list of alleged evils growing out of this, and asked a law "defining intoxicating beverages according to a reasonable nonintoxicating standard of alcoholic content based upon opinions of physicians and scientists."

It also asked the enactment of a law giving States the right "to forbid or restrict the sale or consumption of beverages" not prohibited by the proposed new definition of intoxicants.

Senator Daniel F. Steck, delivering the keynote address, attacked the Hawley-Smoot tariff law as unfair to agriculture. He called conditions resulting from enforcement of prohibition laws "a national disgrace" and suggested a referendum on the question of repealing the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment.

Richard F. Mitchell, of Fort Dodge, was reelected chairman of the State central committee.

HOOVER SIGNING LONDON NAVAL PACT

HOOVER SIGNS PACT CUTTING NAVY ARMS

Says London Treaty Secures Full Defense of Nation, in Statement.

GRATIFIED BY SUPPORT

tor Swanson, of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the committee.

The other three delegates of this country, Ambassadors Dawes, Morrow and Gibson, were unable to be present at the ceremony, but to them were transmitted the personal congratulations of the President at the adoption by this country of the treaty which they helped negotiate.

In signing the treaty, Mr. Hoover used the same gold pen used by the American representatives in signing the covenant at London. He was dressed in white flannel trousers and a blue double-breasted coat.

As Mr. Hoover entered the east room in which a year ago he signed the Kellogg-Briand pact for outlawing war, powerful klieg lights beat upon him and the ballroom floor was strewn with the apparatus of the talking picture operators.

Attested by Stimson.

The Chief Executive seated himself at the table and attached his signature, which was attested by Secretary Stimson, as the cameras clicked. The President then repeated a few words from his statement of the morning and shook hands with the group about him. He started to leave the room, but was halted to repeat the ceremony for the newspaper photographers.

The entire ceremony lasted less than five minutes.

Ratification of the treaty was approved by the Senate in special session after two weeks of debate.

The President in his statement today said:

"I shall have the gratification of signing the naval treaty this afternoon at 3 o'clock. It is a matter of satisfaction that this great accomplishment in international relations has at all steps been given united support of both our political parties.

"With the ratification by the other governments the treaty will translate an emotion deep in the hearts of millions of men and women into a practical fact of government and international relations.

"It will renew again the faith of the world in the moral forces of good will and patient negotiation as against the blind forces of suspicion and competitive armament. It will secure the full defense of the United States. It will mark a further long step toward lifting the burden of militarism from the backs of mankind and to speed the march forward of world peace.

Lays Future Foundation.

It will lay the foundation upon which further constructive reduction in world arms may be accomplished in the future.

"We should by this act of willingness to join with others in limiting armament, have dismissed from the mind of the world any notion that the United States entertains ideas of aggression, imperial power or exploitation of foreign nations."

Immediately after the signing of the ratification, Secretary Stimson cabled instructions to the American Embassies in Rome, Paris, Tokyo and London directing that they inform the respective foreign offices of the signature. They also were instructed to place before the foreign ministers a copy of the reservation attached by the Senate to the treaty.

The ratification instrument signed by the President will be taken to London by J. Theodore Marriner, chief of the western European division of the State Department, and the ranking diplomatic advisor at the London conference. The ratification will be deposited at the American Embassy in London until the ceremony of the formal deposit of the other signatory powers at the British foreign office.

HUSTON QUITS TOWN AS WORD IS AWAITED

The story caused a wag to remark that if the power interests want him to retire it must be unanimous.

This has reference to the fact that the agitation against Huston began with the revelation of his activities in connection with Muscle Shoals legislation.

In the anti-Huston camp it was argued that Huston will have nothing to gain by making charges against those he considers responsible for his present plight. He is a wise man, it was contended, and will withdraw quietly. By way of explaining the belated activity of his friends it is argued that they are acting without Huston's knowledge.

This may all be so, though it is doubtful. And one gets the impression that when Mr. Huston retires he will not do so as gracefully as his attackers would have him do.

Apparently there is to be no move for several days, however.

In the meantime Senator George H. Moses, chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, took the bull by the horns and called his committee together in the face of reports that the Young Turks were still after his scalp.

It is difficult to understand the purpose of the meeting unless it was just the senator's impetuous way of quieting reports that he might resign and at the same time call the Young Turks' bluff.

Agreement Is Reached.

As near as one can gather, it was a very tame meeting, although a very uncomfortable one for the Young Turks. It seems that Moses just sat and looked at the rest of the committee after it had become seated, and after a few incoherent or meaningless utterances by this senator and that one, Senator Vandenberg felt that he must say something, so he made a move that all the campaign details be left to Senator Moses and Senator Steiwer, the vice chairman of the committee.

This was most surprising, or rather it should be, because Vandenberg is one of the leaders of the Young Turks and perhaps the most outspoken one of them against Moses. It must have been that he could think of nothing else to say.

At any rate, Steiwer and Moses, as a result, found themselves at luncheon a short while later, at which time it was agreed that in the forthcoming campaign Moses should have the East and Steiwer the West, the Mississippi River to be the dividing line. This is a quite satisfactory arrangement and qute an important one, but it was agreed upon about three months ago. There is nothing new in it.

Moses Gets Best of It.

This being the case, it does not seem unlikely that Moses' only purpose in calling the meeting was to let the Young Turks air the grievances which they have been grumbling so much about. The result bears out the contention that they are mostly bluff.

Under the arrangement Moses certainly gets the best of it.

About the only contests which Steiwer will have will be those in Colorado, Montana and Oklahoma. Other Republican senators are up in Steiwer's territory, but aside from the Progressives there is no serious fight on. The Progressives have already made known that they will conduct their own campaigns.

Moses will have Illinois, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, where all of the fun is to be had.

FARM BOARD ACTION URGED BY SENATORS

Five From Wheat States Tell Legge Farmer Should Be Aided Now.

ASK FEDERAL PURCHASE

(Associated Press.)

Insistence that the Farm Board take action to increase the present price of wheat to the farmer came from senators of four wheat-growing States yesterday on the heels of Chairman Legge's statement that criticism of the board's wheat policy is mostly "political bunk."

In a conference with Chairman Legge, five senators, led by Senator Capper, of Kansas, urged the board to act to "aid the present critical situation." Something should be done, they contended, "to give the farmer a better price while the wheat is still in his hands and before it gets into the hands of speculators."

The group included Senators Capper and Allen, of Kansas; Pine, of Oklahoma; Howell, of Nebraska, and McMaster, of South Dakota.

The purchase of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat of the 1930 crop was again urged by Senator Capper. The suggestion that the Government should buy the wheat and thus relieve the market situation and either sell or give the grain to China or India was made by the other senators.

M'DONALD PLEASED BY SENATE ACTION

Prmie Minister Calls Peace Greatest Cause Before World Today.

PACT IS HELD ONE STAGE

London, July 22 (A.P.).—Belief that peace is the greates' cause before the world today was expressed by Prime Minister MacDonald at the concluding sessions of the Interparliamentary Union conference in the gallery of the House of Lords.

"Until we come into personal contact, until we have looked each other in the eyes, until we have sat down side by side at a common meal, until we have discussed our national literature, science and arts, we will never be the type of citizen who understands others and has no suspicion in his heart about them," said the prime minister, pleading for effective intern"ional disarmament.

He expressed keenest pleasure at the action of the United States Senate in ratifying the London naval treaty, adding, "If we are going to have disarmament it can only be effective by international agreement, carrying disarmament stage after stage until the job is finished and very often in the course of it there will be disappointments."

Duke Tendered Sympathy.

He voiced the sympathy of the conference for the chairman, the Duke of Sutherland, whose sister, Lady Ednam, was one of the victims of yesterday's Kent airplane crash, in which six persons were killed.

Earlier in the day, the conference was occupied with a discussion of the problem of national minorities, M. Studer, of Switzerland, said the entire world is vitally concerned with the protection of minorities, because the peace of the world depends largely on its settlement.

At the conclusion of the session all the delegates were guests of the government at a banquet given in Lancaster House, where the lord chancellor presided.

U. S. Delegates Visit Premier.

American delegates, headed by Representative Andrew Jackson Montague, of Virginia, called today at No. 10 Downing street and were received by Prime Minister MacDonald.

The visitors remained for some time, going through the several interesting rooms before leaving for the royal gallery of the House of Lords, where their sessions are held.

36 Nurses Attacked By Ptomaine Recover

New York, July 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—All of the 36 nurses at Willard Parket Hospital, who were stricken suddenly Monday afternoon and evening after eating a veal salad, were entirely recovered today and had returned to duty, it was stated at the hospital tonight.

The veal in the salad was left over from the Sunday meal and was believed to have become slightly tainted from the heat. It was used in the salad served at lunch Monday and all the nurses who ate any of it complained of severe stomach pains several hours later. Dr. Dora M. Talle, superintendent of the hospital, ordered the nurses treated for ptomaine poisoning.

FIGHT ON MERGER PIVOTS ON PROXIES

Attorneys for C. S. Eaton Call Witnesses to Balk Steel Combine.

FINANCING IS DESCRIBED

Youngstown, Ohio, July 22 (A.P.).—Stock proxies—how they were voted and by whom—became the chief concern today of attorneys in the suit of the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to halt sale of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. to Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The attack of the Eaton attorneys on the proxies, which were voted to ratify the merger last April 8, began toward the close of the day, with Miss Dora Hill, deputy clerk in the Probate Court of Lake County, Ohio, on the stand.

Two trunks full of documentary evidence, waiting outside the courtroom, indicated inquisition into the legality of the proxies may last several days.

Court Records Produced.

Miss Hill was called to bring court records in the estate of Harry Coulby, former director of the Youngstown Company. Stock belonging to the estate, 4,200 shares, was voted for the merger by H. G. Dalton, one of the executors of the Coulby will and a director of Sheet & Tube.

The Eaton attorneys had three other witnesses on the stand during the day. They are George O. May, senior partner of Price, Waterhouse Co., auditors, who prepared the report upon which a merger contract was drawn; R. E. McMath, financial vice president and secretary of the Bethlehem corporation, and F. P. Sheppard, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York.

Excused to Get Evidence.

May's testimony was cut short because he did not have with him the material from which the report of his firm was prepared. He left the stand promising to bring the material into court later.

McMath was questioned about stock transactions and about $800,000 which the Bethlehem Corporation loaned to Pickands, Mather & Co., Cleveland ore firm, without security. He acknowledged that he knew by inference the money was to be used for the purchase of Youngstown Company stock, but denied that he or President Eugene G. Grace, of Bethlehem, ever attempted to form a pool to purchase stock.

Sheppard's testimony was technical. He explained the working of a syndicate formed to dispose of 800,000 shares of Bethlehem stock which had been underwritten by his banking firm. It was previously testified that Cyrus S. Eaton asked to buy a large block of this issue.

Financial Firms Inolved.

Sheppard said approximately 80 banks and financial firms participated in the syndicate, and that the syndicate manager, the Guaranty Co., bought stock on its own responsibility to support the market. Later, the original underwriters were forced to step in and support the market further, he testified.

The Guaranty Co., he said, purchased 80,000 shares and later prorated it. The syndicate was extended to January 21, he said, and dissolved with but 287,000 shares subscribed. Of this, he stated, 40 per cent was taken by the syndicate members and the remainder reverted to the original underwriters.

"The original underwriters were compelled to take 318,588 shares in addition to those purchased, to support the market," he said. He added that operation of the syndicate to support the market ended on December 3.

Chicago Lawyer Blames Prohibition for Crime

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney, blamed the prohibition laws as the root of crime and lawlessness in a discussion today before the executive committee of the Chicago Church Federation.

The district attorney told the churchmen that one of the biggest handicaps confronting authorities was the "seal of silence" placed on the lips of witnesses through fear of their lives should they testify against the criminals. He also said the lack of interest of the public in civic matters and elections made it easier for the criminal.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 22 (A.P.).—The submarine V-5, the latest addition to the United States Navy's undersea fleet and one of the largest in the world, today left the Portsmouth Navy Yard for her builder's trials off Provincetown, Mass. She has a crew of about 85 officers and men.

After the trials the craft will go to Annapolis for inspection by Navy officials and members of Congress. She will then leave for a cruise in South American waters.

MAYOR CHARLES BOWLES.

DETROIT DECLARES FOR MAYOR RECALL

of U. S. Senator James Couzens, who had opposed Bowles when the latter sought to raise fares and had attacked the method of awarding insurance contracts.

While Mayor Bowles was in Louisville last May 17, attending the Kentucky Derby, Commissioner Emmons ordered raids on race betting establishments in which nearly 300 arrests were made. The mayor returned to Detroit and fired Emmons, thereby precipitating the recall move which culminated today in a special election to decide whether Mayor Bowles shall continue in office.

Friends of the mayor have declared that Commissioner Emmons "double-crossed" his chief in ordering the raids while the mayor was atending a horse race, and Mayor Bowles stated that he had intended to discharge Emmons for failure to enforce gambling laws and "fired him in spite of rather than because of" the raids on derby day.

More than 110,000 signatures were obtained for the recall petition, and more than the necessary 90,000 were declared valid by the election commission. The Michigan Supreme Court ruled that the election must be held. The election campaign began two weeks ago after the mayor's supporters had exhausted all means of preventing the vote.

The campaign, conducted almost entirely by addresses over local radio stations, was the most intensive and bitter ever fought here. Robert Oakman, aged millionaire politician and supporter of Mr. Bowles in the election last fall, has been a leader in the present attack on the mayor. John Gillespie, political enemy of Oakman in elections of ten and twenty years ago, whose appointment as commissioner of public works is said to have turned Oakman against the mayor, has been generalissimo of the Bowles forces.

Recall sponsors repeatedly charged that "sinister influences" control the mayor and urged the recall as the only metrod of "restoring good government."

Mayor Bowles declared that the re- Detroit News and Free Press." He call move is a "conspiracy led by the said today's vote would decide "whether the press or the people shall rule."

AMTORG OFFICIALS AVERSE TO POLITICS

Fish Committee Forced to Remind Bogdanov of Its Red Probe Power.

AID PLEADS IGNORANCE

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—The president and vice president of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, which spends more than $100,000,000 in the United States every year, testified today that although Amtorg, an American corporation, was directed by the Soviet government, it took no part in Communistic or other political activities.

In fact, Peter A. Bogdanov, the president, was so averse even to talking about politics that he could only be prodded into answering certain questions with the intimation that if he continued to refuse he would be considered in contempt of the special congressional committee questioning him.

John Ohsol, Amtorg vice president, who was the other witness of the day before the committee investigating Communistic activities, was ready enough to talk, but his profession of irgnorance concerning many of the questions brought repeated remonstrance from Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., chairman.

Bogdanov said he had been engaged in revolutionary and Communistic activities for many years.

Ohsol testified Amtorg had no connection with the Communists and was purely a trade organization. Questioned about the O. G. P. U., he said he had heard of it and believed the letters to mean State political administration, but did not know that it comprised the secret political police force of the Soviet. He said he knew no one connected with the O. G. P. U. and never heard of an American branch.

"Do you know a man named Gordon?" Representative Fish asked. "Wasn't he head of the art department of Amtorg? Wasn't he the head of the O. G. P. U. here, and didn't he leave this country when this investigation was to be begun?"

Ohsol said he know Gordon, but didn't know he was connected with the O. G. P. U., or whether he was in the country or not now. Amtorg counsel offered the information that Gordon had left the country six weeks ago.

"I know that," Fish replied. "Every one who has studied the records knows it. The witness knows it. I'm just trying to get him to admit it. If he, a vice president and director of the company, doesn't know when the head of an important department leaves the country it is fair to assume that he doesn't know much about the company and it is a waste of time to question him further."

Archduke Leopold Posts $7,500 and Quits Prison

100-Degree Jail Temperature Shakes Resolve of Hapsburg Scion, Facing Larceny Trial in Sale of Archduchess Therese's Necklace; Quiz Ordered.

New York, July 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The heat wave today drove Archduke eopold of Hapsburg out of his temporary fortress, the Tombs.

The confining atmosphere of the jail, where the thermometer has threatened 100 degrees for several days, was the immediate cause of the archduke's decision to leave his cell by posting $7,500 bond and return to the citadels of New York's society.

His decision has been pending since before the heat wave, though, when he first was informed that trial of an indictment returned against him in April would not be hastened by the psychological influence upon the court of an archduke being in jail. Voluntarily he entered the Tombs seventeen days ago, ignoring an opportunity to retain his freedom by posting a $7,500 bond.

District Attorney Crain informed the archduke yesterday that trial of the case which has grown out of the sale of a necklace belonging to the archduke's great-aunt, the Archduchess Maria Theresa of Vienna, could not possibly begin before October because of the absence of two important witnesses in Europe.

The archduke was offered a way out of his self-elected stronghold, the Tombs, last week when the heat wave was beginning, by an attorney. The archduke said the attorney offered to use his "influence" to rid the Austrian nobleman of the grand larceny case in a week's time.

"He told me of his influence with District Attorney Crain and his staff and said he could get me released and my case disposed of inside of a week," the archduke said. "I refused his services. This conversation took place in the presence of Mrs. Alica Coburn."

As a result of the archduk's statements, Judge Rosalsky ordered Assistant District Attorney Maloney to begin an investigation and the archduke was invited to the district attorney's office to make out an affidavit corroborating his charges. Then he left in company of his attorney, Jacob Gilman, and Mrs. Coburn, a resident of Sutton place, who has been his daily visitor at the Tombs.

The affidavit stated that a man named K. Stefan Pomierski wrote the archduke last week suggesting he see the attorney about leaving the Tombs. Pomierski, found in offices on Wall street, said the archduke answered his letter saying he would like to see the attorney about some "other business."

BUY IN WASHINGTON PLAN GAINING FAVOR

Shell Oil Co. Joins Group Pledged to Have Their Needs Supplied Here.

CITE FURTHER PROGRESS

Members of the executive committee of the Buy in Washington Council, at their weekly luncheon meeting held yesterday in the Hotel Powhatan, expressed pleasure at the report of a special committee to the effect that the Shell Oil Co. representatives in Washington had given assurances of sympathy and cooperation with the council's plan to have all building jobs in the Capital done by Washington firms.

Called to order by E. J. Murphy, who presided, the members, in rouhd table discussion, also heard reports of progress by the same committee with regard to securing promise of similar cooperation from another large oil firm with extensive holdings in the Capital.

The executive committee felt that these two reports represent concrete results accomplished by the council's efforts and regarded them as indicative of what can be done generally toward realization of the council's aim, which is to have Washington's needs supplied in Washington.

The next luncheon meeting of the executive committee will be held at the Willard Hotel next Tuesday.

TARIFF SUBTERFUGE.

Representative William R. Wood's analysis of "the Democratic state of mind" with respect to the tariff reveals that he is a very astute observer. That part of the public which gives only casual attention to party declarations and national issues is certainly in a quandary on this subject. Do the Democrats really believe in protection for the American producer, as they pretended to in the 1928 presidential campaign, or don't they?

Two years ago when the Democrats were seeking votes for Al Smith they let it be understood that the so-called "protected interests" had nothing to fear from them. They read public sentiment accurately, and sought victory by stealing the Republicans' thunder. But the Houston platform was craftily worded, preserving an escape clause through which the Democrats could dodge back to their traditional free-trade policy after the election. That escape clause, as Mr. Wood points out, was contained in the words "effective competition." It is not difficult to see that "effective competition" from abroad would destroy protection and force American workers to compete with the cheap labor of Europe.

When the Democratic attempt to ride into power on this pretense failed, the party disclosed its real position against tariff protection. Debates in Congress are rich in such adjectives as "odious," "monstrous," "iniquitous," and everything opprobrious that Democratic tongues could twist around the tariff bill. In newspaper phraseology it was just a rehash of what Democratic orators have been saying about the protective tariff principle for a century. "We did not ask them," Mr. Wood says, "to dissemble their love for a great American principle, but why did they try to kick it downstairs?"

There can be no doubt, however, that a good many Democrats in Congress believe in a protective tariff for their own States. But, in the language of the Indiana representative, "they still regard it as a local issue, so far as their personal political fortunes are concerned, and a national issue only to the extent that they can get by in national campaigns with their old familiar cry, voiced always when a tariff bill is in the making, that stark disaster and ruin await the country just around the corner."

They believe in protection for their home States and for products in which they and their friends happen to be interested. Some unfortunate myopic condition inherited by the party prevents its members from seeing that if a policy of protection is good for their own State it must be good for the States represented by other members of Congress and, therefore, good for the Nation as a whole. But the Democrats refuse to go that far.

Their attitude in the coming campaign will no doubt be one of rabid assault upon the "billion dollar Republican tariff." All the false pretexts with which the Democratic tariff policy was disguised in 1928 have been dropped. Having made certain that their own States will not suffer through lack of protection, they voted against the "monstrous" bill, and are now prepared to "expose" its "perfidies."

The Democrats deserve some credit for throwing off their mask of pretense. Now that they are back in their usual role the people will be able to judge their economic sophistry for what it is worth. But with conditions gradually improving under the new tariff law they may have to change their tactics again before the next presidential campaign gets under way.

EVIDENCES OF RECOVERY.

Statistical studies of the position of business and forecasts of the future are generally becoming more optimistic. A New York investment banking house this week pointed out that call money rates have declined from 20 per cent in March, 1929, to 1½ per cent; that the composite price of 74 commodities has declined from a relative figure of 150.3 in July, 1929, to 124.2 in July, 1930. These factors, says the report, together with an abundance of labor, "provide a foundation for general improvement in both business and the security market. Supplementing this, crop harvesting and distribution between now and Thanksgiving, representing one-sixth of the total volume of business of every description done annually in the country, provide a situation where business is practically bound to improve."

A similarly optimistic report appears in the monthly review issued by the Bank of North America. "The marketing of crops and usual seasonal demands," it says, "ordinarily bring about an increase in business activity in the autumn months and there is no reason to believe that this autumn will be an exception to the general rule." The review adds that although commodity prices may not yet be at rock bottom, a price level eventually is reached where essential goods begin to move readily into consuming channels. The present low level of stocks of goods in consumers' hands, it says, should result in demand at the first sign of returning activity.

These statements may be taken for what they are worth. The man in the street sees tangible evidences of returning prosperity on all sides. His income remains at about the figure of last year. His job is as secure as it ever has been, and his company or his business is not fighting for its existence. He sees men at work on the streets and on houses and stores. He is surrounded by the usual crowds when he goes to the movies. He is coming to believe that depression is largely a state of mind, and when the average man comes to believe that, the biggest battle for the return of prosperity has been won.

AIRPLANE EXPLOSIONS.

The collapse or "explosion" of an airplane near Kent, England, is strikingly similar to the accident that befell a plane in Texas a week ago. In both instances all the passengers were killed. In both instances the plane was proceeding normally when, suddenly and apparently without cause, it disintegrated. In the Texas accident the theory was advanced that the plane had been struck by lightning, but the wreckage was uncharred. The English plane is said to have exploded but, again, there were no marks of fire left on the wreckage.

In the early days of aviation it was not uncommon for a plane to come apart in the air. Aircraft fabricators were artisans; they had little or no knowledge of aerodynamics, and they fabricated planes not to meet known stresses but largely by guesswork. Today, however, aircraft are manufactured with precision tools to meet stresses that are accurately predetermined. There is no more excuse for an airplane to come apart in the air than there would be for an automobile to disintegrate on the road. For this reason, reports of airplanes "exploding" are subject to doubt.

It may be, of course, that certain meteorological phenomena in which nature creates a vacuum in a comparatively tiny spot cause these mysterious accidents. That such phenomena have not been recorded does not mean that they do not exist. At any rate, the disintegration of the plane near Kent and in Texas and the other recent accidents that have not been satisfactorily explained challenge the industry to discover their cause and work out means for their prevention.

COMMUNIST INTRIGUE.

The congressional investigation into communism is bringing out some valuable information. Many who opposed the probe on the ground that the communists are a harmless lot in this country have had their eyes opened. The committee has wisely paid little attention to those who lead red parades, but has delved into the question of subsidies given the American organization by the conspirators of Moscow. The committee has given particular attention also to strikes fomented by the communists.

Charles G. Wood, commissioner of conciliation for the Department of Labor, gave evidence of strikes brought about in many parts of the country by communist agents. Large sums of money have been raised under the false pretense of using it for the advantage of American workmen. These funds have been spent in the interests of world revolution. Strikes have been called for the sole purpose of fostering revolutionary movements, with no regard for the welfare of workers. Bolshevism has nothing in common with American labor. Its hope is to destroy the labor market and overturn the whole economic structure. Thousands of American citizens have been swindled, and hundreds of workers have been induced by swindlers to act against their own interests.

Grover Whalen, former police commissioner of New York, and investigating officers have given the committee valuable information as to the connecting link between Moscow and the communist organization in this country. This evidence is now substantiated by George Bessedowsky, former Soviet minister at Paris. He refers to the Amtorg Trading Corporation, which purports to represent Russian commercial interests in the United States, as a diplomatic agency. The Communist party here, according to his information, receives $100,000 annually from Moscow to finance the work of destroying capitalism, and two systems of spies are maintained to ferret out military secrets and keep the communists supplied with information which may be used in promoting disorder and bloodshed.

The committee ought to search to the bottom of these charges. The United States can not tolerate spies of an inimical government within its borders. There is no reason why the Government should remain inactive when gullible citizens are being swindled out of money and funds are being used to provoke strikes and riots. Exposure of these communist tactics should reduce the contributions to the cause from American sources, but some official action will probably be necessary to end the espionage and propaganda that comes directly from Moscow.

CORN IN PLACE OF WHEAT.

On Friday, July 25, the Department of Agriculture will hold a hearing on the subject of the necessity for labeling prepared food products to show the presence of corn sugar. Present practice under the administration of the food and drugs act requires that the presence of sugar other than cane or beet sugars (sucrose) be indicated on the label. Use of cane and beet sugar need not be indicated. Because of this requirement, the housewife seems to think corn sugar is an inferior product. Extension of the use of corn sugar has been hindered by the distinction that is drawn between it and other sugars.

Commercial corn sugar is a relatively new product, the problem of crystallizing the latent sugar in corn not having been fully solved until 1923. The process has been developed until it is now possible to remove from a 56-pound bushel of corn almost half its weight in sugar. At present about 130,000,000 pounds of refined corn sugar are produced annually, and last year the industry reduced some 86,000,000 bushels of corn. Corn sugar can be produced cheaply; it compares favorably in sweetening value with any other sugar, and it is an eminently wholesome and satisfactory food product. The American people today consume quantities of it in confections, ice cream, baked goods and meat food products, no declaration of its presence in such products being required under the food and drugs act.

The inquiry to be conducted by the Secretary of Agriculture as to the necessity for requiring label declaration of corn sugar content in prepared food products is of importance because of the effect it may have on farm relief. If wheat acreage is to be reduced, other agricultural commodities may develop surpluses, and the farm problem would be merely shifted from wheat to another crop. Corn sugar manufacturers, however, claim that if declaration of corn sugar content in prepared food products is not required they can extend their markets considerably. If they can prove satisfactorily that the qualifying requirement should be withdrawn the way will be opened for increased consumption of a native farm product that can be grown instead of wheat.

Despite the slump, sales of golf equipment are at record levels. Certainly! People must have the necessities of life.

The general counsel of the Washington Credit Bureau speaks on the subject "wives' bills." As though that subject hadn't been exhausted long ago.

Army doctors no longer may prescribe liquor to civilian patients. Does this mean that those who are acquainted with Army doctors have been overlooking a good thing all this time?

LORD AGAINST LADY

From the Boston Transcript.

It was Lord Birkenhead versus Lord Astor—and Lady Astor—when the House of Lords took up yesterday the question whether peeresses in their own right—that is to say, women who hold a peerage in default of a male heir or by "special remainder"—may sit in the upper house. There are some 20 or 22 such peeresses. Lord Astor was for admitting them. He is a nobleman of American extraction who is perhaps not so famous as his wife, also an American by origin, who sits in the House of Commons for Plymouth, and who has probably done more to promote the animation of debate and general political vigilance than any other living member of that body. She is, so to speak, the leading member of the Astor sketch. In his argument for women's presence among the Lords, Lord Astor might be supposed—though he said nothing about her—to be presenting his brilliant wife as exhibit No. 1. Well and good; but after his soundly commonplace speech there rose Lord Birkenhead, turned the tables on Lord Astor by remarking that he could not see that women had "so greatly improved the tribunals to which they already belong." A palpable hit at Nancy from Virginia! And it so delighted the noble lords ranged about that they proceeded to vote down, by 53 to 49, the proposition to seat the peeresses.

It was certainly a great pity that Lady Astor was not present in the Lords. She certainly would not have been silent under the taunt, as her inoffensive husband was. She might have reminded the representatives of the long-lined nobility of the days when Lord Birkenhead, then plain Frederick Smith, and known for his impetuosity as "Galloping Smith," had the luck to queer every cause that he advocated. She might have hinted pointedly that Lord Birkenhead is himself a sort of male Nancy Astor, more celebrated for his tongue than for his discretion. She might have pointed out that, if his scorn of her was due to her American origin, this attitude on his part may have been caused by American resentment of his bad manners in coming here once and at the Williamstown Institute sharply advising the Americans to mind their own business, and not insert their fingers in British pies. And she still has an opportunity, which is very much to the point, to remind Lord Birkenhead that his sarcastic response to Lord Astor was followed by a decision in which a change of three votes only would have admitted the peeresses. As a matter of fact, the Lords' action was probably a Pyrrhic victory for conservatism, as not half the house was present, and the Commons, where Nancy Astor is present, really has the last word to say as to what persons shall constitute the House of Lords and what its powers shall be—if any.

At all events, the interests of women in British politics may be regarded as furthered, not retarded, by the Birkenhead slur at Lady Astor. The position of women is distinctly helped by the fact that this woman, as a commoner, has a much greater influence in British affairs than either her husband or the Earl of Birkenhead himself has as a member of the House of Lords.

Ohio State Journal: We bet the same fellow who originated the humorous term "painless dentist," also invented the expression, "easy payments."

Troublesome Changes.

Edina Sentinel: Women quit wearing corsets and thousands of people engaged in making them lost their jobs; they went to wearing silk hosiery, wrecked the cotton hose industry, and threw tens of thousands out of work; they bobbed their hair, and ruined the hairpin manufacturers; they cut short their dresses and their bathing suits abbreviated—but what's the use? Pretty soon there will be nothing left and we can all quit work. Not to lay it all on them, enough young men quit wearing hats until the other day 40,000 laborers were put out of work on their account.

RECREATION AND INJURY.

While we have no mean desire to spoil any one's fun, observes the Detroit Free Press, we call attention at the summer holiday season to statistics based on claims filed with an insurance company for vacation injuries, indicating that some games not commonly so regarded are potentially dangerous. Of 4,400 claims considered by the company, baseball was responsible for injury to 807 persons. Five hundred and sixty-two were hurt while swimming, and "friendly scuffling" brought harm to 287 individuals. Other recreations, in order of the damage with which they are credited, were bowling, tennis, fireworks, hunting and golf. Ping-pong is safest of all, having caused only three injuries. We presume that tiddledywinks and anagrams, since they were not listed at all, created no casualties, unless some of the "friendly scuffling" arose from disagreements over these diversions. Of course, one takes the chance anywhere of being hurt, but it is as well to know in advance the harmful possibilities of various forms of sport, and govern one's choice accordingly.

THE IMPOSSIBLE.

He never looked for angels here,
Or asked that miracles be done;
With open eyes and judgment clear,
He faced the course that life must run.

The need for kindness and for good,
For patience and for pity, too;
Upon this earth he understood,
He asked no more than men can do.

He saw men weary and grow pale,
He saw them suffer scorn and blame;
He knew the best is apt to fail,
The worst his foothold to reclaim.

He met his trials open-eyed,
And bore his burdens best he could;
He knew that every man is tried
And all must cope with bad and good.

He kept the faith with all he knew,
Was quick to help and slow to sneer;
Though puzzled oft by things men do
He never looked for angels here.

A Well-Fed Cow Will Go Dry If You Quit Milking Her.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICANS are crowd followers—fad addicts.

Whether the interest of the moment is ping pong or patriotism, adenoids or gambling, real estate or tonsils, teeth or bridge, reform or hard times, "everybody" follows the crowd and adopts the crowd's opinion.

As an inevitable result, the sense of values is lost, calm reason gives way to herd influence, and the faith or fancy of the moment assumes an importance that it doesn't in fact possess.

Thus it is that talk of prosperity, if long continued, gives everybody a false sense of financial security and prompts the poorest to assume unreasonable debts in the foolish belief that they are growing rich as they further impoverish themselves.

And thus it is that the cry of hard times, too often repeated, develops a feeling of depression not justified by the facts and prompts a fear of poverty that is mistaken for poverty itself.

We feel richest while carelessly making ourselves poorer, and feel poorest while fearfully hoarding pennies to make ourselves richer.

This fear of poverty and this unnecessary hoarding of money combine to produce hard times, so that by imagining ill fortune and cravenly surrendering to it we actually bring it to pass.

Since prosperity is a matter of exchanging goods, and the butcher can buy more bread when the baker buys more meat, we make good times when we have confidence enough to buy and make bad times when we lose courage and quit buying.

Our "hard times" of today are self-made, and could be unmade tomorrow if everybody would resume buying; but the crowd feeling has us hypnotized and we believe only the prophets of evil.

The prophets tell us the high tariff will cause Europe to quit buying American goods and we believe it because everything gloomy is part of the present fad.

Yet a logical child would say: "Did Europe formerly buy from us because she loved us, or because she needed our goods? If love was her motive, then her present resentment may cause her to stop buying. But the only love that animates business is love of money; and since Europe still needs our goods, the pique of a few can not change the buying habits of the many. If men will trade with the enemy in time of war, they will not sacrifice profit to sentiment in time of peace."

The simple truth is that America's incalculable wealth and her enormous producing and consuming ability are now as they were a year ago, and the markets of the world still seek bargains now as then, so that our "hard times" are wholly psychological, as our prosperity was when everybody felt rich, and good times will come again when the crowd is ready for another fad.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE KIDDIES' SUMMER KAMP.

One of America's big industries today is the summer camp for children. All over the land the kiddie-camps have sprung up, and today parents who look after their own children are considered old-fashioned or financially embarrassed.

• • • •

The summer camp has become a rage like the miniature golf courses, beach pajamas and eighteen-day diets. Its chief purpose is supposedly to give the kiddies a regulated vacation, but it owes its success to the grand rest mommer and popper get while the children are away.

• • • •

Sending Junior and Sister to some country relative's place for a vacation was all right, but parents could never tell what moment they would be sent back. When they ship the kids to a modern summer camp it's for a specified sentence and no return privileges.

• • • •

The summer camp costs plenty. But it's worth it to the parents.

• • • •

They get a great opportunity to go out and have a little fun themselves. It's a chance to catch up on deferred entertainment. They can go to the theater without any misgivings about anything happening to the children, and when they get in at 2 a. m., from the bridge party they can make all the noise they wish, even to slamming the ice-box door.

• • • •

The lid is off so far as apprehension over the young folks is concerned. Ma and Pa go to that week-end party with a light heart and a carefree mind. They know that Junior is away up at Kamp Kineocussett where every move is supervised by paid specialists and that about the worst that can happen to him is a touch of ptomaine-poisoning, snake bite or immersion.

• • • •

Incidentally, they secretly hope that the camp instructors are just a little hard-boiled and will rid Junior of that habit of talking back, refusing to obey orders and playfully throwing cobblestones at his elders.

They also hope rather vagusly that he can be made to wash behind the ears.

• • • •

After a time, of course, Junior will return. He will be in pretty terrible shape. His scalp will have been shaved to dress a wound sustained diving into a shallow pond, one finger will have been amputated as a result of fooling with a live lobster and he will be on crutches because of a fall down a well.

• • • •

But mother and father will be in the pink. The Boys Summer Camp will have been wonderful for them.

THE GRAD'S LAMENT.

One month ago in cap and gown
An aisle I proudly swaggered down
To get the coveted degree
My university handed me.

"Today, my son, you're leaving here
Prepared through life a course to steer,"
The prexy said and added, too,
"The world is beckoning to you."

His words they thrilled me greatly and
I saw Success stretch forth a hand;
But now his words have lost their charm—
I'm pitching hay back on the farm!

Good Music in Demand.

Public Ledger: All over the broad land the campaign goes on to put good music in its place, which is not the cultured confines of the concert hall but the hearts of al' plain people who enjoy what is good whenever they can get it. There are very many of them, and they are thronging the outdoor concert halls all over America and asking for more. The day seems near when no city will consider itself finished until it has its open-air theater, where the music of the spheres and the music of the mortal man may be heard in harmony on a summer evening.

Young Americans Still Baseball Fans, Even When They Take Up Other Sports—Baseball the Grand National Game.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Baseball has, as a sport for schoolboys, passed its period of greatest interest, and is now being supplanted by several other forms of athletic and social entertainment," says James A. Michener, Pottstown, Pa., High School coach, in an article in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Coach Michener's idea is shared by a good many others. I think a brief consideration of the circumstances will come near to showing that it is not quite correct. At least, conditions in Washington and the surrounding country favor this conclusion.

What helps to mislead those who talk about Young America's loss of interest in baseball is the fact that a number of sports which were not very much in evidence a few years ago have now become popular.

These sports, especially tennis and golf, attract a great many players not specially fitted for the diamond, either physically or, in some cases, by inclination. Conspicuously active at all hours of the day, these, in the eyes of the passing crowd, are apt to be given undue importance in comparison with the national game. No matter what their specialty may be, however, all of them are baseball fans, while the baseball-minded kids who actively follow the sport are apparently quite as numerous as in the good old days.

Baseball is rightly called the national game; for it is essentially American—full of pep and thrills and not too long drawn out.

In the development of the player it calls for activity of all parts of the body, quickness of the eye and mental alertness. In its discipline there is the groundwork of good citizenship.

The fact that other sports are beginning to have a large part in the making of our young manhood is encouraging. But it would be a distinct and grievous loss to the country if baseball should be supplanted by them.

Music Amidst Gorgeous Paintings Enjoyed at Antwerp by a Washingtonian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just returned from the exposition at Antwerp, and I want to pass on through your columns, if I may, to those of your readers who have enjoyed the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge concerts, the description of a concert at Antwerp.

Wanda Landowski, who thrilled her audience in Washington, perhaps three years ago, gave a harpsichord recital. As she did three years ago, today she wore a quaint gown of green cloth. I am sure this is sufficient to recall her classically beautiful appearance.

Now, place that sweet-smiling genius in this setting; A glass-roofed hall, the walls covered with red, and the room filled with the priceless works of Rubens and Van Dyck! Landowski sat immediately under that marvel of the ages, Rubens' "The Virgin Surrounded by Saints," a canvas which, I suppose, is 20 feet high. Can one hope for or imagine a more exquisite blending of the arts?

In closing, let me repeat today an act of acknowledgment of gratitude, in which I know hundreds will join, for the inestimable blessing of choice music which Mrs. Coolidge has given to Washington. J. H. B.

Senators Should Not Slur Washington—Other Places Register Greater Heat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Moses wound up a speech the other day by referring to the intolerable heat of Washington. Other senators, irked, no doubt, by being called to perform their simple duty in an extra session, have vented their spleen on the Washington weather. These insinuations are circulated throughout the country to Washington's disadvantage. I would like to register my protest.

It's no warmer in Washington than it is almost everywhere else in the United States. The country has been experiencing a heat wave; Washington is not alone affected. Old residents know that this is a splendid city in which to live throughout the year. Washingtonians resent unwarranted senatorial slurs upon their city.

Senators ought to be glad to be able to be in Washington during heat waves. If they were home they would not have nice artificially refrigerated rooms in which to labor.

Nonswimming Bathers Should Learn How to Float as a Precaution Against Drowning.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because of the hot spell in which the entire Nation is grasped, many persons will seek relief at the beaches. Those who are unable to swim are apt to get beyond their depth, where they or their would-be rescuers may be drowned.

Floating is a simple matter, and all persons who enter any body of deep water should learn how to float. It is easier than learning how to swim. It is a matter of practice. Let each bather make up his mind to learn how to float. He will probably save his life by this means. R. S. K.

Suggests 100 Per Cent Duty on Soviet Imports.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the recent importation of Russian coal and lumber to the great damage of our own industries, would it not be feasible to pass a law imposing, say, 100 per cent duty ad valorem on American value on merchandise coming from countries which confiscate private property without adequate compensation and which compel workmen to work at wages unreasonably below those in adjacent countries? FRANK MORRISON.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Senators Rush Out of Town On Vacations

Exodus Commences as Soon as Treaty Is Ratified.

THE exodus of senators began yesterday. Like a flock of blackbirds they hurried out of town on every train following ratification of the naval treaty, summer plans in front of them, a pleased President behind them and a cooling rain to lessen the temperature and speed them on their way. With the close of the session Senator Smoot's honeymoon in the White House ended and, with his bride, he is leaving tomorrow for his home in Salt Lake. They will start immediately upon their interrupted honeymoon journey to California and the Hawaiian Islands. Also leaving for California is Senator Shortridge, who started yesterday on the long journey to San Francisco where he maintains his summer office. The Shortridge home is in Menlo Park where the remainder of the summer will be passed.

Hurrying out of town on Tuesday, Senator Lawrence C. Phipps also embarked upon the Western trek, and will join Mrs. Phipps in Denver where they plan to stay during a great part of the season. Senator and Mrs. Phipps have crossed the continent many times during the senator's long term of office, as Mrs. Phipps' affection for California is nearly as great as for Colorado, and they pass much of their time in the farther reaches of the Golden West.

Senator Vandenberg also left yesterday for Grand Rapids to join Mrs. Vandenberg and their daughters. Their summer plans are indefinite, but revolve about cool motor trips into the northern pines and visits to Michigan's lovely lake region.

In Wawbasha, Minn., will gather a quartet of senators, within the next few days, who represent the senatorial contingent of the committee for wild life resource appointed to inspect the great tracts of land on the upper Mississippi set aside by Congress for wild life preservation. They include Senator Frederic C. Walcott, of Connecticut; Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada; Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, and Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri. Although Senator Hawes was ordered by physicians to leave for a rest, he plans to join the group on the Mississippi. Mrs. Hawes and their daughter, Miss Peyton Hawes, who have been traveling in Europe, are now in London. Miss Eppes Hawes, one of the favorite members of the young social groups in the Capital, will pass the summer on Long Island.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic member of the London naval committee, will join Mrs. Robinson at their home in Little Rock, where Mrs. Robinson has been established since early in June. The senator, wearied from the long struggle incident to passage of the pact, took the first possible train westwardbound, having departed yesterday afternoon. Senator and Mrs. Copeland will pass the summer at their home in Suffern, N. Y. With Senator Frederick Hale, he left last night for New York, the latter going on to Portland, where he probably will remain through the rest of the summer. Senator Kenneth McKellar, instigator of resolutions demanding a draft of the treaty for perusal by the Senate, is still in town, although he expects to leave for Tennessee some time this week.

Senator and Mrs. William H. King, of Utah, with their children, are established at Bay Ridge, Md., for the rest of the summer.

Mrs. King and the children recently returned from Europe, where for nearly a year and a half the children have been attending school in France. Also northwardbound, Senator Frederick Gillett left yesterday for Springfield, Mass., and will pass a part of the summer in the Berkshire Hills.

Orphans' Outing To Be Held Today

Entertainment by Clowns to Be Feature of Elks' Annual Affair.

More than 1,200 Washington orphans will be the guests today of Washington Lodge No. 15, B. P. O. E., at their annual outing at Glen Echo Amusement Park.

The Elks Clown Band, headed by Harry Given, one-time producing "Joey" with P. T. Barnum, will assemble at Eleventh and F streets northwest at 9:45 o'clock this morning, at which time the first street car will start with its load of underprivileged youngsters.

Street cars will start at two-minute intervals, and aboard each car there will be a clown to entertain the orphans until the park is reached, after which the clown band will do its "stuff" throughout the day in all parts of the grounds.

Leonard Schloss, manager of Glen Echo, again will place all of the rides and other amusement devices of the park at the disposal of the orphans, and the Elks have arranged for vast quantities of eatables, including 1,800 sandwiches, 150 gallons of ice cream and untold portions of lemonade and other delicacies.

Motorcycle Men May Dress in Gray

Warm-Weather Uniforms for Traffic Force Wait for Approval.

Warm weather uniforms for Washington's motorcycle policemen may be changed to dark gray shirts, trousers, puttees and caps.

This suggestion was advanced yesterday by Inspector E. W. Brown, of the Traffic Bureau; approved by Inspector William S. Shelby, acting superintendent of police, and by Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, who held up action on the proposal, however, until the return of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, who is out of the city on a brief leave of absence.

Traffic policemen at street intersections probably will be permitted to continue to wear white shirts without their uniform coats in hot weather. The new shirts for the motorcycle men probably will be supplied them by the department next year. Meantime, it is proposed to draw specifications and permit the men to purchase new shirts themselves, if they wish.

Street Grading Bids Offered.

Latimer & Maloney, with a bid of 30 cents per cubic yard, were low bidders yesterday for a District contract for grading several streets about the city. About 50,000 cubic yards of earth are to be removed to make grades. McGuire and Rolfe submitted low bid for laying 25,000 cubic yards of sidewalks. The price was about $60,000.

Reeside.

Mrs. Grant said that "differences of opinion regarding matters of policy" were the reason for the wholesale resignations.

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART
Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.
Place: Lady Court, an old manor house south of Washington.

Cast of Characters.

Lindy Marsden—Lonely, lovely, a dark-eyed romancist, and mistress of Lady Court.

Doug King—Hilarious and jovial, the life of every party and the founder of the March Hares.

Neil Sheridan — Sleek, dark, highly successful in his career as a lawyer and husband of—

Trudi—Wise, witty and chic, with all the ease and manner of a grand duchess and the lack of manners of a fishwife.

Chatty Ross—Small, gay, blindly adoring wife of—

Tom Ross—The least successful man in the room, shabby and sensitive among his wealthy friends.

Hanna Dart—A gentle lady, immaculately beautiful, whose reserve masks a deep affection for her husband.

Gavin Dart—A rather tired and immensely successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel-gray hair.

Ray Hardy—The youngest member of the party, not long married and overwhelmingly in love with—

Joel Hardy—Her charming and irresponsible husband, who has not grown 5 minutes older in the last ten years.

Jill Leighton—Graceful and gracious, stepsister of that legendary Sunny, the beloved girl, whose strange death ten years ago still lay like a shadow over the gay group.

Larry Redmond—An agreeable young banker, who can not understand why Jill hates him.

Kit Baird, wanderer and adventurer in strange lands, who, in his casual way, does every romantic thing magnificently well.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

The thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves the March Hares, have gathered on Halloween at Lady Court, the old manor house, for a party. The characters are being introduced.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

Lindy Marsden is seated a hand's breadth from her, small, velvet-eyed and velvet-voiced, as dark as Jill is fair, and most lovely to look at, with her warm, white skin and shadowy lashes.

Lindy, with her exquisite voice, her exquisite manners and her exquisite hands, is very Southern and very feminine; she is also a romanticist, flagrant and unashamed. Byron is still her hero, as he was her grandmother's.

Orphaned at the age of 6 by a railroad accident, brought up by two great-aunts, she has learned early what loneliness means. The nice boy that she married on a frantic impulse that bitter January morning ten years ago has left her enough money to gratify every whim, and Lindy has whims enough.

A little house in New York, a great house in Georgetown, a garden and a balcony in Fontainebleu—Lindy trails through them, all her pansy-colored velvets and flower-colored chiffons, with lace falling softly about her wrists and jewels swinging softly on her ears. Her shadowed eyes are forever seeking—and finding—candlelight and starlight—and fires dancing discreetly on open hearths; Strauss waltzes and little dinners in leafy corners of the Bois; interminable falls over empty liquor glasses with gentlemen who are civilized enough to be deftly and urbanely romantic—low lights, low voices, music over starlit waters, the dying fall of songs, and the drifting perfume of wall flowers in the sunlight and jasmine in the moonlight.

Lindy fits as perfectly into the great shadowy room as did the dark-eyed girl for whom it was built, dead and gone a hundred years before. It is from her that she has inherited other treasures—the slim lovely hands, the delicate and elusive smile and the languid grace as sure and unpremeditated as a flower's.

The Handsomest Man.

She is bestowing that smile now on the red-headed young man known as Kit, who is seated beside her on the arm of the couch. Kit Baird is the handsomest man in the room, thoroughly well aware of the fact, and most contemptuously indifferent to it. Well over six feet tall, broad-shouldered, narrow-hipped and long-fingered, he is the ungrateful possessor of eyes so darkly blue that you might mistake them for black, hair so darkly red that you might mistake it for copper, eyelashes long enough for a movie actress, close-set ears peaked like a fawn's, and a fine arrogant mouth that he has learned to keep fast closed whenever it pleases him—which is frequently. He is also the possessor of a breath-taking smile, and a voice so misleadingly caressing that it has been his undoing on more than one occasion.

None of the people in the room know a great deal about him—his age, lineage, past life, present occupation and future intentions are his own secret. He drifted into Joel Hardy in the State Department a year or so before the war with an infectiously enthusiastic letter of introduction from Joel's roommate at Yale, who had been sharing a peculiarly boring revolution with him in Venezuela and who urged vehemently that Joel should induct Mr. Baird into the Consular Service—Mr. Baird's principal qualifications for such a post appearing to be red hair, a smattering of French, Spanish and German, a thorough mastery of the guitar, a charming, melancholy tenor voice and an unrivaled collection of ribald cowlaments, railway rounds, Kentucky mountain ballads and Mexican folk songs. The letter also enthusiastically dwelt on an apparently unlimited capacity to consume rum and go without sleep and a fine disregard for life, limb and reputation that had come close to landing its possessor in jail or eternity on more than one occasion.

Joel, properly impressed and immensely intrigued by the cool and casual young man, promptly maneuvered him into an obscure position in his office and a more prominent one in the apartment that he and Larry Redmond shared together in Wyoming avenue. The fact that Kit Baird could dance better than any man in Washington proved an open sesame from then until the day that the declaration of war saw him enlisted in the Marine Corps.

For a year he lingered on at Quantico, a fever of restless unease burning behind the mocking, indifferent eyes—then the war swept him off, too, and the March Hares had seen him no more. Only a week ago he had run into Trudi Sheridan in a night club in New York, and now once more he is sitting in the old charmed circle, as carelessly at ease as though it had been ten minutes instead of ten years since he had last flung a possessive arm across the back of the old sofa and smiled down over a frosted rim into Lindy Marsden's lifted eyes.

The Two Remaining Men.

The two remaining men standing within convenient reach of Sherry's hospitable ministrations are Larry Redmond and Doug King. Larry is an agreeable-looking young man, tall and lean and brown, with a good, hard jaw, a good, straight eye and hair that you might call bronze if you were romantically inclined, and brown if you weren't. He is the president of a small, solid, conservative bank in Boston. At the time that this honor descended on him, as a matter of fact, he was the youngest bank president in the United States.

Larry is a man's man and, therefore, women like him—and children, too—and dogs—all the traditional attributes are his. In the war he proved more daring and resourceful than even his best friends prophesied; he could not have done better if he had been a black sheep, and he emerged from it, somewhat to his discomfort, with a neat collection of honors and decorations, which he has not laid eyes on from that day to this.

In the old days before that almost forgotten war he was rumored engaged to Jill Leighton, but rumor was apparently as inaccurate as usual, since they have not seen each other since he sailed for France, and he has scarcely glanced in her direction since they entered the room. His warm, friendly smile is at present resting on Doug King, who is holding forth hilariously over his second cocktail.

In more homely circles King would undoubtedly be known as the "life of the party." Tall, genial, blondly handsome and so richly endowed with animal spirits and a carefree and infectious laugh, Doug's enthusiasm winds up by being extremely contagious. He is the original founder and moving spirit of the March Hares, and there is undoubtedly no better raconteur within a hundred miles of any place that he stands.

If there is about him the barest hint of the jovial traveling salesman with his "stop me if you've ever heard this one," no one ever really stops Doug. There is too promising a twinkle in his blue eyes, too hospitable a use of the flask of really excellent Bourbon that invariably occupies his pocket, too lavish a distribution of the fat dark Coronas that live snugly in the fine straw case in his right-hand pocket or the aristocratic Russian cigarettes that dwell in the slim gold one in the left.

Doug King is interested in real estate; he has been interested in it ever since he invaded Washington twelve years before with a grandiose project in Panama in which he optimistically hoped to interest an unduly phlegmatic Government. Failing signally in that, he joined forces with an enterprising young real estate firm and devoted himself for two years to that, and to the more congenial task of leading the March Hares in concentrating on life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

The war proved not too rude an interruption to him as the adaptable and assiduous aid of a very prominent general. At its conclusion he made his headquarters in New York, where he flourished sufficiently to open branches in Palm Beach and Southampton. He has seen something from time to time of Lindy and the Sheridans—they frequent the same ambulatory set that nominally constitutes New York society, and that actually spends four or five weeks of the year there. Lindy is too lazy and too fastidious to keep up with it continually; she drops out for long weeks of dreaming before the great fires of her Georgetown house or under the horse chestnuts of her little walled garden in Fontainebleau, but Trudi, Sherry and Doug never get out of step for longer than it takes to powder a nose or snatch a highball.

Just at present, Doug is in an even higher state of elation than usual. Already he is pawing the air like an old war horse who sniffs powder freshening on the breeze. His voice booms exultantly, there is a jubilant irrepressible swagger to his walk, about every man's shoulder and every lady's waist. It is difficult to refrain from bursting into "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" at the mere sight of so genial a glow.

At these phenomenal new low prices, made possible by the enthusiastic reception extended to the new Chrysler Straight Eights, the Chrysler "70" now fittingly leads Chrysler's line of three magnificent sixes—greatest values in the six-cylinder field.

For the Chrysler "70" has the great 93-horsepower engine of the "77", giving it speed, smoothness and flexibility never before known in any other six. It has the famous Chrysler 4-speed transmission and Multi-Range gear shift which give it, in effect, two high speeds. No other six approximates its alertness in traffic or its ability to climb hills.

It is also equipped with Chrysler weatherproof internal hydraulic brakes, the quickest and safest ever designed, giving the driver complete mastery of this tremendously powerful and speedy car. Hydraulic shock absorbers and rubber shock insulators in place of metal shackles, contribute to riding ease and roadability unexcelled even in much heavier cars.

The new low prices of the Chrysler "70"—with "77" engine—make it today's outstanding buy among fine sixes. Your present car will be accepted in trade. Chrysler's liberal financing facilities are available. 877

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

YOUR TREES IN LATE JULY.

THE time to look your trees over is when they are in full foliage, for this is the only time when their defects are fully apparent. Any dead branches that may have been broken during severe electrical storms may be detected at a glance. Earlier or later in the season it is sometimes hard to tell the dead wood from that which is living.

This is also a good time, where trees are growing too close, to thin out some of the inner branches, thus permitting the free circulation of air and an even distribution of sun. Trees, like plants and shrubs, must have sun and air on all sides. Maples, oaks and all deciduous trees may be trimmed at any time.

Most people trim their shade trees in the spring, but there is really no reason why they should; in fact, if they wait until late summer they will be able to see the irregularities of the development of the trees much better than they could before the trees were in leaf. We can never improve on nature. We can never, no matter how carefully we trim a tree, improve on its natural outline. Remember, a tree was rooted by a Master Hand, and nothing that we can do will improve it in the remotest way. Joyce Kilmer has so beautifully expressed this thought:

"Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Of course, due to the uneven distribution of the sun, or too much exposure to north winds, a tree may become overdeveloped on one side. In which case we can improve it by cutting away any unsightly branches. Or a very young tree, for various reasons, may not be quite so compact as it should be. Such a specimen will be benefited by having the terminal end of all its branches removed. This pruning can be done at any time, the more frequently the better.

Late August is the time to do all minor tree repairing, such as banding large branches, a method resorted to with old trees to keep their trunks from splitting. If you should have limbs that seem in danger of breaking you should consult a tree surgeon. He may be able to "bolt the branches" (bore holes in the center of the branches and insert steel bars to strengthen their connection to the main trunk). Such operations should be turned over to a tree surgeon or skilled landscape man.

A tree surgeon also understands the work of cleaning out a decayed cavity and afterward filling the space with a material that will not only restore the center of the tree, but, in a measure, prevent further decay.

This is the time to remove caterpillar nests. All these attentions will add materially to both the life and beauty of your trees.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

The Goofus Patootie

(As N. C. of Leonia, N. J., Imagines Her)

The Goofus Patootie, a frilly young cutie,
Eats nothing but knot holes and hail,
She goes hither and thither a-twanging her zither
Singing songs that all end in a wail.
She's quite often silly; will flirt willy nilly
With the Beasts or the Birds or the Bees,
And she makes goo-goo eyes at the Wild Goofus guys
Who live in the Limburger trees!

Jane Enterprets the Mode

Lovely, this white satin dress, and white satin coat printed in mauve, green and red flower, collared in lynx. (Courtesy of Maggy Rouff, Paris.)

Paris, July 22.

ALL in lacey black—she carried a medium large bunch of pink satin gardenias. And how lovely she was! The bunch was tied with narrow black velvet ribbons of different lengths that hung every which way, and the lady seemed to know exactly which way the flowers looked best. Once she danced with the bunch in her left hand, then seeming to tire of holding them, she tied them to her wrist. Later in the evening I looked up from my table and saw that she had tied them, by the velvet ribbons, around her natural waistline, where they nestled like a corsage—very pretty against the filmy black.

Sitting, she laid them on the table, standing, she either held them or tied them any place to her costume that pleased her whim of the moment. But believe me, wherever she tied them or however she carried them, they were just right, and I think she had it all planned out beforehand!

• • • •

Which is what all lovely ladies should always do, and indeed, what these famous "elegants" who are always being photographed and put in the society pages, do. No truly charming effect was ever a set one, nor ever an unstudied one. This fancy of carrying a nosegay is on a par with the Spanish woman's fan—it is fascinating, elegant, and has to be done with much gracefulness. If you think you can manage it, think it over for your next party frock, as a color note. Pink satin gardenias, very blue whatever-they-are, and Parma violets are the mode. Which one is best for your dress and for you?

• • • •

And oh, the pretty things that they are! Honestly, now, don't you think you should relax and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet telling you how to make 'em your own self? Chinese pajama suit, I'm talking about, in all of their painted or embroidered glory! You know, the kind no Chinese lady ever saw, let alone wore, that you can get in any Chinese or Japanese store in the world? We love 'em!

• • • •

For instance, on the what satin dress, oh, such a lovely one, I have sketched for you today—would you carry a brightly colored bouquet of the most beautiful and 'spensive artificial flowers? You could, and then a hankie, or jewelry to match the flowers!

Maggy Rouff was the creator of this ensemble—white satin gown, and a white satin coat printed in mauve, red and green, with a huge white fox collar. Wonder how many foxes they do use in their collars? Four or five, I'll betcha.

• • • •

Thinking today of all the fascinating and cozy teas I have had in my various home and makeshift homes in all parts of the world. It is an increasing wonder to me that American women do not frequently indulge in this pleasant pastime!

• • • •

HOW TO CATCH MOSQUITOES.

(Bureau of Entomology.)

An interesting homemade apparatus in common use in many parts of the United States is very convenient and effective. It consists of a tin cup or a tin-can cover nailed to the end of a long stick in such a way that a spoonful or so of kerosene can be placed in the cup, which may then, by means of the stick, be pressed up to the ceiling so as to inclose one mosquito after another. When covered over in this way the captured mosquito will attempt to fly, and will be caught in the kerosene. By this method perhaps the majority of the mosquitoes in a given bedroom, certainly all those resting on the ceiling, can be caught before one goes to bed.

A satisfactory remedy for mosquito bites is moist soap. Wet the end of a piece of ordinary toilet soap and rub it gently on the puncture, and the irritation will soon pass away. Others have enthusiastically recommended household ammonia, or alcohol, or glycerin. One correspondent marks the puncture with a lump of indigo; another with one of the naphthaline moth balls; another with iodine.

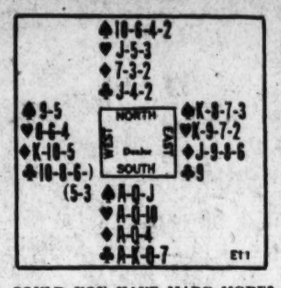
WORK ON BRIDGE



COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?

The above hand was played in a game of Contract, and South with a count of 28 bid four No Trumps which was the final declaration as, of course, North did not jump. In Auction South should have bid only one No Trump.

West led a small Club and Declarer, seeing that leads were needed from dummy won the first trick there; then having seven Spades in his two hands, led a Spade from dummy and won the finesse. The Ace and Queen of Spades followed and East won the latter. East then led the Nine of Diamonds. South finessed the Queen and West's King took the trick. West returned a Diamond and South won the third round after holding up once.

Declarer, with his contract in danger, attempted to squeeze East by leading three Clubs; East discarded his losing Spade and two Hearts. Then Declarer, realizing that there were two thirteeners outstanding, felt obliged to run by leading his Ace of Hearts. East took the last two tricks with the King of Hearts and the thirteenth Diamond; so Declarer made a total of eight tricks—two Spades, one Heart, one Diamond and four Clubs. In view of the result, Declarer's partner was disposed to be sarcastic over the original four-bid, but the fault did not lie with the bid.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer should have won the first trick in closed hand, keeping dummy's Jack as an entry until after the Spades were established. To trick 2 the Ace of Spades should have been led, followed by the Queen. East, winning with the King of Spades, would lead a Diamond and South would finesse. With West winning and returning the Diamond, South could win, cash his Jack of Spades, put dummy in with a Club and discard his losing Diamond on dummy's good Spade. Then the lead of the Jack of Hearts from the dummy would enable Declarer to take the remaining tricks for a total of five-odd.

A more conservative play, however, would be for South to duck the second Diamond to insure West's being out of Diamonds if the Heart finesse should fail. So played, the hand would make four-odd.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Why Ungrateful?

DEAR Miss McDonald: Am I an ungrateful child? The family seems to think so—so listen.

I am 21, a graduate of one of the largest Eastern universities and have a profession. For four months after graduation I was permitted to work in New York, but was soon brought home—and am now supposed to be only a "lady of leisure."

Am from a good family, one that can give me about everything I desire. Have many friends and am fond of all sorts of sport and social life, but that's all I'm allowed to do. And I detest this life of really nothing to look forward to.

Now just last night I asked to be allowed to spend the summer at the ahore with some college friends and to work, but instead I was offered a check to go for a vacation, but under no circumstances to work. And I refused to accept it.

Now what can I do. Must I be petted and pampered and have everything handed to me on a silver tray or can I just say that I am going and do as I wish. Why am I so ungrateful? I should think they'd be glad to have something occupy my mind. What good would I be if they suddenly left me and I was penniless? Do you think my parents are wrong or am I?

Or even after 21 must I still to a certain extent take orders? You have helped many others, can you tell me to go or stay? I would thank you heaps.

NATALIE.

If you are not strong enough to face the issue of your rights as a human being you are not strong enough to survive contact and combat with the world. Surely you can take a stand with your family one way or the other. It is not necessary to stage a scene. Merely tell them that you have decided to make something of yourself. And then proceed to do so.

Families are just small communities, sections of the world at large. They accept the weak and they accept the strong. They bully the weak and they follow the strong. Hundreds of girls write to me and say, "My family regard me as a brainless burden because I follow their advice and stayed at home." Others complain that they never have had an opportunity to marry and are taunted about their failure to marry. Families are like the world. Tribute is to the winner.

You are equipped to meet life. Go out and meet it. To have college training and just sit around wondering is like having a car and being afraid to drive it—it won't take you far. There is no question of ingratitude involved. Had you made a prenatal arrangement with your parents by which in exchange for being brought into the world you would agree to sit about the house and make yourself agreeable until the undertaker arrived to rescue you, then it would be ungrateful to accept life and then step out and live it.

You made. I take it, no prenatal agreement. You are, therefore, a free agent. Go out and take the world by the ear.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF July 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m. and 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Influences on this date quite pass by the spiritual world and only affect spiritual life and thinking. A time of introspection, and of receptivity to words or thoughts from a higher plane. Some of life's purifying truths will filter through to your consciousness. An unusual calmness and happiness.

The child born on this July 23 will have both ambition and endurance, and will rise through its own efforts and personal merit. It will be best adapted for general and practical work, where steady application and industry are required. It could do well in scientific research, or following agricultural pursuits.

You are a clever man or woman, but not in the ordinary sense of the word, an extremely intellectual one. There is nothing "high brow" about you, and you never try to appear learned. You know a few things very well and usually can go your teachers one better in those subjects in which you are interested.

You are capable of doing original thinking and work and it is here that you shine. You may have a one-track mind, but at least a part of the track is made up of your own material (individual ideas and thoughts).

No one can make you do things slovenly, or with any degree of speed. Your speedometer is set at a low ratio and there it will remain; it is your maximum speed.

Your work, your home and your love of nature are the three vital things in your life. Persons, in general, do not interest you very much, and you have no desire for a large coterie of friends. You will permit yourself to be dragged into society only to please some one else, or for business reasons.

You are very blunt in speech, but there is nothing coarse or unkind in your nature. You improve with acquaintance. You are trusted, highly respected and truly liked by those who know you well.

No one who loves babies and animals as you do can be bad. Your life will not be filled with regrets.

Your poise and charm are safe in summer with this deodorizing protection

Kotex deodorizes . . . it is indispensable in summer . . . when danger of offense is so much greater.

SURELY no dainty woman cares to risk offending in this most personal way. Especially when all risk is so easily avoided . . . by simply depending on Kotex for your sanitary protection.

Kotex deodorizes completely, by a safe, sure method. And goes on deodorizing as long as it is worn. What a priceless comfort, especially in summer!

Fashioned to fit

There are other important ways in which Kotex contributes to your summer comfort. Kotex is skilfully shaped, to fit without a bulge or revealing outline. Wear your lightest frocks every single day.

After wearing, Kotex is disposed of just like tissue. There's no unpleasant laundering, ever.

Kotex is not made of cotton, but of a remarkable substance known as Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding. This is the substance used by 85% of America's leading hospitals, because of its marked superiorities as an absorbent.

Cellucotton is light, soft, cool . . . yet powerfully absorbent. It absorbs five times more than an equal weight of cotton! And absorbs away from the surface, which prevents packing and chafing. This is why Kotex keeps its freshness and resilience so long.

All drug and department stores have Kotex. Just ask for "a package of Kotex" without further explanation. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes . . . safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

YOU MAY HAVE GOUT.

L. J. B. writes: I have arthritis of the finger joints next to the little finger of the right and the middle finger on the left hand. It is the second joint on each finger, each heading up into a small pocket filled with pus or a chalky deposit. These joints are more or less sore, especially when bent.

My breakfast consists of bran, corn flakes, whole milk, one-half glass orange juice. For dinner vegetables and tea or coffee. For supper lamb or chicken, vegetables and fruit dessert.

What suggestions have you for relief, or is there any cure for my trouble?

REPLY.

It is possible that you have gout. Analysis of the chalky material would settle that question. It is probable that you have a form of chronic arthritis that elderly people are very subject to. It is somewhat inconvenient, but it is not a serious matter. Probably your diet is not an important factor, and it does not need to be changed. Exercise to keep your joints in use will be helpful.

DEPENDS ON BODY HEAT.

W. G. H. writes:

1. Do you suggest wearing lightweight underwear the year round, or in summer only with a lightweight union suit for winter?

2. Is chewing gum harmful either to the teeth or gums or the health in general?

REPLY.

1. If you are a good heat maker, wear lightweight underwear in winter. If not, wear woolens in winter.

2. No.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1930.

BROWNS, OUTHIT, WIN 3D STRAIGHT FROM NATS, 3-1

Westbrook Pegler Says

THE Brooklyn Ball Club has been compelled to turn away much cash business this season to the great distress of the stockholders, but there are several other points on the major league itinerary where it seems impossible to obtain a quorum with any lure. This also causes distress, so, altogether, the magnates' life probably is a most unhappy one. The subject of the nonattendance of the cash patrons is receiving their earnest consideration and, when they gathered in Chicago recently to discuss the matter of drafting minor league athletes they also dwelt upon the mournful numbers of the turnstile readings taken this season in Cincinnati, St. Louis and Pittsburgh.

St. Louis is the point of special concern because, there being two clubs there, both playing to vast numbers of absentees, the trouble is twice as hard as anywhere else. The St. Louis patrons seem to have renounced baseball with popular unanimity except as to complimentary admissions, which yield no dividends.

St. Louis Threatened With Night Game.

Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, has now invested $25,000 in a lighting plant for use in Houston, Tex., where there is a branch house of his chain-store system of ball clubs, and this apparatus, if successful, will be duplicated in St. Louis this year unless the customers return of their own accord. Earlier in the present season, when baseball after dark was first tried in Des Moines and a few other minor league cities, the major league proprietors bethought themselves of the traditions of their business and said the nighttime belonged to the actors, burglars and dog-track promoters, who form a sort of auxiliary of the burgling profession. So they refused to consider trespassing on the time which, by right of custom, was allotted to others.

But after the Chicago conference on the subject of the draft, one of the proprietors who assisted in these deliberations told your correspondent that the subject of the nonattendance of the customers, especially in St. Louis, had engaged the attention of all present in solemn though informal discussions.

"And I will predict," said he, "that if Mr. Breadon's lighting plant operates successfully in the Houston experiment, there will be baseball by night in the National League in St. Louis before this season is over."

Competition From Race Track.

The St. Louis clubs are suffering to some extent from the competition maintained on the sinful shore of the Mississippi River in Illinois, where a horse track runs by day, in season, luring the patrons from the ball yards with their funds during baseball hours. Several dog tracks also have been operating near by, subtracting from the customers any funds which may not have been spent, lost or otherwise dissipated at the horse track.

In some degree, the pleasures of the Illinois side doubtless do divert the customers from the innocent and inexpensive pastime of the ball yards, but it also seems worth considering that the St. Louis patrons may be a little rebellious against the arbitrary management of their teams by board room strategists. They were led to believe that Rogers Hornsby was the world's greatest human being one season not long ago and the entire city lost its poise and several nights' sleep observing his triumph when the Cardinals won their first pennant. But the next year Mr. Hornsby was dismissed, and the patrons naturally suspected that they had been imposed upon. Either Hornsby was not a great man and they had been induced to make themselves ridiculous for an unworthy person, or he was a great man and a hero had been wrongfully taken from them.

Similarly, Mr. Bill McKechnie was exalted for winning another pennant and removed from his job for losing the world series to the Yankees. It is possible that the patrons, after that, decided never to permit themselves to become excited over any baseball character again. Furthermore, the Cardinals were not playing very well early in the present season and the customers, noting this, may have grown a bit despondent and formed other recreational habits for relief.

Teams Are Forced to Call on Browns.

The Browns, of course, have no call on the patronage of the customers, for they also have been governed by whimsical and erratic business-office management, and it has been some years since they possessed any character as a team. But as long as the Browns remain members of the league other firms are compelled to call on them in the regular routine of business, sometimes without doing enough trade to pay their traveling expenses.

The Yankees, in a recent game against the Browns in St. Louis, played to an audience almost entirely composed of a band and a battalion of R. O. T. C. soldiers who had entered by the complimentary gate. The Washington Team, then leading the American League, was paid off on a

Tilden Winner Over Lott in Practice

Ahead in 3 Sets, 6-3, 6-8, 6-4, Despite Ankle Injury.

"Big Bill" and Cochet Amaze Gallery in Davis Cup Drill.

PARIS, July 22 (A.P.).—Tennis of the slambang, six-shooting variety was indulged in today by both the American and French Davis Cup Teams in the last strenuous practice matches before the challenge round test on Friday.

Big Bill Tilden, bad ankle and all, defeated young George Lott, his singles mate, 6—3, 6—8, 6—4. Henri Cochet, ace of the cup defending squad, wiped up the courts with Christian Boussus, youthful Frenchman.

Both number ones, Tilden and Cochet, took chances in stroking, which, while producing a maximum of errors, provided some remarkable placements.

"What a pity there is so much at stake in the Davis Cup that the players can not afford to take such chances" was the regret of about 1,000 spectators who had paid to watch the practice. Amateur tennis now is taking a leaf out of the professional book, charging 10 francs—about 40 cents—for the privilege of witnessing the training.

Tilden and Cochet Biggest Figures.

The committee and selection work was completed today for the challenge round as the teams were definitely formed and for the first time since the United States defeated Italy in the interzone final the players had their innings.

Besides the Tilden-Lott and Cochet-Boussus matches, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, the American doubles combination, played five hard sets against the professionals Martin Plaa and Karel Kozeluh. Johnny Doeg and Gregory Mangin staged a battle royal on one of the side courts and the only nominated Davis Cup player on either team who was idle today was Jacques Brugnon, who thought he had "had enough tennis since April."

On the showing today Tilden and Cochet, as in other years, again stood out and the real battle for the cup appears once more to be a fight between them. "Whichever way the Tilden-Cochet matches goes probably will go the Davis Cup" was the comment of the experts assembled. Tomorrow a day of light training is scheduled.

Pitcher Collins Stars As Phils Trim Pirates

Philadelphia, July 22.—A big fourth inning attack gave the Phillies a lead they never relinquished today as they took the Pirates into camp by a score of 11 to 5. Pitcher Collins, besides scattering the Pirates' hits, slammed out two homers. Pinkey Whitney also connected for the circuit for the Phils.

Mrs. Moody Refuses Match With Governor; Would Shun "Poltics"

SN FRANCISCO, July 22 (A.P.).—Helen Wills Moody declined today to play tennis with the Governor of California.

Telling news camera men who had assembled for the event, she did not want to be "mixed up in politics," the women's tennis champion of the world refused to appear on a tennis court with Gov. C. C. Young, who is a candidate for reelection.

Frederick S. Moody, father-in-law of the former Helen Wills, is a member of the State Highway Commission under Gov. Young.

ROBINS TAKE LEAD WITH 1-0 WIN

Thurston Gives Cubs Only 3 Hits; Frisch's Error Fatal.

BROOKLYN, July 22 (A.P.).—Hollis Thurston, one-time American League hurler, made his second start for Brooklyn and won his first victory, outpitching Wild Bill Hallahan in a close game. Thurston allowed the St. Louis Cardinals only three hits to triumph, 1 to 0, and the Robins regained the league lead as the Cubs split with the Giants.

Hallahan allowed five hits before he gave way for a pinch batsman in the eighth and Lindsey finished the game. An error by Frank Frisch led to the only run of the game. Frisch fumbled Frederick's grounder and the Brooklyn lead-off man scored on Bressler's infield single to Frisch, on which Orsatti failed to cover first.

Chick Hafey made two of the three hits off Thurston.

Shields Wins Feature 'Met' Grass Tennis Play

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—Frank Shields, seeded No. 2 in the Metropolitan grass court tennis championship, hopped off a train from Kansas City and hopped right into the third round of the Metropolitan play at the Crescent Athletic Club, in Brooklyn, blasting Henry Holden, of Texas, and Dick Lewis, of New York, out of his path in quick order. He beat Holden in the first round by a margin of 6—1, 6—2, and then put Lewis out of the tournament in the second round by a score of 6—2, 6—1.

In the third-round matches Edward Burns defeated Keith Gledhill, 6—4, 6—4, and William Einsman put out Edgar Dawson, 6—4, 6—2. Elsworth Vines advanced by eliminating E. R. Martin, 6—4, 8—6.

Rain interrupted the Dave Jones-Phil Neer match with Jones leading, 6—4, 3—6, 2—1, and the point score in the fourth game at deuce. It was a hard-fought contest as far as it went with both men playing their best game. Jones, the Columbia University sophomore, was serving in rare form and his frequent advances to the net were always productive of winning smashes.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

SPORTSMAN PARK, St. Louis, July 22.—Kress made a nice stop of Harris' hard-hit grounder to end the Nats' first, with two mates on the sacks at the time. The speed of the ball almost handcuffed the Brown short fielder, but he managed to hold on to it and to make a force-out at second.

Judge gave a pretty sample of his famous double-play, first to short to first, ending the natives' first round when he gobbled up Goslin's bounder and killed both the Goose and Hale, who previously had singled.

Bluege owes the hard St. Louis outfield something for getting a triple on his liner in the second. The ball took a wicked hop past Schulte just as he was set to grab the sphere on the first bounce.

Spencer shot a bad hopper at Hale in round two which bounded off of the third sacker's glove all the way to the pitcher's box, yet he was thrown out at first due to lack of speed afoot.

Schulte almost tore the glove off Jones' hand with a liner in the home second, the pitcher recovering the ball in time to make the out at first. This robbed the batter of a hit and prevented Ferrell from scoring from second at the time.

The heavy footing seemed to slow Rice up almost to a walk in the third after he had led off with a single, for he was thrown out easily by Badgro while going to third on Judge's single which followed. This was the second tight hole in succession out of which Coffman escaped.

Goslin missed getting a homer by less than a yard in the third, when the wind carried his high looper into foul territory. Then he popped out to Judge.

Melillo went back of McNeely to rel's double quickly tying the score, with Ferrell later scoring when Badgro swung hard and topped one toward third which Jones tried to field while doing what acrobatic dancers call the "split."

In the fourth, the Browns became 2 up, molding this tally after two were out—the result of successive one-basers off the sticks of Schulte, Melillo and Badgro. Jones granted but one more hit before giving way to Pinch-Hitter Heinie Manush in the seventh, while Coffman was in no further trouble until the eighth.

After Rice grounded out, Judge and Cronin singled successively and the Nats had visions of a winning rally with Harris up and long overdue. He rolled sharply to Hale, however, and a fast double play resulted. This proved to be the last threat of the game.

Cissell's Error Gives Red Sox 4-3 Victory

Chicago, July 22 (A.P.).—Three timely hits and an error by Bill Cissell with a double play in sight cost the White Sox a ball game here this afternoon to the Boston Red Sox by a 4-to-3 score.

Dutch Henry almost got away with his third victory of the season when the little roller came to Cissell and went through his legs. A double play would have sent Boston to the field again with the score tied.

JOHNSON, IN LECTURE, FLAYS NATS FOR DEFEATS

Lack of Spirit Charged by Manager

Criticizes Playing of Club During Losses in the West.

Marberry Will Face Browns Today in Last of Series.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—If lectures do any good, the Nationals should win the remaining games of this present trip, for Manager Walter Johnson "took off the gloves and used his bare fists" in laying down the law to his athletes at a meeting before today's game.

The subject of the Nats' leader's discourse was the tossing away of yesterday's game after even the Browns apparently had conceded defeat. Before he was through the team in general and many of the players individually were put on the pan, the general result being that many were "burning up"—and not from the weather, either—when they emerged from the locker room.

Johnson even went so far as to question his team's fighting spirit, calling attention to the fact that the Nats have had the lead in many games since they started this tour West, only to later lose it and then to show signs of apparent quitting—not a pretty comparison to the same team which specialized in coming from behind and winning game after game after trailing by as many as seven runs in some of the early season battles.

Ought to Win in the West.

"I expect us to be beaten at times," he said, "and have no kick coming if we go down fighting and are beaten on merit, but I don't expect to see us hand the other fellows games like we did yesterday and like we have done on some other occasions I could mention. We are talking about winning a pennant, but we are not playing that kind of ball.

"These games here in the West are the ones we ought to be winning," Johnson concluded, "as all of these clubs are below us in the standing and are not even rated in our class. The Mackmen and Yankees have been doing it and if we hope to beat out these teams, there has got to be a sudden turning over of a new leaf. We haven't been hitting as we should, which means that we've got to make up for this in fielding and pitching. Now forget about what's happened the past week or so and let's go out there and play real baseball."

Marberry vs. Gray on Mound Today.

The task of turning back the Browns tomorrow and thus preventing a series sweep for Killefer's men, who have been playing better than they know how against the Nationals, will be turned over to Fred Marberry, who has won his last seven starts. The veteran Sam Gray is expected to oppose him on the hill.

Alex Metzler, Chicago outfielder, obtained by the Browns from the White Sox on waivers, reported to Manager Killefer here today. He was obtained for utility purposes and is not likely to get in the game as a regular. The Nationals were after this flychaser on their last trip to the Windy City, but Manager Donie Bush would not part with him then and Dave Harris was taken instead. As Metzler has dropped down to less than .200 as a batter, it was a good break for the Nats that Harris was landed instead, for the Greensboro sheriff has done some nifty hitting on occasions and has won several games for the Johnsons with his big war club.

Manush Expected to Oppose White Sox.

Outfielder Heinie Manush's injury appears to be practically cured and it is only a matter of him working out a slight stiffness before he will be ready to put up his best game. It is only because the outfield here is so hard, resembling concrete, that the big fellow is being kept out of this series and, in the absence of a set-back, he is expected to start his comeback attempt in the opening game of the Chicago series Thursday.

A heavy rain soon after the completion of yesterday's game and throughout last night relieved the heat situation here and enabled the players to get a good night's sleep.

Members of the Washington Club were guests of honor at the Madison Kennel Club Greyhound races tonight, Manager Walter Johnson presenting a loving cup to the owner of the winner of the feature race. Altrock and Schacht were on hand with a new stunt, the latter being dressed as a dog and being led out on the track with "Uncle Nick" with the entrants in the big race. Schacht remained in the starting stall until the canines rounded the far turn and then came down the track ahead of the pack at the finish. He was disqualified by the stewards, however.

Four Women Golfers Honored at Beaver Dam

Four of its women golfers who gathered laurels during the past tournament season were honored last night by the Beaver Dam Country Club at a dinner held at the clubhouse at Hyattsville.

Chief among the honored guests was Mrs. Betty Meckley, former Buffalo, N. Y., resident, whose triumph in the District Women's Championship in which she dethroned the perennial titleholder, Dorothy White Nicholson, marked the first conquest of the title by a Beaver Dam golfer.

The other honored guests were Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, winner of the Phyllis Keeler Memorial Cup; Mrs. Marion Shipley, winner of the General Hines Cup in the Veterans' Bureau Tournament, and Mrs. Ora Emge, runner-up for the Evening Star Cup.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE GALLANT—whether named for Gallant Fox or Gallant Knight or devised to honor both horses which ran a memorable one-two on the course—is the Arlington Park headliner today. The race is at a mile, and in the main the good horses making up the field would do better at a longer route.

DISPLAY is one of the horses entered, but, while having no doubt this big money winner will make an auspicious comeback, it is not believed that he will do so at this distance on his first time out. SUN BEAU should have another chance, and he is picked to win. SILVERDALE seems to be formidable as a contender, and SANDY FORD should make it interesting, and ought to get in the money. WILLIAM T. has a chance. SUN BEAU has top weight, but that is only 117 pounds.

FIRST RACE—ARIES is best in the first race for 2-year-olds, but Mrs. Payne Whitney's CHUCKLING, coupled with SPAR, should hold the others safe. SPAR may be better than CHUCKLING, but seems to require a heavy track. BATHORSE may figure in the race. His Eastern racing was not impressive.

SECOND RACE—The Mrs. John D. Hertz entry in the second race is selected to win. The entry is composed of WRIGLEY FIELD and EGYPT. The first mentioned is the main reliance for this stable in this race. SKIFFY is the one to fear, and very probably will run a good race. Third money probably will go to SEDGIE. This race, like the first, is for maiden 2-year-olds, and under identical conditions.

THIRD RACE—The third is for 3-year-olds, and the field is well balanced. ZIDA is believed best and MORSNUFF should be the contender. BUB MCFARLAND is showing some improvement, but does not run to his winter form. He should get in the money.

FOURTH RACE—This also is for 2-year-old fillies, thus alloting to juveniles three out of the seven races. IN BETWEEN looks like a standout for the $1,600 purse. She is coupled with OUTBURST, also a speedy filly. WATER PORT and IN HASTE should furnish the chief contention against the entry and have been tabbed for place and show in the order named.

SIXTH RACE—VOLTMETER is selected to win the sixth, for older horses, a mile and a furlong, under claiming conditions. SPECTACULAR is a fine horse and should make it a close race. OTILLA, a recent winner, also is dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—The seventh may offer the chance for AFTERGLOW, which has earned a consolation prize or something for his many failures and hard trials. FADDY will be the contender and would be more dangerous in the mud. PAT FIELDS has a chance to show.

Rain would help the racing at this track, which has one more week after this.

The Browns scored in their fourth after two were out, when Schulte, Melillo and Badgro singled in succession.

Badgro backed up against the base of the stands in right to drag down Judge's liner to end Washington's fourth.

Bluege hustled toward short almost in front of Cronin to take McNeely's roller and peg him out, opening the fifth for the Browns.

Jones hit Goslin's bat with a wide one, ending the fifth, the result being a tap to him. The Goose was so surprised that he never even started to run until the out at first had been made.

After Cronin had opened the sixth with a single, Harris poled one all the way to the flag pole in deepest center. Had the blow been headed to either side it would have been a round-tripper. It was just an out, though, for Schulte was playing deep and easily camped under it.

Manush pinch hit for Jones with two gone in the seventh and singled to right. Judging from the manner in which the big fly-chaser ran out his hit, his injujry is not as near cured as he and Trainer Martin think it is.

Myer made a fine stop of Melillo's tricky bounder, opening the enemy seventh.

Bluege made a one-hand stop of Kress's high bounder to end the eighth and prevent another St. Louis run.

AUDLEY STAR SCORES AT ARLINGTON

Bobashela Is Length and Half Ahead of Lativich.

CHICAGO, July 22 (A.P.).—The Audley Farm's 5-year-old bay horse, Bobashela, was an easy winner of the Oregon Purse, the feature at Arlington Park this afternoon. Lativich was second and Dr. Freeland third.

The race was an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward over the 7 furlongs distance out of the chute and was worth $1,150 to the winning stable. Bobashela covered the seven panels in 1:25 flat. He paid off at $3.86 for $2 in the mutuels machines.

Bobashela, away well, quickly disposed of Schlaf Wohl and setting his own pace easily drew out into a long lead to win easily by a length and a half. Lativich, after racing under restraint, closed strong to take the place by two and a half lengths. Dr. Freeland was six lengths in front of Devon, with Schlaf Wohl last.

E. R. Bradley's 2-year-old bay colt, B'Ar Hunter, was best of the field in the Buoyant Purse, a 5½-furlong dash for 2-year-olds. Out Bound was second and Pittsburgher third. It was B'Ar Hunter's second straight victory in his two starts at this track.

Cochran's Horse Stars at Empire.

Empire City Race Track, July 22 (A. P.).—Gifford A. Cochran's Hand to Hand accounted for the Tarrytown Claiming Stake, which featured the card here today. On Tap, favorite, was second, and Frumper third. The race was worth $2,825 and the mile and 70 yards were run in 1:45 3-5. There was a lot of early speed in this race and the early pacemakers were killed off in their attempt to take the lead.

'CHICK' EVANS TIES FOR WESTERN AMATEUR MEDAL

Veteran's 72 Only Stroke Over Par

Shares Honors With Lehman With 147 for 72 Holes.

British Stars, Tolley and Perkins, Among Qualifiers.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, July 22 (A.P.).—Charles "Chick" Evans, jr., the Bobby Jones of yesteryear, came back for more golfing renown today by wedging into a two-way tie with another Chicagoan, Johnny Lehman in the fight for the Western amateur championship medal.

His big war clubs, on a strike almost regularly since way back in 1923 when he won his twelfth and last golf crown of any reputation, clicked so brilliantly today that he carded a pretty 72, one over par, on the stubborn championship Beverly course and pulled up from behind to tie Lehman with a total of 147 strokes. But for a hooked shot into a trap in the final green, where he took one over par, he would have stood out in front alone tonight with the medal on his chest.

Evans' score was a celebratnig gesture for his fortieth birthday anniversary and in his own words it "made me feel like I was back in my game once again after a long lay-off."

Scores of 158

Qualify.

Beverly, regarded as one of the toughest courses ever to sport a championship, tamed contenders for the crown now worn by the youthful Don Moe, of Portland, Oreg., so thoroughly again today that an unusually high total of 158 strokes, 16 swings over perfect figures were good enough to qualify without a play-off. Most of the favorites came through handily, including the two Britons, Cyril Tolley and T. Phillip Perkins, who qualified with 152 and 154 totals, respectively.

Evans and Lehman won their medal tie by four big strokes over Don Armstrong, of Aurora, Ill., and Ira Couch, one of the best players in the Chicago district. Five strokes away with 152 totals came Tolley, and a pair of Chicago stars, George Dawson and Ruddy Knepper, who, like Evans, is attempting a comeback.

Three others were deadlocked with 153's—Bob McCrary, the trans-Mississippi champion from Des Moines, Iowa; R. A. Conliff, of Oklahoma City, and Don Anderson, of St. Louis, who staged a remarkable comeback with a 73 today to land among the leaders. Perkins, like Tolley, a former British amateur champion now residing in America, slumped to take a 79 today which added to his 75 of yesterday gave him a 154 score.

Nordstrom Takes 84 Strokes.

Keefe Carter, of Oklahoma City, former champion, just barely got in with a 158, while Lloyd Nordstrum, the dark horse from Davenport, Iowa, who topped the field yesterday with a 72, took a bad 84 today for a 156.

Evans literally burned up the homeward stretch and would have equaled par except for the bad eighteenth. He went out with a 37, 1 over par, and came home with an even par 35 for a 72, the lowest round of the day. Poor putting and hooked shots off the tee netted him a 75 yesterday.

Golf Record Set as Man Shoots 170 Holes in Day

Sound Beach, Conn., July 22 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—T. Ward Ritchie, of the Sound Beach Golf and Country Club, established an endurance golf record yesterday that will probably stand for a long time. He shot 170 holes of golf in fifteen hours on the hottest day of the year.

Ritchie, 26 years old and married, began his performance at 4:30 a. m., Monday. He continued to make the rounds of the eighteen-hole course without stopping for rest or food until 7:30 p. m., losing ten pounds in weight.

The best previous continuous golf record established is said to be 162 holes.

Newton, Gavuzzi Win Lap in Relay Contest

Victoriaville, Quebec, July 22 (A.P.). Arthur Newton, of South Africa, and Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, today won the third lap of the international relay race. They covered the lap from Shedbrooke to Victoriaville in 7 hours 30 minutes to retain their lead in elapsed time. They head the pack with total elapsed time of 18 hours 8 minutes 20 seconds.

Joie Ray, of Chicago, and Johnny Salo, of Passaic, N. J., were second, finishing 14 minutes behind Gavuzzi and Newton. N. B. McNamara, of Brisbane, Australia, and Lin Dilke, of Newcastle, Pa., were third in 7:53:38.

U. S. Trackmen Score In Meet at Stockholm

Stockholm, July 22 (A.P.).—Tommy Warne, of Northwestern, and Reginald (Pete) Bowen, of the University of Pittsburgh, recorded victories in their specialties on the third day of an international athletic meet here today.

Warne won the pole vault with a leap of 13 feet 9 6-16 inches; H. Lindblad, of Sweden, was second at 13 feet 1½ inches, and B. Anderson, Sweden, third at 12 feet 5½ inches.

Bowen captured the 400 meters run in 48 2-10 seconds with J. Buechner, of Germany, second, and O. Hammargren, of Sweden, third.

George Bullwinkle, College of the City of New York, finished second to B. Kraft, of Sweden, in the 1,000 meters run. A Larsen, of Denmark, was third. The time was 2:31 2-10.

Edwin Gillmeister, of Germany, won the 100-meter dash in 10 8-10 seconds, with Katz, of Finland, second, and M. Pendleton, United States, third.

MANHATTANS PERFORM.

Manhattan Athletic Club Nine will meet the Army War College Baseball Team today at 5:30 p. m. on the Washington Barracks Field.

basis of less than 1,600 paid admissions for two games, but, playing in Boston a short time later, the Nationals and Red Sox drew 14,000 cash admissions on a week day.

The Braves and Cardinals drew $1,700 in two days in St. Louis. In Pittsburgh the Braves played to $1,500 in four days. The Brooklyn Robins drew $800 one day and $500 another there.

These are fragmentary figures obtained from two managers, but I am assured that they are representative and, very curiously, it transpires that the two Boston clubs, both playing in the second division with no hope of winning either pennant, are among the most prosperous in the business this year. The Braves drew 43,120 paid admissions on a recent Sunday, the greatest paid attendance ever drawn at a ball game in Boston.

Robins Turn Away 20,000 Addicts.

The Brooklyn ball park was built to modest expectations, with a capacity of only 30,000, although the late Charlie Ebbetts, who constructed the plant, was fond of saying that the baseball business was in its infancy. A few days ago the Robins not only filled the park but turned away about 20,000 addicts who wished to be customers, and if there is any sight that saddens a magnate more than the sight of empty chairs in a ball yard it is the sight of patrons turning away from closed turnstiles, wondering what to do with their money.

Of course, the Brooklyn customers are of a special breed. They take as much delight in denouncing their own athletes as in cheering them, and as long as they pay their money it is deemed to be their privilege to express themselves as the spirit moves them, including the hurling of the deadly pop bottle.

For years it was their pleasure to abuse Mr. Ivan Olson, and Saturday afternoon they scolded Hank De Berry, their catcher, so noisily that he threw the ball into the outfield for a double play and lost a ball game to the Cubs.

The magnates can not understand why the crowds turn out to watch the two Boston clubs and shun others which are doing better, but I suspect that errors in the higher management have been more responsible than defeats on the ball ground for the disaffection in St. Louis and Pittsburgh. Given to understand that baseball was strictly a private business and the heroes mere employees not much above the rank of groundkeeper, the patrons lost their illusions and baseball ceased to be a cause commanding their devotion, their presence and their support.

Va. Field Trials Body Scouts Scene for Meet

Petersburg, Va., July 22.—The Virginia Amateur Field Trials Association has in the past day or two had representatives at former Camp Lee looking over the ground that will be used when the State associations holds its meet there November 10 and 11. The representatives were Ernest Meade, president of the association; A. M. Pulling, secretary, both of Richmond, and Wiley King, of Richmond, and R. C. Parsons, of Petersburg, members of the board of directors. Mr. Parsons says that work on the grounds will be started about September 1. The Railroad Field Trials Association will meet at Camp Lee February 9 and 10. The indications are that there will be an abundance of birds when the State trials open.

D.C. AMATEUR BOXERS ARE MATCHED

8 All-Star Bouts to Be Held Aug. 28 in Rockville Ring.

FIGHT all-star bouts with a flavor of District-South Atlantic Inter-Association A. A. U. rivalry will be fought on a benefit amateur boxing card scheduled for Friday night, August 8, in the outdoor arena of the Rockville Fair Grounds.

The proceeds of the show will be turned over to the athletic funds of the Rockville American Legion and the Howitzer Company of the Maryland National Guard. John Stone, athletic director of the First Regiment, Maryland National Guard, is in charge of the program.

Two District of Columbia amateur champions and four from Maryland will appear. In the heavyweight bout, the District titleholder, Russell Wolfgram, will trade wallops with Ben Funderburg, South Atlantic king.

Middleweight Stars Slated to Clash.

Henry Irving, District middleweight champion, will engage Jake Friedman, South Atlantic crown wearer; Mike Tardugno, clever Georgetown University featherweight, will meet Patsy Lewis, Maryland State champion at 126 pounds, and Douglas Swetman, runner-up for the District bantamweight title, will oppose John Fritz, South Atlantic bantam leader.

A newcomer to local amateur ring ranks, Ed Marmel, formerly of New York University, is slated to appear in a bantamweight clash with an opponent not yet selected. Marmel enjoyed much success in the ring wearing the colors of New York U., and might have been heard from in the last intercollegiate championships but for a broken hand which he suffered shortly before the tournament began.

In addition to the bouts mentioned, there will be contests in the lightweight, welterweight and light-heavyweight classes.

Night Games Planned For Cumberland Nine

Cumberland, Md., July 22.—Wheeling's success with night baseball has prompted the directors of the Cumberland Team in the Middle Atlantic League to take up seriously the matter of establishing it here, and indications are that by August 1 a lighting plant will have been installed and night games will start. Night baseball, it is felt, is the only solution of the small league teams.

The Potomac Edison Co., of this city, promised the management it would contract for the creation of the poles and the installation of the lighting apparatus. Tentative terms have been accepted from this company and from the company that put in the Wheeling system. The principal item of expense now to be arranged for is the steel castings which rise from a 12-inch base to a height of 65 feet.

Yesterday the directors, at a meeting, decided to support the team, although the attendance Sunday was only 974 and the receipts were far below the amount needed to meet the overdue payroll.

Temperature Swap Offered by Hoover

President Greeting Chile's Executive Suggests Climate Trade.

(Associated Press.)

Exchange of some of the Capital's heat for the coolness of Chile would be considered a fair trade by President Hoover.

He was called on long distance telephone yesterday by William S. Culbertson, Ambassador to Chile, to exchange greetings with President Ibanez.

When the ambassador remarked that it was very cold down there with the winter months upon them, Mr. Hoover replied that he should like to make a trade for some of the coolness. Later he talked with President Ibanez.

GIRL, 14, SUCCUMBS TO SUITOR'S SHOT

Mary Raff, Twice Wounded on July 15, Yields to Blood-Poisoning.

MADE BRAVE LIFE FIGHT

Mary Raff, 14 years old, who was shot by a jealous sweetheart, Ross Golden, 29 year old World War veteran, died early yesterday morning at Casualty hospital.

The girl had fought against death since July 15, the day that Golden shot her and then killed himself. Mary received a blood transfusion from her father, Charles J. Raff, but this failed to check the spread of peritonitis.

Physicians had entertained nopes for the girl's recovery, but her resistance against the blood poisoning weakened in the last 24 hours. She was wounded by two bullets. One entered her face, just beneath the eye; the other penetrated the chest and lodged in the intestines. It was this latter wound that cost her life.

When Golden shot the girl, he also wounded his sister, Mrs. Lula Mills who tried to intervene. Then Golden killed himself. He left notes confessing his love for the girl 15 years younger than himself. The triple shooting took place at the Mills home, where Golden lived, on B street near Eleventh street southwest.

CHICAGO, July 22 (A.P.).—Patrick T. (Paddy) Harmon, who rose from a corner newspaper boy to builder of the $7,000,000 Chicago stadium, largest indoor sports arena in America, was killed today, victim of an automobile accident in which his speeding sedan turned over five times before plunging into a ditch.

Harmon, for 25 years one of Chicago's leading sports and amusement promoters, was returning home from his summer home in Crystal Lake, Ill., accompanied by his wife and a guest, Dr. E. T. Brand, when his automobile hit a rough spot in the highway near Des Plaines, a suburb. The speeding machine, with Harmon at the wheel, got out of control, plunged off the road and landed 25 feet away, pinning its occupants beneath it.

Harmon, internally injured, died of hemorrhages of the lungs in a hospital three hours later. His wife, Mrs. May Harmon, is in a serious condition but Dr. Brand was less seriously hurt. From his hospital bed Dr. Brand directed a frantic attempt to save Harmon's life by dispatching a highway policeman to a medical supply house in Chicago for a drug that might have stopped the internal hemorrhages.

Ousted as Head of Stadium.

Harmon, whose promotional genius resulted in the erection of the Chicago Stadium, was ousted from the presidency less than six months after it was opened because the board of directors decided his management was responsible for several failures of sports events which had been counted upon to produce profits.

After his dismissal from the stadium last November, Harmon was a candidate in the Republican primaries for the office of sheriff of Cook County, but was defeated.

Although he was best known as a successful sports promoter, Harmon won thousands of friends through his activities each Christmas as Santa Claus to the poor children of the West Side, filling a place in the city's philanthropic life. He came from humble surroundings and after attaining success and a measure of wealth, his greatest joy was to care for youngsters of the present period whose start in life was typical of his own. Year after year, he fed and provided presents for as many as 10,000 youngsters.

Started Career as Dancing Promoter.

Harmon started his promotional career at the age of 16 by opening a Sunday night dancing establishment. Then he became a pioneer in roller skating rinks, popularizing that sport, then in 1912 he promoted the first six-day bicycle race ever held in Chicago, and continued to stage the six-day grinds annually.

When Harmon conceived the dream of the stadium, it required seven years to achieve his objective. He was frequently hampered, but nevertheless drove his project to completion.

With the completion of the building Harmon's troubles began. The monster structure was opened in gala fashion with a championship match between Tommy Loughran, then light heavyweight titleholder, and Mickey Walker, March 18, 1929. The night of the opening the temporary roof caught fire, and Harmon himself climbed up among the catwalks with a hose to help extinguish the blaze.

Campaign to Oust Him Successful.

The fight was a financial failure. Other failures followed, and the directors, seeing that Harmon was unable to guide the project into success, began their campaign to oust him. Harmon withdrew last November, but retained his place on the board of directors, in addition to holding a large block of stock.

Harmon was born in Chicago in the old Gas House District, May 24, 1877, and was 53 years old. His life's story was one of a youth who struggled from the earliest age to wealth and success. His last words before he died was a mumbled plea to be buried in the stadium, the "dream house" of his career.

[NO. 7] LAWRENCE TIBBETT

The higher they come, the harder they fall . . . was Hollywood's greeting to Lawrence Tibbett. Then came "The Rogue Song" and Tibbett landed, in just one jump, among the half dozen leading stars of the screen.

A quick triumph? Not at all! Nature gave him that glorious voice.

That's why OLD GOLD makes no claims . . . of factory skill . . . or secret processes. For Nature alone deserves the credit. The sun, the rain, the fertile soil simply produced better tobaccos. That's why OLD GOLDS thrill your taste. That's why OLD GOLDS give you throat-ease.

LOSSES RECOVERED AS STOCKS ADVANCE

Professionals Push Shares Upward; Commodities Prove Firmer.

U. S. Steel UP 2 POINTS

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—The stock market swept aside all opposition from the short interest today and resumed the advance that had been interrupted by the recent reaction.

The list showed distinct strength in its resistance to further bear selling, moving up 3 points on the average under the guidance of encouraged bull operators. Three-fifths of Monday's losses were regained, in the aggregate.

Commodities firmed in response to weather news. Bonds were dull and steady. Money remained at familiar levels, although some dealers made a reduction in the short maturities of time accommodations. Bill buying was in larger volume, reflecting the cut in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's bill rate.

Stocks soon served notice that the bears were in for a scuffle. The opening was irregularly lower, but there was a marked undertone of strength in important places and the early declines were mostly fractional. Bullish confidence was restored by this demonstration and by afternoon the market was swinging upward, interrupted by only one interval of hesitation. The close was strong at the day's tops. Turnover was slightly more than 2,000,000 shares, indicating that the advances had been made largely on professional maneuvers.

Earnings Report Favorable.

Second quarter earnings are in many cases better than had been expected, and several favorable reports were made today, especially those of McKeesport Tin Plate, Yellow Truck, Allis Chalmers, Penick & Ford and United States Leather.

The market received further stimulus from the Dow Jones weekly estimate of steel operations, which placed steel ingot production slightly above the levels of last week. With the exception of the recovery from the abnormal Fourth of July curtailment, it was the first advance in some time. The ratio for the industry was placed at 57½ per cent of capacity against 57 per cent last week.

There were few weak spots in the stock list for speculative sentiment for the advance was measurably stimulated by the support that was forthcoming on the heels of the reactions last Saturday and yesterday. Wall street heard that although the banks generally were taking no part in the move toward better levels, at least one large institution was accomodating a prominent group of professional operators.

Three active issues made new highs for the year. The move in Autostrop was accompanied by unconfirmed reports that the company was being sought by Gillette. Briggs and Wrigley were bid up briskly to record 1930 prices.

Bethlehem Steel Dips.

Aggressive pool operations were resumed in Vanadium and American Can, up 4¾ each, Radio, up 3¾, General Electric, up 2⅛, General Motors, up 1¼, and others. J. I. Case closed 9 points higher and gains of 2 to 6 points were made by American Telephone, American Tobacco "B," A. M. Byers, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Foster Wheeler, Fox Film, Gillette, Houston Oil, Johns-Manville, McKeesport, Westinghouse Electric, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, Sears Roebuck, and Standard Oil of New Jersey. U. S. Steel rallied 2. Montgomery Ward, whose directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents despite reports that the rate would be cut, improved more than a point. Bethlehem Steel dipped nearly 4 points under bear selling, but recovered half of its loss.

Wheat closed fractionally higher on the reappearance of better export business and a decrease in contract stock. Corn was up 1⅞ to 3½ cents reflecting weather news. Cotton closed steady after irregular fluctuations, showing net variations of 1 point lower to 4 higher.

Foreign currencies were largely firm. The demand rate on the German mark touched a new 1930 high. Sterling also advanced, but closed unchanged. The Spanish peseta weakened.

ACTIVE FOREIGN LIST MARKS BOND SALES

TREND IRREGULARLY UP

New York, July 22 (A.P.).—A strong demand developed today for foreign bonds in the listed market, and their activity provided the principal feature of the quiet trading. The domestic section showed no change in trend, continuing irregularly higher. The buoyancy of Treasury issues was outstanding in the firm United States Government group.

Apparently influenced by the action of the New York Federal Reserve in extending its bill buying rate of 1⅛ per cent to 75 day acceptances, rates on time money up to 90 days were shaded ¼ of 1 per cent. The easing of credit provided no immediate stimulus to buying except Governments.

The easier tone of some standard rails, notably Atchison 4s, Southern Railway 4s, New York Central 4s, were exceptions from the firm trend shown by carried liens. Canadian Pacific 4s reached a new high for the year, and Union Pacific 4s, St. Paul 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s of 1965, Morris and Essek 4½s were strong.

Utility issues attracted little attention, some selling at slightly lower prices. American Telephone 5s of 1965 were firm and Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s touched a new high. Consolidated Gas 5½s, Cincinnati Gas & Electric 4s were easy. West Pennsylvania Power 5s of 1936 were strong, gaining ¾ to touch a new 1930 high.

Stock privilege issues made a little progress during the day in sympathy with stocks. American Telephone 4½s gained nearly a point. Railroad convertibles advanced fractionally. Amusement issues were firm, Pathe warrant 7s gaining 2 points.

Buying of foreign governments was a conspicuous feature. French and German issues found particular favor, and French 7s, one of the standard issues of the group, reached a new high for the year. French municipals joined the upward movement, German 7s gained one-fourth of a point, while German 5½s held unchanged. German General Electric 6s moved upward, Frankfort City 6½s gained 1 point, and German Central Agricultural Bank issues were unusually active.

Treasury 4s made a gain of one-third of a point and other Treasury issues were marked up by good fractions, while Liberty issues were steady.

Offerings tomorrow include $6,000,000 of Oklahoma Gas & Electric Co. 5 per cent gold bonds.

BALTIMORE CONCERN TO DISTRIBUTE ISSUE

ACACIA'S HEAD ON TRIP

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

L. C. Jenkins & Co., Inc., of Baltimore, have been appointed distributors of Twentieth Century Fixed Trust shares for Maryland, Delaware, Washington, D. C., and Northern Virginia, according to Roberts, Sutton & Roach, Inc., of New York, sponsors of the trust, it was announced yesterday. The shares of the trust are 1/1000 participating interest in a unit consisting of two shares of 29 common stocks and a reserve fund amounting to 60 cents a share. The certificates are issued by the Bank of America N. A., of New York, as trustee.

The underlying stocks consist of thirteen industrials, four oils, eight railroads and four utilities.

Following a brief vacation jaunt which took him from San Francisco to Honolulu, William Montgomery, president of the Acacia Mutual Life Association, whose home offices are located in Washington, now is continuing his tour of inspection of the association's branches.

Studying Branch Offices.

Mr. Montgomery at present is motoring from San Francisco to Portland, and from the latter point he will go on to Seattle. In all three cities he is making a thorough study of the association's branch offices, of the general development of the life insurance field, and of economic conditions, particularly as they refer to Acacia.

From Seattle, Mr. Montgomery's itinerary includes most of the more important cities in the northern tier of States. Projected stops include Chicago, Minneapolis, Cedar Rapids and Milwaukee.

When Mr. Montgomery returns to Washington about August 15 he will have completed a comprehensive "swing around the circle," touching at many of the Acacia Mutual Life Association's major points of contact, and gathering a vast amount of data to be applied to the formulation of new plans for the association's progress and development.

William M. Rankin, jr., formerly with the Riggs National Bank, has recently become identified with the discount house of Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, 60 Wall street, New York City.

Was Magazine Editor.

While with the local bank Mr. Rankin was well known in the financial community. He was a member of the original editorial committee that sponsored Dollars & Sense, American Institute of Banking publication, and was editor of the magazine for two years. While with Riggs he edited the house organ, The Clearing House Key, and was also on the dramatic reviewing staff of The Washington Post. Mr. Rankin is a graduate of Washington chapter, American Institute of Banking, and is also a member of the National Press Club.

In his new situation, Mr. Rankin will be in the acceptance department of the discount house.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Railroad Net Earnings.

G. R. V.—Being a constant reader of your column, I am writing for a few railroads whose net earnings show a substantial increase this year over 1929.

Answer—For the first five months of 1930, the net operating income of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico increased 50.6 per cent, when compared with last year; Chicago Great Western, with an increase of 78.8 per cent and Bangor & Aroostock with a gain of 32.8 per cent. An increase of 8.4 per cent is shown by the Western Maryland and 4.2 per cent by the Missouri Pacific. Bangor & Aroostock showed the greatest gain in gross earnings, amounting to 24.1 per cent, while the gain for New Orleans, Texas & Mexico was 11.8 per cent.

Anaconda Copper Stock.

Mrs. L. H. M.—What is the outlook for Anaconda Copper, and how is hte stock regarded from the standpoint of investment?

Answer—Stock was never regarded as an investment in the strict meaning of that term. Has always been considered a speculative investment. On account of recent cut in dividend from $7 to $3.50 yearly, stock has naturally lost some of its former prestige. Outlook at present not overencouraging. Giving effect to reduce income from dividends of leading subsidiaries, lower prices for copper and other nonferrous metals, &c., it is anticipated that 1930 net will be under $5 per share. Earnings in 1929 equalled $8.29 per share and those in 1928 $7.38 per share.

Montgomery-Ward Yield.

T. C. F.—How is the business of Montgomery-Ward running?

Answer.—Sales for June increased 9 per cent and for the first six months this year the improvement was 6 per cent over the first half of last year. From January 1 to June 30 there were between 150 and 200 more stores operating than last year. The increased business was also due to sales campaigns at reduced prices to clear up surplus stocks, and extension of installment selling. Merchandise, exclusive of groceries, will now be sold on the easy payment plan provided orders total $25 or more. Price reductions on goods have been made possible by the securing of merchandise cheap. The long-term outlook is regarded as good, now that a new management is in. Last year's earnings of $2.60 compare with $4.77 for 1928 and estimated 1930 profits of $3 per share. Based on current prices, the yield is about 8½ per cent.

Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit.

N. J. P.—Kindly give me some facts and an opinion of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit as a long-term proposition.

Answer.—B. M. T. is one of the few tractions to enjoy a larger volume of traffic. For the first 11 months of the current fiscal year ended with June, gross revenues jumped 25 per cent. Profits for the fiscal year 1930 are expected to total $6.75 as against $6.52 in 1929. Dividends of $4 have been paid since 1926, and at present prices the yield is about 6½ per cent. The common is regarded as a sound traction issue, but because of the uncertainties surrounding the New York traction situation the stock has been neglected. The stock looks good as a long-term proposition.

Collins & Aikman.

R. C. F.—Kindly favor me with an opinion of Collins & Aikman common and the trend of earnings. How is its financial position?

Answer—The company is in strong condition. As of March 1 last, current assets totaled $10,547,000, including $7,183,000 inventories, the latter figure showing a decline of $900,000 from the previous year. Profits for the fiscal year ended with March were equal to $17.71 a share of preferred and $1.73 on the common. This compares with $17.43 and $1.85 a share, respectively, in the preceding twelve months' period. Earnings for the first three quarters of the fiscal year increased about $300,000.

Net working capital is approximately $9,481,000. Capital stock is 97,600 shares of $100 par preferred and 587,633 no par common shares. Common dividends, which were paid at the annual rate of $4 a share in December, 1927, and March, 1928, have been omitted since June, 1928. No common dividends can be paid unless the surplus available for the preferred stock exceeds $1,500,000, and can not be reduced below that figure by the payment of common dividends. Its principal customers are in the automobile and furniture industries, General Motors and Chrysler being the biggest. The stock is regarded as speculative because of the omission of dividends.

Good Stocks Ex-Dividend.

G. K. L.—Kindly list some good stocks which sell ex-dividend on July 1. I have some money in the bank which I would like to put into dividend-paying securities at attractive prices.

Answer—Cities Service either $5, $6 or $7 preferred; Public Service of New Jersey 6 per cent preferred; Quaker Oats common; St. Louis-San Francisco preferred; and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit common and class "A" preferred.

Warner Bros.

J. G. K.—I have some money in the bank which I would like to invest in Warner Brothers Pictures. Can you tell me how earnings are running?

Answer—Earnings for the current three months of the fiscal year are estimated at $2.50 per share, a rather satisfactory showing. Profits for the six months ended with March 1 last, equaled $3.67 per common share. Based on present estimates, income for the first nine months of Warner's fiscal year will be in excess of $6 a share, as compared with annual dividends of $4 a share. The outlook appears favorable, and the stock may be regarded as a conservative investment having considerable promise for long-term holding.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

BIDS IN COURTHOUSE JOB ARE PROTESTED

WERE LOWEST FIGURES

Protesting against the possibility of having nonunion artisans imported from North Carolina, Rufus E. Milor, Washington builder, who for some time has been identified with Montgomery County politics, has written to Capt. Chester C. Wells, chairman of the subcommittee on construction and specifications of the Montgomery County Courthouse.

Mr. Milor declares in his letter that "the taxpayers of Montgomery County, chiefly union mechanics and union men, feel that their money for a county building such as the courthouse should be kept in Maryland." He recommends that the two low bidders, both North Carolina firms, be disqualified and the contracts awarded to either of two Maryland firms which bid third and fourth.

County officials say that to give the contract to the Maryland firms would cost from $11,000 to $12,500 more than to award the contract to the low bidders. They point out that no opposition developed to offering the contracts for open bidding until after the bids had been opened. The county commissioners say that they have no definite knowledge that the low bidder will not use union labor and that the kind of labor to be used was not stipulated in the advertising of the bids.

The county commissioners yesterday received the recommendations of the architects in charge of the courthouse plans, Smith & Edwards, of Washington, but the recommendations were not made public. The county commissioners called a meeting of the general courthouse building committee to consider the recommendations. The meeting will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Award of the contract for the construction of the courthouse will be made at the meeting Friday.

Bethesda now has its long-fought-for freight station, it was learned last night. The station will be open full time within several days with express and freight service for the heavily populated area around Bethesda. The office is temporarily located in the office of the Grifith Consumers Co. R. C. Hanna is the station agent. The new office will be open from 8 o'clock until 4 o'clock each day. Telephone service will be installed within a few days.

The location of the freight station at Bethesda is the direct result of efforts by a special committee of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce headed by Capt. Chester Wells. The chamber recommended such a station last winter in a resolution which was adopted. Capt. Wells, with Thomas M. Hampton, secretary of the chamber, gathered the necessary data which convinced the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad of the necessity of the station.

A number of railroad officials visited the town and were shown the need for the station by members of the committee.

Plans for a flower show, which will be one of the most elaborate ever staged in this section of the country, are being made for the Rockville fair to be held August 19 through August 23.

John S. Larcombe, of Gaithersburg, is chairman of the flower show committee. Mr. Larcombe is himself a horticulturists of national prominence, having specialized for years in the production of rare and beautiful species of dahlias and gladiolas.

Cash prizes amounting to more than $1,000 and an unusually beautiful collection of trophies will be awarded. The cash prizes are to go to professional growers, as Ma. Larcombe has ruled that the awarding of money injures the amateur standing of flower growers. For the amateurs, in addition to the trophies, there will be prizes of bulbs and growing plants. Many of the bulbs purchased for use as prizes are exceedingly rare and valuable. Some of them are retailed by the flower merchant as high as $100 a bulb.

There are around 150 classes listed for the show.

Montgomery County's school enrollment in 1930 shows an increase of 545 whites and a decrease of 11 colored students, according to the annual report of the school board, forwarded yesterday to the State department of education. The total enrollment for 1930 was 10, 139.

One-teacher schools show a decrease in enrollment of 91; two-teacher schools increased in attendance by 38; graded schools show an increase of 407; high schools an increase of 193 and colored schools a decrease of 11 pupils.

Attedance averages, as announced by Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of schols, weer as follows: One-teacher, 89.3 per cent, an increase of 4.5 per cent over the preceding year; two-teacher, 89.9 per cent, an increase of 3.2 per cent; graded, 92.1 per cent, an increase of 3.2 per cent; high schools, 94.3 per cent, an increase of 1.9 per cent; colored elementary, 8.9 per cent, an increase of 2.6 per cent, and colored high schols, 88.3 per cent, a decrease of 5.2 per cent over the preceding year.

The attendance marks for the year are considered especially god, and it is expected that Montgomery County will stand high in the State attendance list.

Broken Neck Is Fatal To Cumberland Youth

Cumberland, Md., July 22.—Clement Barnes, 18, machinist helper, son of Clyde Barnes, died at Memorial Hospital early today of a broken neck received when he struck bottom while diving in shallow water in the Potomac River near the shops of the Western Maryland Railroad, where he was bathing with companions during the lunch hour.

He is survived by his parents, one brother and two sisters. He was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Woman Sues Lawyer To Recover $23,500

Suit for recovery of $23,500 was filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court by Annie J. Hurley, of Hyattsville, Md., against Robert E. J. Whalen, an attorney, with offices in the Columbian Building.

The woman, through Attorneys H. Winship Wheatley and H. Winship Wheatley, jr., tells the court that she gave the defendant considerable money to meet certain obligations on property and that the money was never used for that purpose.

Frank Walter, 94 Lee's Scout, Dies

Winchester Business Man Enjoyed Good Health Until Week Ago.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 22.—Frank G. Walter, 94 years old, attached during the Civil War to Gen. R. E. Lee's headquarters as one of his guides, scouts and couriers, died today. He was ill scarcely more than a week. Up to then he had remarkable vitality for one so old.

At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the Confederate Army, and was a member of Company A, Thirty-ninth Battalion, Virginia Cavalry. He had many thrilling experiences as a courier for Gen. Lee and was present at the surrender at Appomattox. He was for many years associated extensively here in the mercantile and wool business with the late Bentley Kern and the late James W. Barr. Mr. Walter was an officer of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank. He had been a member of Winchester Hiram Lodge of Masons nearly seventy years, which is said to be a membership record in northern Virginia.

Surviving are two sons, Fred W. Walter, Norfolk, Va., and Frank G. Walter, Chicago; and four daughters, Mrs. J. Earl Carter and Miss Edith Walter, Baltimore; Mrs. Raymond Case, Purcellville, Va., and Miss Margaret Walter, of this place.

COUNTY TO EMPLOY NEW HEALTH CHIEF

Full-Time Officer Provided by Commissioners' Action in Anne Arundel.

TO TAKE EFFECT IN FALL

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 22.—Anne Arundel County today fell in line with the majority of other counties of the State by approving of the plan to bring about a higher standard of health and sanitation when the Board of Commissioners agreed to employ a full-time health officer, operating under the directions of the State Department of Health. The salary of the official is to be $5,000 annually, payable by the county, and the State Board and Johns Hopkins University will match that amount to cover expenses of all activities.

Thirteen of the 23 counties already have full-time health officials under similar conditions and the county board realized the need of such an official owing to the great development in water fronts and camp sites. The full-time health officer will have entire charge of local conditions such as inspections, and take measures to prevent epidemics of disease. He will not be permitted to engage in private practice.

For years the county has named its health officer from among local physicians, the appointment being political. The salary of the office was modest, although it carried certain fees. The scope of duty was limited compared to that which the new order of things will call for. The position is now held by Dr. J. J. Murphy, of Annapolis, who has previously expressed his willingness to step aside in favor of a full-time official. The new appointment will be made from competitive examination to be held by the State board and the appointee will assume his duties in October.

DOWNPOUR OF RAIN ENDS FOREST FIRE

BLAZE RAGES SIX HOURS

Raging for more than six hours yesterday, a forest fire at Waldorf, Md., was finally subdued by rain, fire apparatus from Washington and half a dozen other places, as well as by hundreds of residents of the community and inmates of the Boys House of Reformation at Cheltenham, Md.

The timber, dry from many rainless days, was first ignited Monday night by sparks from a train. The railway tracks run on the outskirts of the woods. Local fire apparatus and residents of Waldorf fought the blaze and, from all appearances, had it extinguished at a late hour Monday night.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning the fire blazed out anew, and within a short time was beyond control. Alarms were sent to Mount Rainier, Beltsville, Leonardtown, La Plata and Washington. Apparatus from the No. 15 Engine Company was sent from Washington.

Fire equipment was aided by hundreds of men armed with brushes and other hastily improvised fire-fighting weapons. Boys from the reform house were liberated to assist in the fight against the flames. The heavy rain, which began to fall shortly after 3 o'clock, helped to put them out.

About 8 acres of forest were destroyed. The property was owned by the Farms Company. The damage will run into several thousands of dollars, it was reported.

Ritchie Launches Fourth-Term Fight

Governor Addresses Crowd of 10,000 at Tolchester; Harry Byrd Speaks.

Special to The Washington Post.

Tolchester, Md., July 22.—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie formally launched his campaign for a fourth term today when he attended a rally of Baltimore and Eastern Shore Democrats at this Chesapeake Bay resort, as 10,000 leaders and members of partisan clubs assembled for a get-together harmony meeting to which leaders of the nine Eastern Shore counties had been invited.

The affair, beginning with the arrival of the first excursion boat from Baltimore at 10 o'clock this morning, was held under joint auspices of the United Democratic Club of the Eighteenth Ward of Baltimore and the Stonewall Democratic Club of South Baltimore.

Former Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia was the principal speaker of the meeting, which was also addressed by Gov. Ritchie and other State and county leaders.

STIMSON TO REVIEW MEN AT FORT MYER

Cabinet Member Will Use Horse During Parade by Regulars and Civilians.

CIVIC CLUB DAY IS HELD

Army officers and training units will participate today at Fort Myer, Va., in the first review before a mounted Cabinet member in many years when the entire post is inspected by Secretary Stimson.

Regular Army officers, reserve officers of the R. O. T. C. and civilians taking the C. M. T. C. courses will march in the parade before the Secretary of State and officers of the Army general staff. Although Secretary Stimson is a brigadier general in the Field Artillery Reserve, he will not be in uniform.

Yesterday was civic club day at Fort Myer, when representatives of Rotary, Kiwanis, Optimist, Round Table, Civitan, Cosmopolitan, Thirteen, Monarch, Lions, Soroptimist, Advertising, Quota, Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Zonta, Exchange and American Business Clubs were present for a review and inspection.

After examining scores of boys taking the C. M. T. C. course at Fort Washington, Maj. William H. Lloyd, post surgeon, studied all reports, and where defects were revealed letters were sent to parents, explaining exactly the physical conditions of their sons and recommending the course of treatment for correction under family physicians.

The examinations of advanced candidates this year, Maj. Lloyd reports, shows that in many cases such recommendations made last year have been carried out, particularly as regards removal of tonsils.

The 1,900 C. M. T. C. candidates at Fort Eustis, Va., spend their weekdays preparing for the regular weekend reception to relatives and sweethearts, according to a statement emanating from the publicity office of the post yesterday, which declares that keenest rivalry exists between individuals, squads and companies, to obey the command, "Prepare for company." Saturday will be field day.

LOSS FROM DROUGHT IS SET AT $1,000,000

Survey Made in Four Virginia Counties Shows Water Alarmingly Low.

MANY STREAMS DRIED UP

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., July 21.—Losses of crops from drought in Page, Warren, Rappahannock and Shenandoah Counties will total a million dollars, according to information contained in a survey made by farmers' organizations in the four counties made public today

All crops are hard hit and the water situation has become alarming in many sections. Farmers are hauling water three and four miles in Marksville district, Page County, while in Rappahannock County many of the streams are dried up. Hazel River, which furnishes water for hundreds of farms throughout that county, is dry with the exception of a few pools.

The Shenandoah River is lower than ever before known. At many places it is possible to cross the stream by stepping on stones. Happy Creek, in Warren County, never known to be dry, is now marked by a waterless ravine. Passage Creek, rising in the mountains of Shenandoah County—a favorite camping resort, is practically dry.

The corn crop of the four counties will not be more than a 20 per cent yield, the survey indicates. Bass fishermen are wading the Shenandoah River at many places where the water in former years was over their heads.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—A 22-degree drop in temperature partially relieved the sweltering Shenandoah Valley late today following a light sprinkle of rain and signs of thunderstorms. The mercury again reached the 102 mark for the second day in succession before the brief shower. At 4:30 p. m. today, the official thermometer at Dale Enterprise registered 82 degrees, the lowest day-time reading since the advent of the heat wave.

The shower, lasting less than five minutes, was accompanied by a high wind.

A 30-acre pasture fire was attributed to the drought this afternoon on a farm just north of Harrisonburg. A spark from a railway train ignited the parched grass plot and before the flames, fanned by a stiff gale, could be beaten out, they had burned more than 30 acres. In one direction, the flames raged over a half mile stretch, threatening a wheat stubble field, a large straw stack and a barn.

The arrest followed a report, received by the police from the home of N. Rex Collier, that the man was seen prowling about the yard. He was identified by Mr. Collier, who was at the courthouse when Venezie was brought into the office of Sheriff Howard B. Fields by Policemen Edward Duncan and William H. Thompson. A number of homes have been reported as entered and rifled in the village.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at the Washington Golf and Country Club. A. F. Thelander, president, will preside.

Plans were completed to assist in getting out the vote on the day of the primary election, Tuesday, August 5.

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation has announced that, due to the regular night of the August meeting falling on the day of the Democratic primary election, the meeting will be held Thursday night, August 7, at the Lyon Park community house at 8 o'clock.

The Waverly Hills Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its monthly meeting at the Mount Olivet Methodist Protestant Church tonight at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Dorothy Clark will preside.

Ballston Council, No. 221, Junior Order United American Mechanics, will meet tonight in the firemen's hall at 8 o'clock.

The county school board will meet tonight in the office of County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp at the courthouse at 8 o'clock. It is expected to formulate more plans in the extensive building program which is about to start with the addition of 32 classrooms at the Washington-Lee High School. In addition to the enlargement to the high school, the board will open bids for additions to four of the elementary schools, Lyon Park, Bon Air, Aurora Hills and Aurora Heights.

Car Driver Sought In Virginian's Death

Authorities Are Unable to Place Responsibility in Fatal Accident.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—Rockingham County authorities are baffled in fixing responsibility for the death of Paulson Heishman, 21, of Shenandoah County, run down by a truck on the Valley pike at the northern city limits Friday morning, by the disappearance of the driver of the third automobile at the scene of the tragedy.

Young Heishman was standing in the roadway directing the efforts of the driver of a light truck to tow his stalled machine back into the roadway when he was run down by an approaching poultry truck driven by Leo Cavey, of Harrisonburg. The driver of the towing truck left the scene almost at the instant of the impact and officers have been unable to locate him.

Justice J. C. Staples twice has adjourned the coroner's inquest into the death pending the efforts of officers in locating the missing man. He reopened the hearing yesterday long enough to inform officers to check the automobile license records of Rockingham with the hope of finding the missing truck by a process of elimination. Officers are unable to understand why the driver of the missing car left the scene so hurriedly, unless it was from fright.

Father Reenacts Killing of Three

Hott, Confessed Slayer of Little Ones, Denies Torture.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 22.—Taylor Hott, 36-year-old itinerant carpenter and construction worker, who confessed yesterday to killing his three children, whose bodies were found in a quarry hole at the edge of this city, will be kept in the Berkeley County Jail here until the October term of circuit court, at which Prosecuting Attorney Herbert E. Hannis will present indictments.

State officials stated today that reports which were current last night that Hott would be removed to another jail to avoid any possible mob violenee were without foundation.

Hott was taken to the scene of the killing today and reacted his crime without the presence of the victims. He reiterated his statement of yesterday that he had not been cruel to the children before throwing them into the water. Hott said he was a boyhood friend of Walter Crabtree, of Romney, W. Va., hanged at the West Virginia Penitentiary several weeks ago for the killing of three men.

Experts of Two Continents Will Discuss Relations With Latin America.

MEETING OPENS AUG. 3

Charlottesville, Va., July 22 (A.P.). "Our Latin-American Relations" will be discussed at the Institute of Public Affairs, which begins at the University of Virginia on August 3, in the only round-table which is not devoted entirely to domestic problems.

Dr. Clarence H. Haring, professor of Latin-American history and economics, who conducted this discussion group last summer, will again be the leader. Problems to be considered are those most in the public mind today.

Intervention in Haiti will be the subject at the first round-table meeting on Tuesday, August 5. Dr. W. W. Cumberland, financial advisor of the Republic of Haiti, and Franklin Waltman, jr., staff correspondent of the Baltimore Sun who went to Haiti with the recent commission, will be the speakers.

Two Envoys to Attend.

Several Latin-American nations are sending special delegates and at least two will be represented unofficially by their ministers. Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, Minister from Panama, and Dr. Adrian Recinos, Minister from Guatemala, have accepted invitations from Dr. Charles G. Maphis, director of the institute.

Dr. James Brown Scott, secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, will preside over the open forum to be held in connection with this round-table on Monday, August 11. The question to be debated is whether the so-called Roosevelt doctrine is either necessary or desirable for the United States.

"Our Nicaragua Policy" will be the subject of an evening address by Dr. Charles C. Batchelder on August 8. Dr. Batchelder, who has represented the United States in many foreign lands, will speak on the proposed Nicaragua Canal.

Cuba and the Platt amendment will be considered at the second meeting when the speakers will be Dr. Gustavo Gutierrez, of the University of Havana, and Dr. Leland H. Jenks, of the University of Miami.

Oil Problem on Program.

A question of timely interest, that of oil legislation in South America, particularly in Colombia, is on the program for August 9. Roscoe B. Gaither, counsel for South America oil companies, and Prof. J. Fred Rippy, of Duke University, will lead this discussion.

When treaty relations with Panama are taken up on August 12 Dr. Alfaro will be present in an unofficial capacity. The chief speaker will be Henry Kittredge Norton, well-known writer on international affairs.

Restriction of immigration from Mexico is the subject for August 14, when Carlos Eduardo Castaneda, representing the University of Mexico, will address the group.

Dr. Recinos and Dr. Alfaro, with Prof. W. S. Robertson, of the University of Illinois, are on the program for the final meeting August 14 to take part in discussions of the Monroe Doctrine and the League of Nations as they affect Latin America.

Dr. Dana Monroe, of the Latin-American division of the Department of State, will be present throughout most of the session representing the United States.

ARLINGTON LAWYER FINED IN CONTEMPT

Hedrick Impeachment Case Continued as Judge Cites Marshall.

BROWNING HEARS CASE

After continuing impeachment proceedings against Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, of the Arlington County district, until September 2, Judge Alexander T. Browning yesterday fined Attorney Carl A. Marshall $50 on contempt charges arising from letters which Marshall is said to have written to employers of three witnesses in the case.

Marshall, a Washington and Arlington County lawyer, allegedly accused the witnesses of "unusual and unnecessary political activities." The letters were sent to Government department heads employing the witnesses.

When summoned before Judge Browning yesterday, Marshall admitted that he had not been "directed" to write the letters, as stated in the letters themselves, but claimed that he felt it his duty to report what he felt to be improper conduct of Government employes. He added that he had not intended to intimidate any of the witnesses.

Impeachment proceedings against Hedrick, brought by the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, were continued due to the illness of Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson Farr, of Fairfax County, chief defense counsel. In their petition, filed June 19 last, women of the organization asked a judicial investigation of Hedrick's activities in connection with supplying the sparsely developed Waycroft subdivision with sewers and water, and demanded that he show cause why he should not be removed for misfeasance and incompetency. Hearings opened July 8, but were continued until July 22 in order that counsel might revise the petition so as to make the charges more specific.

LUTHERANS GATHER IN YEARLY SESSION

Conference and Training School Open Today at Massanetta Springs.

NOTED SPEAKERS LISTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 22.—Lutherans from all parts of Virginia were gathering at Massanetta Springs tonight for the opening tomorrow of the annual church conference and training school of the synod of Virginia, which will continue through next Tuesday. More than 400 delegates and workers are expected for the sessions.

Some of the outstanding Lutheran leaders in America will address the conference; among them, Dr. John A. Morehead, of New York City, president of the Lutheran world convention, embracing 81,000,000 churchmen in 41 nations; Dr. Charles J. Smith, president of Roanoke College; Alvin H. Schaediger, of North Bergen, N. J., vice president of the Luther League of America; Dr. F. F. Fry, of New York, executive secretary of the Lutheran American mission board; Dr. Mary Markley, of Washington, secretary of the United Lutheran Church Education Board.

The Rev. Homer R. Anderson, of Roanoke, superintendent of the Virginia synod, is in charge of the conference. He will introduce the faculty members at the opening session and Dr. J. Luther Sieber, of Roanoke, dean of the faculty, will make the address.

Each day of the meeting has been set apart for one of the conferences making up the Virginia synod. Thursday is Staunton conference day; Friday, Winchester; Saturday, Marion; Sunday, Roanoke; Monday, Knoxville, and next Tuesday, New Market.

Man Is Held on Charge Of Giving Rum to Minor

Charged with giving liquor to a minor, Wilbur C. Gray, of Thirty-fourth street northwest near P street, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday and when he demanded a trial by jury was ordered held under $300 bond. Gray was arrested on complaint of the family of Miss Evelyn Collins, 16 years old, who resides in the same block.

The girl and a boy companion alleged that they had been invited into Gray's house last Sunday to have a drink of ice water. The girl, according to police records, became unconscious and was taken to Georgetown University Hospital. At the hospital, it is alleged, the girl was given stomach-pump treatment and it was found that she had been given an alcoholic drink.

Cumberland Heat Records Smashed

Temperature Goes to 103 on Official Thermometer; Ten-Year Mark.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 22.—The United States Weather Bureau thermometer reached 103 at the city hall yesterday, smashing the record of high temperature for ten years. Added to the general discomfort have been swarms of mosquitos, which, it is claimed, have been bred by unusual weather conditions. In finding relief, it is said that at least 500 persons drove from Cumberland to Altoona, Pa., Sunday, where one of the largest swimming pools in the country is situated.

The deficiency in rainfall is shown by the fact that the water is 4 feet below the spillway at Lake Gordon, the source of Cumberland's water supply. A year ago at this time it was only an inch below the spillway. Last week half a million more gallons of water were used by Cumberland people than during the corresponding week last year. The city has ordered that the banks of Wills Creek be limed and that the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal basin and other stagnant places be sprayed with oil.

BOXING BAN ASKED IN PRINCE GEORGES

100 Sign Petition Which Is Presented to County Commissioners.

ZONING PLEAS COME UP

A petition signed by approximately 100 persons who styled themselves taxpayers, residents and ministers of the Gospel, was received yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners protesting prize fights and boxing in the county. The petition especially mentions fights which are alleged to have been advertised for within a short time at Williams Park, Sheriff road near Chapel road.

The commissioners had not been informed of the alleged fight plans and postponed action until they could investigate.

Three zoning petitions which had been disapproved by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday were referred back to the commission when the county commissioners found that there had been a misunderstanding on the amount of territory taken in by the petitions. It was intimated by commission officials that more favorable action would probably be given since the clearing up of the misunderstanding.

The petitions asked rezoning from residential to commercial of property in block A, Holloday's subdivision, North Brentwood. Frank H. Vaden asked for r.zoning of lots 21 and 22; Harry M. Brunk for reclassification of lots 25, 26 and 27, and Etoile M. Vaden, lots 23 and 24.

GRANT IS REGIONAL HIGHWAY BODY HEAD

Named at Meeting of National Capital, Maryland and Virginia Groups.

TRAFFIC LINKS PLANNED

Preliminary plans for cooperation among the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, State park and planning agencies of Virginia and Maryland, Montgomery County in Maryland, Arlington County and Alexandria in Virginia, and the District of Columbia, were laid at an organization meeting of the Washington regional highway committee yesterday.

The purpose of the meeting was to provide for construction and connection of interstate highways, including both those which skirt the District and those which pass through it. One of the most important problems brought up at the meeting was that raised by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, of planning highway routes most efficiently to provide for future traffic requirements without later revision or reconstruction.

It was pointed out that adequate provision must be made for the highway requirements of nearby counties, and the committee also is seeking the most effective way of linking highways in adjoining counties with the streets and avenues of the District to provide most direct routes with least interference. Frequent meetings on the subject are planned, with the idea of final adoption in general and regional plans approved recently by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to meet the situation. Lieut. Col. Grant was named chairman of the regional committee.

Water Consumed In Day Is Record

High Mark of 114,000,000 Gallons Attributed to Hot Weather.

Washington consumed more water in the 24 hours ending at midnight Monday night than in any other day in its history, according to figures made public by officials of the Water Department yesterday.

Water consumption kept pace with the all-time heat record and mounted to 114,000,000 gallons in the course of the day. This was 10,000,000 gallons more than the previous high consumption figures of 104,000,000, recorded in July last year.

There were 99,651,000 gallons used last Saturday and 96,752,000 gallons used on Sunday. The consumption was expected to decrease slightly yesterday, but would still remain at a high figure, officials said.

In addition to the water consumed by Washington residents, approximately an additional 1,000,000 gallons was pumped from the Dalecarlia reservoir to Arlington County, Va., and Montgomery County, Md. Approximately 1,000,000 gallons were pumped into Prince Georges County, Md., but this is included in the 114,000,000 gallons.

W. H. SWEENEY DIES; ALEXANDRIA AUDITOR

Former Head of City Schools Served as Superintendent for Fifteen Years.

PAUL HENLEY IS INJURED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 933.

Capt. William H. Sweeney, city auditor and former superintendent of the Alexandria public schools, died yesterday at his home, 801 South Patrick street, after an illness of more than a year, although his condition has been critical only a few days. Death was due to a complication of ailments. Although he retained the title of city auditor, in which position he succeeded the late E. F. Price, for more than a year he had been relieved of his duties which have been performed by an assistant.

Capt. Sweeney was one of the best known residents of Alexandria, and was greatly beloved by the public school children, he having served as superintendent of schools for about fifteen years. He was born in Hillsboro, Loudoun County, a son of the late Timothy and Margaret Sweeney. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anne E. Keegan Sweeney, and by two sisters and two brothers, John E. and Richard E. Sweeney, both of Alexandria; Mrs. John R. Sweeney and Miss Julia Sweeney, of Gainesville, Prince William County.

He had been an educator all of his life. He started his teaching career at the old St. John's Military Academy here, located at the southeast corner of Duke and Columbus streets, where he served as a teacher from 1883 to 1895, the academy being conducted by the late Richard L. Carne. Later he became a public school teacher, serving in the Washington School for Boys, and several years later being chosen superintendent of the public schools of the city, in which capacity he served for fifteen years.

He resigned this position to accept the post of city auditor to succeed E. F. Price, and continued in this capacity until his death. For a number of years he was a member of the city council from the Fourth Ward, and was later an alderman from that ward. He was a lifelong Democrat, and was always a hard worker in the cause of Democratic candidates in all elections.

Capt. Sweeney was a member of Fitzgerald Council, No. 459, Knights of Columbus; Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. Elks, and for many years had been an active member of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, of which he was treasurer. He also was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Catholic Church. Alexandria Lodge of Elks held a lodge of sorrow last night in his honor.

The body was taken to Demaine's Undertaking Establishment, and last night was removed to his late residence. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Paul Henley, 24 years old, living at 113 North Patrick street, yesterday morning while putting up an awning out of a second-story window fell to the sidewalk, and was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. S. B. Moore for injuries to his head and a scalp wound over the eyes. It was stated at the hospital last night that while his hurts are painful, he is not considered seriously injured.

The Alexandria Trades Council will hold a meeting at 8:15 o'clock tonight when Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the chamber of commerce, will address the gathering. The meeting will be held in Carpenter's Hall, Prince and Royal streets, and will be presided over by Howard T. Colvin, the president.

Walter Scott was fined $10 and costs in police court yesterday morning on a charge of improper parking, and when his lawyer asked the name of the complainant, Police Justice W. S. Snow, qualified as such, and then imposed the fine.

Mrs. C. Clifton Howard, probation officer for the city, and for a number of years president of the Alexandria Playgrounds Association before the playgrounds in the city were placed under municipal control, addressed the business meeting of the directors held on Monday afternoon, urging that steps be taken to overcome the difficulties in handling children while public charges, and the importance of corrective methods.

Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Schneider, 61 years old, died on Monday night at her home, 511 Queen street. Besides her husband, Frederick Howard Schneider, she is survived by two sons, Frederick H. and Justus W. Schneider; also two sisters, Mrs. E. F. Markwood, of Charlottesville, and Miss Anne Moore, of Cedarhurst, Long Island; and two brothers, S. A. Moore, Burke, Va., and J. M. Moore, this city.

Olivine, Philadelphia; Sister Mary, of the Eucharist, Baltimore, and Michael, John, Bernard, Mary, Frances and Rose Grant, of Washington, D. C.

Denison Finds Wallet First Thought Stolen

The report of the robbery of Representative Edward E. Denison, of Illinois, in a cigar store Monday was greatly exaggerated, he admitted last night to Fifth Precinct police.
